FRENCH BREAK IRON LINE

HOW U. S. WILL CALL 1,250,000 TO THE COLORS

Will Mobilize the National Guard July 1 and Then Draft 500,000.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Fresh details of the war department's plans for calling an army of 1,250,000 to Uncle Sam's colors were obtained by THE TRIBUNE from an authoritative source today. From these plans it appears that the national guard units—including, of course, the Illinois regiments—are to be mobilized about July 1.

FOUR STEPS TO BE TAKEN.

The main essentials of the plan as now contemplated, giving the successive steps to be taken, are:

First—Thirteen reserve officers' camps will be established May 15 to train 40,000 officers for the new army.

Second—About July 1 the national guard will be mobilized at the sixteen divisional training camps for two months' intensive training before the first draft for 500,000 men, under selective conscription, is applied.

Third—The first draft of 500,000 will be sent to the sixteen divisional training camps soon after Sept. 1, by which time the national guard forces will be fully equipped, recruited up to war strength, and be ready to leave.

Fourth—By Sept. 1 the regulars and the national guard, both of which are expected to be at war strength, will be available to provide the first contingent of an army to fight in the trenches of France.

EXPEDITION MAKEUP SECRET.

The war department declines to make an authoritative statement that it intends to send the first army to France from the ranks of the regulars and guard, but it was stated significantly by a general officer of the staff today that these two arms of the military service will provide the only men available if an army is to be sent abroad this summer or fall.

There will, in effect, be three armies in the field when the complete plan is worked out. They will be:

The regular army, recruited to war strength of 11,942 officers and 287,[illegible] enlisted men.

The national guard, recruited to the war strength of 10,956 officers and [illegible] enlisted men.

The conscript army of 18,538 officers, 28,455 noncommissioned officers, and 500,000 men.

GOOD CHANCE FOR PRIVATES.

Out of the combined strength of approximately 650,000 of the regular army and national guard, 8,000 noncommissioned men and privates will be withdrawn as officers for the new conscripted force of 500,000 men.

The first step in this direction was taken today, when Secretary of War Baker issued orders that twenty-five enlisted men and noncommissioned officers should be selected from each national guard regiment and sent to the officers' training camps to be trained as officers for the conscript army.

At the same time Secretary Baker issued orders that the commissioned officers of the national guard should not present themselves at officers' training camps for training, but should remain with their own organizations and await the call.

MUST FILL GAPS IN GUARD.

The withdrawal of 6,000 noncommissioned officers from the regular army and the withdrawal of upwards of 2,000 enlisted men from the national guard to provide officers for the new conscript army will leave gaps in these organizations that must be filled by recruiting.

When the 500,000 are called out it is likely, officials say, that many national guard officers will be called to be officers of the new army, as they will be needed to train the recruits needed to bring the national guard to war strength. However, there will be some interchange of officers between the three armies, as it is desired to make the force homogeneous, and there will be no limitation as to where the officers will be assigned.

There will be no effort, staff officers declare, to pluck out national guard officers and substitute for them officers of the reserve corps.

Arrangements are being completed to select sites for the sixteen divisional training camps, which will house from [illegible] to 75,000 soldiers. As soon as these camps are ready the national guard will be called out for duty.

NAVY BOARD MAN WINS CENSURE BY U-BOAT COMMENT

Others Resent Claim That Solution Has Been Found.

New York, May 5.—[Special.]—American inventive genius has found the solution of the German submarine problem and new American inventions will end the submarine peril.

This statement was made this afternoon by William L. Saunders as an expression of personal opinion and not in his official capacity as chairman of the naval consulting board. He was careful to disclaim official authorization for it.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels expressed in Washington tonight the hope that Mr. Saunders is correct in his view. He declared the invention will have to stand the test of service. The problem will be solved, he said, adding: "It is only a question of time."

Chairman Is Skeptical.

As the official spokesman of the naval consulting board, Thomas Robins gave this statement:

"If Mr. Saunders was correctly quoted as saying that some American genius has perfected an invention which will clear the waters of submarines, he must know of some invention which is not known to me or to the other members of the board. We are still searching for exactly that kind of invention."

The statement of Mr. Saunders caused consternation. It was characterized as a most unfortunate happening. It was objected to on two grounds: First, that if justified, it would tend to forewarn the enemy; if unjustified it would have the damaging effect of an anti-climax.

Given Two Hard Tests.

A reporter received from an inventor an account of one of the inventions upon which it seems certain the original announcement of Mr. Saunders was based. No details can be given.

This much, however, can be said: The invention is designed for aggressive warfare against submarines. It is the result of the genius of a man living in New York. It has been accepted by the Washington government.

It has been given a fairly extensive test by the British admiralty, with results sufficiently satisfactory to lead both governments to entertain high hopes.

The inventor says that the British admiralty test has convinced him of the practical merit of his invention. He believes it will accomplish its purpose and has been told this view is held in official circles. He is under strict orders not to make public details of his invention.

Speaks Only for Self.

The announcement that "the submarine problem has been solved" was made by Mr. Saunders through a news association of this city. Mr. Saunders and two other members of the board received newspapermen later.

"You are credited with saying that the naval consulting board has solved the submarine problem," was the first question asked.

"There have been a number of inventions of Americans since the beginning of the European war," Mr. Saunders said. "I state that, in my opinion, these will solve the problem." One invention has accomplished results which will solve the U-boat problem as soon as they can be put into effective operation."

Mr. Saunders then made it plain he was not speaking in his official capacity.

TROOPS OPPOSE GERMAN RIOTS

AMSTERDAM, via London, May 5.—Grave rioting has occurred in Mainz, Germany, according to a report received here by the Telegraaf. Sixteen hundred people took part in a demonstration because of the scarcity of food, and a number of shops were looted. Troops fired on the demonstrants, the report adds, and eight persons were killed. Later the troops arrested 500 persons.

Food Short in Bavaria.

BASEL, Switzerland, May 5.—A dispatch from Munich says that the food shortage in Bavaria is becoming increasingly serious. Herr Brettreich, minister of the interior, made an address to a popular assembly in regard to the food situation, saying:

"We can hold out until Aug. 15 if the supplies we expect are received. By September the disappearance of our live stock will compel us to exist on vegetables alone."

Police Sergeant, Aged 9, Gets Transfer for Asking

Because his parents have moved from 5500 Lake Park avenue to 2020 West Chicago avenue, "Sergeant" George Braham, 9 years old, who has been "traveling a beat" out of Hyde Park police station, asked Capt. W. P. O'Brien for a "transfer" last night. Based on his request Capt. O'Brien will recommend the transfer in a letter to Capt. Max Danner of the West Chicago avenue station.

STORM 4 MILE GERMAN FRONT; CAPTURE 4,300

Most Vicious Fight Since Battle of the Marne Being Staged.

PARIS, May 5.—French troops under Gen. Nivelle today smashed forward on a four mile front southwest of Laon and captured 4,300 Germans and much loot.

Further to the east the poilus captured all of the plateau in the neighborhood of Cerny and Craonne and the hills dominating the valley of the Ailette river.

In both sectors the Germans put up a vicious resistance, but they melted under the gruelling artillery fire and the desperate French who would not be denied.

DESPERATE BATTLE RAGES.

According to dispatches from the front, the fighting during the last forty-eight hours along the entire British and French front has been the most sanguinary and desperate since the battle of the Marne.

From south of Lens, where the Canadians and Australians fractured the von Hindenburg line to the region of Reims, where the French have made breaches in the enemy front, there has been one continuous series of attacks, followed by counter attacks, which have been of so desperate a character as to indicate that the supposition the Germans have planned to retire is erroneous, at least for the present.

BIG FORCES IN FIGHT.

The Germans have counter attacked more violently than at any time since the allies' offensive began, throwing fresh troops into the battle at threatened points in fierce efforts to regain their lost positions.

Official advices indicate that the fighting was especially prolonged and violent around Craonne, where the French took prisoners from two fresh German divisions and maintained all their gains.

The largest number of prisoners bagged during the day was in the pocket between a point due west of Anizy and Filain nearly due south of Laon. In addition to the 4,300 prisoners taken today, the number counted from yesterday totals 1,000.

RESERVES EXHAUSTED?

Field Marshal von Hindenburg has exhausted most of his reserves on the western front in an effort to stop the terrific thrust of the allies, if German prisoners tell the truth, says a dispatch from the front.

According to some of these prisoners, taken by the French today, Von Hindenburg has not more than a half dozen divisions—about 90,000 men—left him to strengthen his line or relieve exhausted troops out of the forty-three divisions—about 645,000 men—which six weeks ago he had massed in preparation for an announced drive against the allies.

MANY ARMY UNITS USED.

The men captured today gave proof enough of the great number of German army units which the Teutonic field marshal has been forced to concentrate in efforts to stem the French advance. At least twenty different divisions were identified in the insignia worn by the prisoners.

Some of them talked freely of the desperation with which their commanders faced the never ending bombardment of the allied guns, the ceaseless pressure of infantry attacks, and the ever melting wall of their own gray clad soldiers.

Von Hindenburg's vast concentration of troops along the whole French front makes the German lines literally defended by masses of human flesh as much as the earthen walls. French guns, that formerly leveled the earth, now blast away great gaps in this human barrier.

GERMAN WALL CRACKS.

Some idea of the strength of this German wall is gleaned from a correspondent's dispatch describing the extraordinary concentration of men with which Von Hindenburg is vainly endeavoring to stop the French.

"I saw some of this German wall crack yesterday when the French wrested four kilometers of its front line positions.

"While one section of the French offensive was capturing Craonne, I watched another between there and Reims make this gain. It was the third successful French drive of the week.

"The four kilometers of front—approximately two and one-half miles—formerly was defended by a single German

BAKERIES REOPEN AS DRIVERS WIN $2 RAISE IN PAY

C. F. Clyne Brings Settlement After Long Debate.

Bread will be delivered tomorrow. The "strike" of bakery wagon drivers was settled last night at 7:20 o'clock in the office of Charles F. Clyne, United States district attorney, when the men won a raise of $2 a week. This guarantees them $23 a week minimum pay and a commission of 7 per cent on all sales of more than $225. Formerly they got the commission on all over $200.

Representatives of the bigger bakers and the master bakers' association who were in the meeting flashed out the word to the employers and the order was given to put the bakers to work.

Ovens Made Ready.

Fires had been lighted and the ovens warmed in anticipation. Since the settling of the strike of bakery workers four days ago the only thing that stood in the way of resuming normal business in all the bakeries of the city was the position of the drivers.

Charles F. Clyne and his assistant, Joseph B. Fleming, labored all day with representatives of the factions in conflict.

"It was the hardest nut I have ever had to crack," said Mr. Clyne last night.

Parties in Debate.

Those who took part in the session on the labor side were Martin De Vries, president of the bakery drivers; George Kidd and Robert Fitchie of the teamsters' joint council; John Fitzpatrick, president Chicago Federation of Labor; Edward Nockles, secretary Chicago Federation of Labor; Joseph Salfstrom, secretary Wagon Drivers' association, and William A. Near, secretary of the milk wagon drivers.

Among those representing the employers at the meeting were John Grant of the Grant Baking company; John Hines, Ward Baking company, and Merrill Hutchinson.

The action of the leaders was ratified at a meeting held last night at Bricklayers' hall, Peoria and Monroe streets.

The Jewish bakers met yesterday afternoon and last night, but at a late hour had reached no decision.

SEIZE 40 IN RAID UPON LID LIFTER; COPS IN BATTLE

Thirty-six men and four women were arrested late last night in a raid by eight detectives on the saloon of John J. Scanlon, 6600 South Halsted street. Scanlon's license was revoked several weeks ago after a man is alleged to have been shot in his place and after Scanlon had shot at a policeman detailed to enforce the Sunday closing law. Scanlon has continued to sell liquor without a license, the police say.

Scanlon last night was tending bar. When the detectives entered he picked up a revolver and was about to fire, the police say, but was felled by a blow on the head. Customers then attacked the detectives, but were subdued by the policemen's guns and arrested.

Five patrol wagons were used to haul the prisoners to the station.

MURATORE AND CAVALIERI ILL

New York, May 5.—[Special.]—Mme. Lina Cavalieri, operatic soprano, and her husband, Lucien Muratore, tenor, are both patients in the Audubon sanitarium, at 8 St. Nicholas place, the soprano having undergone a slight operation Friday.

She was reported as "doing fine" tonight and her condition in no way serious.

Her husband last waak was reported to be suffering from appendicitis, because of which he was forced to cancel a trip to South America, where he had an operatic engagement. He was not operated upon and is greatly improved.

Moline Girl Swallows Poison in Hotel Room

Miss Ruth Johnson of Moline, Ill., attempted to end her life last night when she swallowed poison in a room in the Grand Pacific hotel. She had written a note in which she blamed her estrangement from "Bob" for her despondent condition. She was removed to St. Luke's hospital where it was said her chance of recovery was slender. A message from Davenport, Ia., indicated she had been admired by Robert Reynolds, an employé of the Rock Island arsenal. Reynolds said the girl had been acting queerly and making threats. Her father, Herman Johnson of Moline, was notified.

Mrs. Doggett Is Feeble Minded, Jury Declares

Mrs. Hugenia S. Doggett of Highland Park was declared feeble minded and wholly incapable of handling her ordinary business affairs by a jury in the Probate court last night. The trial lasted nine weeks.

Rome reports continued artillery duels on the Austrian front.

Bishop's Son to France for Ambulance Service

C. Patrick Anderson, son of the Rt. Rev. Charles P. Anderson, Episcopalian bishop of Chicago, sailed from New York yesterday to join the American ambulance field service in France.

Mr. Anderson will drive an ambulance purchased and maintained by the Christ Episcopal church of Waukegan. The ambulance is the project of W. Scott Kieth, senior warden of the church. It will be known as the Chicago diocese ambulance.

Roumania Asks U. S. for a Loan of $35,000,000

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—The Roumanian government has applied to the United States for a loan to assist in the prosecution of the war. Roumania desires between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000. Serbia has asked for $20,000,00. The applications now are before the American government and are expected to receive early consideration.

FIRE DESTROYS CLUBHOUSE AT BEVERLY HILLS

The main building of the Beverly Country club, Eighty-seventh street and Western avenue, was destroyed by fire last night. The club yesterday held its informal opening of the season.

Lack of water made virtually ineffective the work of the firemen, who arrived promptly with two engines after the alarm. The hydrants were not in order, seemingly, and the only available water was in the pond which forms the hazard guarding the green of the ninth hole on one side of the clubhouse.

Building Cost $25,000.

The building, two stories and basement, was of frame. It was built when the club was opened, nine years ago, cost about $25,000, and was insured for 80 per cent of that sum. The contents belonging to the club were estimated last night at worth $8,000. This sum is exclusive of the belongings of members, such as clubs and clothing in the locker room in the basement. The buildings—just east of Eighty-seventh street, which cuts the Beverly property in halves—was in the township of Worth.

Membership of 300.

The club's membership is 300 men, plus juniors and associates. The members in 1915 purchased the grounds, 157 acres, for $157,000.

The question of building a fireproof clubhouse has been frequently discussed of late, but put off in the belief that the old building would serve until after the discharge of the bonded indebtedness incurred in the purchase of the grounds.

SPANELL GETS 5 YEARS AS SLAYER

JOFFRE ENDS VISIT IN PLEA TO U. S. LABOR

Workers and College Men Join in Great Sendoff to French Party.

BY CHARLES N. WHEELER.

In the vast amphitheater in the stockyards yesterday afternoon there occurred the climax of two days of demonstrative acclaim by Chicago for Marshal Joffre, for Viviani, and for France. Workingmen and women by the thousands joined with college students to give the final touch to the visit.

And so, with the yells of the collegians and the shouts of the men from the melting pot sections ringing in their ears, the distinguished Frenchmen and their aids departed last night for Kansas City. They will be in St. Louis tomorrow morning and reach Springfield for the service at the tomb of Lincoln in the afternoon.

BEST AT THE LAST.

In the two days of Chicago's greetings and pledges for the fight for democracy, the best was reserved for the last, the visitors said.

Fêted and cheered and extolled by thousands upon thousands, representing every walk of life in the middle west, Joffre and Viviani finally were ushered into the stockyards pavilion. There 12,000 men, women, and children—all that could get into the immense building—thundered their salutes and farewells.

The place of the meeting, the predominance of the workers, both men and women, and the closing of the triumphal two days were quickly noted by Marshal Joffre. It was one of those decisions he was in the habit of making back yonder on the Marne.

PLEA TO THE WORKERS.

He had not intended to speak, but the opportunity changed his plans in the twinkling of an eye. Chairman Charles G. Dawes announced that the general had consented to say a few words. And what he said was the crux of the plan of mobilizing the man power of the United States in the great struggle.

He spoke to the workers. He uttered a brief but strong plea to them to join with their brother workers in France, already mobilized in workshop and on the firing line, that human liberty should not perish.

"I bring the greetings of the whole French army to the workingmen of this city," he said. "I am sure all American workmen are one in heart with their brother workmen in France, and are ready, like them, to fight for the final victory of democracy."

NOT WAR OF CONQUEST.

M. Viviani, supplementing the words of the marshal of France, declared false the charges of the enemy that the allies are fighting a war for capital.

"It is not a war of conquest," declared the statesman. "It is not a war in which France and her allies wish to acquire territory. It is a war for humanity and democracy."

The swinging into line for France of the students of America, typified by the demonstration led by the college men of the Chicago district, was one of the outstanding features of the two days' triumphal doings.

THREE FLAGS EVERYWHERE.

The record cheering on college gridirons was a pale and colorless thing compared with what the boys from Northwestern, the University of Chicago, and the Boy Scouts did in the amphitheater.

The big hall was a riot of color to begin with. The Tricolor, which now thrills Americans almost as much as Old Glory does, was everywhere, and beside it yesterday, as the bareheaded students tore loose, was the Union Jack. Dropping down from the north wall in a great splash of color was a great flag of France, and across it in large, gleaming letters the magic word: "Marne."

The students, in flocks of hundreds, put the names of Joffre and Viviani into their heart stirring yells. The bands played. Army uniforms, dress and service, the panoply and pageantry of the poetic side of war, were everywhere.

CROWDS THERE EARLY.

Enormous crowds gathered in Halsted street two hours before the doors were thrown open. All traffic lines were taxed beyond their capacity. Small knots of women who talked with a French accent had come into the stockyards district as early as noon.

"Papa Joff" was the burden of their plea for admission.

A basket of American Beauty roses

During the college boy cheering one group yelled for "Teddy," and soon Roosevelt's name was ringing across the tanbark.

The students, with great banners inscribed "Vive la France," "Vive Joffre," and "Vive Viviani," paraded through the aisles with the audience standing, waving flags and yelling like mad.

Joffre and Viviani reached the pavilion at 4:40. When they appeared on the platform the student body tore loose again with the great assemblage joining in. Viviani waved his silk hat and Joffre stood at attention.

After the yelling ceased the audience stood while the Tricolor was raised on the flag pole. Then the band played the "Marseillaise," the 12,000 singing it in a mighty roar.

Gordon Ramsay introduced Bishop Fallows, who pronounced the invocation. Charles G. Dawes was then introduced as the chairman. The audience rose and sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

In Come Sailors and Soldiers.

After the first demonstration ended the audience stood while jackies and national guard troops marched to their reserved seats. When the Eighth infantry men came in they got a great cheer.

Another big cheer went up when Col. Foreman came in with First cavalry troopers.

Mr. Dawes welcomed Joffre and Viviani, pledging the strength, loyalty, and devotion of the United States in this war. As he said this the great place rang with wild cheering. When he mentioned the "Marne" they tore loose again.

Pledge Our All—Dawes.

"Fellow Americans," Mr. Dawes said, "we come to greet Minister of Justice Rene Viviani and Gen. Joffre as citizens of the republic of the United States, which in its weakness and infancy leaned upon the strong arm of France—of a republic dedicated at its beginning to freedom and grown to strength under the guidance of the great principles of human rights.

"Under the providence of God it has come to us to again take up arms in the cause of freedom by the side of France.

"We welcome you, Minister Viviani, wise and trusted counselor of a great nation in its time of greatest trial.

"We welcome you, Gen. Joffre, steadfast soldier and kindly citizen, commander at the battle of the Marne, field marshal of France, seeing in you both the republic of France personified and pledging you our devotion, our strength, and our lives to the end."

200,000 to France—Robins.

Raymond Robins was then introduced. From the crucifixion of Belgium, he said, comes forth the resurrection of the liberties of Europe. He said it was the splendid privilege of America—the privilege of placing United States soldiers on the firing line in France.

"In common with all our patriotic fellow citizens of Chicago and Illinois," said Mr. Robins, "we unite to honor members of this high commission, and with personal gratitude and veneration Marshal Joffre, the hero of the Marne, the foremost captain of the world.

"This is an occasion for rejoicing and for consecration. We rejoice this afternoon that France and America stand shoulder to shoulder in a great world conflict for that principle of democracy for which your sires and our fathers mingled their blood on American soil four generations ago.

Rejoice at Russian Liberty.

"We rejoice in the dawn of freedom in Russia. After the supreme hour when the free men of France hurled back the invading hosts of autocracy at the battle of the Marne, the most glorious moment in a hundred years was that hour when Catherine Breshkovsky was welcomed by a liberated people in the capital city of the czars.

"Heroic and suffering mother of the Russian common life, saved from the living death of Siberian exile to behold the emancipation of 160,000,000 souls from the thraldom of centuries—beloved 'Babushka,' we rejoice with you this afternoon!

"Again we rejoice in the testimony of this world war to the value of every class and group of the people in preserving the integrity of the national life. Never again can the laborer in the field or mine or shop be despised or neglected by the builders of empire. The nation is the whole people and not a sect nor class.

"The world war will be won in the homes and fields and mines and shops as well as upon the battle lines of flaming steel. Men in overalls and women in aprons are as necessary for victory in modern warfare as an army with banners.

"This is the supreme promise of democracy that was vindicated in the battle of the Marne and in the highest incarnations of the genius of our own national life.

Urges Men to the Front.

"Let us be consecrated to the full measure of our mighty task. It having been decreed in the providence of God that to preserve liberty among men the blood of American freemen must mingle with that of the sons of the free nations of the earth, let us with solemn joy hasten to enlist in this supreme struggle for the freedom of mankind.

"Let the first answer of our consecration be 200,000 fighting men upon the battle lines of France. And may it also be that in this army of the republic of the west there may be found the sons of all the peoples whose fathers have sought freedom and opportunity in our land.

"May these men of many tongues and nations, fighting for liberty under the starry flag, cement the citizenship of America and be the final answer of the institutions of freedom to the feudal despots of the world.

"By the blood of martyred Belgians and desecrated France, by the sacrifice of those who have given their lives for the freedom of the seas, in the holy cause of liberty among men and self-government among the nations of the earth let us pledge our property and our lives to win victory for democracy and enduring peace for all the world."

Visitors Speeches Climax.

The brief speeches of Viviani and Joffre—printed elsewhere—were, of course, the climax of the great meeting. Father Vattman of Wilmette, wearing the uniform of an American soldier, pronounced the benediction. The meeting closed just in time for the French guests to go to their train—headed for the west.

FOR PEACE AND LIBERTY!

BY JOFFRE

FOLLOWING is the text of the speech of Marshal Joffre at the Dexter pavilion yesterday. The speech was made in French and a translation read to the audience by Chairman Charles G. Dawes:

"I am happy today to salute the city of Chicago in this assembly, where all classes of society are represented. This assembly reminds me of France at the moment of the declaration of war in the beginning of August, 1914. The Germans had assailed us brutally, hoping within a short time to crush France under their murderous strokes.

"The danger was quickly realized and all the French people rushed to the frontier. The countrymen, the workmen, all Frenchmen were aligned at the border. The fight was hard, but at last we overcame them and checked them, and the battle of the Marne stopped them completely at the time.

Fighting and Working Armies.

"We were in need of munitions. We were in need of guns and rifles. So we selected from among the ranks of the army the special workmen to make guns, to make bullets and shells. And from that time the French army has comprised those who fight at the front and those who make it possible to fight at the front. That is, the army at the front and the army in the shops and in the factories, and it is from the army at the front and the army at the factories that I bring to you greetings."

Greetings of French Army.

"I bring the greetings of the whole French army to the population of Chicago, and, above all, to the workingmen of this city, among whom I am happy to find myself today.

"All French workmen are mobilized and all are working heart and soul in the common cause. Each is accomplishing his duty in a victorious way. I am sure that all American workmen are one in heart with their brother workmen in France and are ready, like them, to fight for the final victory of democracy."

BY VIVIANI

MINISTER VIVIANI, in his speech at the stockyards yesterday, made, as did Gen. Joffre, an appeal to the workingmen of America, bringing, as he said, a message from their brothers in France. He said:

"Citizens, citizens: I want for my first word, coming into this great assembly, to salute the army under arms come here to mark this occasion. I salute your city, represented by the brothers of those who have already gone to the fields of France, and I want to thank and salute in the name of the French laboring classes all the laboring classes I see before me here today who have quit their work to come here today to hear the word of France.

"I salute all these workmen belonging to different races who have come to this wonderful country, America—Slavs, Russians, Czechs, Greeks; brothers of those who work now for the independence and emancipation of Russia, and all those who have come to present us this welcome.

Stamps Out Calumny.

"I want in the name of France to take advantage of the opportunity given me to answer one of the greatest calumnies which have been made against us, that for a few months we have tried to deceive you, making you believe that the actual war was a war of capital, that we were fighting to make money.

"Do you think if it was true all your brothers would have rushed to the front to fight for the flag? Do you think the French laboring men and all the working classes would have taken the interest in it that they did take?

"It is not a war of conquest. It is not a war where France and her allies wish to acquire territory. It is a war for humanity and democracy. That is why, in answer to the call of the speakers you have heard here belonging to your nation, you will stand together to enter this war to help France and her allies to fight to avenge the soldiers of the Marne who died for right and justice.

Owe Life to Liberty.

"You will come and join the ranks of the people who have fought for three years against Germany. All who are ready to fight to get justice go to the battlefields of liberty. That is where was conceived the greatness of Washington.

"As one of the speakers a few moments ago said, no man has got the right to die for himself; no man has the right to live for himself. He owes his life to liberty and to democracy.

"Vive l'Amérique! Vive la France!"

INVOCATION

Bishop Fallows Prays for Victory to Be Followed by Unbroken Peace.

"Lord of our far-flung battle line, may Thy richest benediction rest upon these our distinguished comrades, who have come to us from across the sea; standing for the mighty hosts of freedom, who have been not only on their own firing line, but upon ours; for they have been fighting for us, dying for us; God grant that line may be in swift pursuit of a fast retreating enemy.

"O, God, may Thy blessing rest upon the united flags of the nations contending for justice, for right, for liberty and humanity. The tri-color of France, the shamrock and thistle and rose of the United British empire, the flag of sunny Italy, and the resurrection flags of Belgium, Roumania and Serbia, with our own Star Spangled banner forever floating with theirs.

"O, God of Hosts, we look to Thee for the victory. We have the right to look, because our cause it is just and in Thee, the God of nations, we put unshaking confidence, and Thou wilt not disappoint us.

"Give us speedily the victory, to be followed by an everlasting, unbroken peace of the world. Thou shalt have all the peace and glory, world without end. Amen."

GAYLY GARBED FOREIGN WOMEN CHEER JOFFRE

The foreign element made color and noise at the Stock Yards meeting yesterday. They waved banners as bright as their native costumes and shouted: "Joff—ree!"

Maids in the attractive coifs of Brittany, Normandy, and Picardy, and groups of Slavs shouted themselves hoarse for the visiting hero. Half a dozen Ukrainian women with their wonderful beads, colorful bodices, and frilly skirts attracted much attention, waving their strange banner beside the stars and stripes. Its broad stripes of pale blue and buff made a pretty contrast with the dark reds of their costumes.

A girl in the dress of Holland sat demurely beside the Finns and the dark types from Russia and sunny Italy.

LEWIS RENEWS INVITATION TO BALFOUR PARTY

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Senator Lewis of Illinois renewed at the state department today the invitation from the Chicago city council to the British war commission to visit Chicago. Senator Lewis submitted to Secretary Lansing a copy of the council resolution and urged that the invitation be forwarded to Foreign Minister Balfour and his associates. It is known that Mr. Balfour wishes to accept the invitation if pressing business and time will permit. It is his intention to visit Canada before returning to England, and, if possible, Chicago may be included in the trip members of the British mission will take to Canada.

Indiana Man Killed in France.

Valparaiso, Ind., May 5.—[Special.]—J. W. Van Atter, 27, who left here two years ago for the war in Europe, was killed at Vimy ridge April 9. E. J. Van Atter, his brother, received the official notificaton today. The dead soldier had attained the rank of lieutenant in the One Hundred and Seventy-third Scottish Highlanders.

JOFFRE FEELS REALLY AT HOME AT ART INSTITUTE

Loses Reserve in French Galleries—Art Gift Promised.

BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

For a few moments yesterday morning a new Joffre, a different Joffre, sauntered leisurely through the galleries of the Art institute. Gone was the immobile calm of the powerful face. Gone was the barricaded look of the gray blue eyes. Joffre was enjoying the pictures, enjoying them frankly.

Perhaps the naturalness, the freedom from restraint, was due largely to the few people in the galleries. They had been forbidden access to the institute for a couple of hours and Joffre and his party had the museum, with the exception of a few specially invited guests, to themselves.

Joffre's absorption was very genuine and when he came to the Field gallery, in which the French masterpieces are collected, a smile spread over his face.

At Home.

Here he was at home. He was breathing something of the spirit he understood, seeing the French country, the peasant folk, the blue skies above his beloved Paris. He remained in this gallery longer than any other, and he looked the satisfaction he felt at such a representative display of French paintings so many thousands of miles from the land of their birth.

Before Goya he smiled, but differently. There was question in his keen eyes. They are of antipodal stuff, this man of iron and the artist of passion, and the spirit of Goya caught little response from the stern hero of the Marne.

Joffre and his party, including the romantic figure of "the Blue Devil," were in the institute for nearly an hour. In the quiet of the institute I was near the marshal much of the time and somehow I felt I had glimpsed another side of him—a warmer, humaner, closer side, that I shall never forget.

Interrupts School Principals.

A meeting of school principals was interrupted when the commission entered the institute. A. E. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education of Boston, was speaking and he took occasion to turn his remarks in the direction of Gen. Joffre and his party.

"From this day onward," he said, "the schools will give pupils credit for their work for humanity, which work may not be included in the school curriculum. We have at last realized that it requires higher education and brains to do things for humanity."

Charles L. Hutchinson, president of the institute, welcomed the visitors and praised France as the mother of art. To this a reply was made by M. Viviani, who said he would ask that a Sevres vase be sent the institute in memory of the occasion. Then he said:

"Rembrandt was the Joffre of the painters."

SILENT FIREMEN HALT BLAZE NEAR JOFFRE MEETING

Clanging gongs of fire apparatus were silenced and the firemen worked noiselessly in extinguishing a stockyards blaze yesterday so that the huge welcome demonstration to Gen. Joffre, M. Viviani, and the other members of the French commission would not be disturbed.

Flames got headway in the plant of the Mather Stock Car company at Forty-fifth and Peoria streets during the demonstration and 150 employés were compelled to flee to safety. For a time the plant of the Arms Palace Horse Car company was in danger, but the flames were controlled.

Mounted police on guard in front of the ampitheater galloped back to the approaching fire engines and cautioned drivers against the use of gongs. No sound from the fire reached the ampitheater and the flames were extinguished with small damage.

Joffre Visit Film to Go to Historical Society

An interesting addition to the collection of the Chicago Historical society will be that of several sets of motion picture films portraying the visit of Gen. Joffre and the French commissioners.

Fighting Men Swing Past Joffre in Great Review

The noontime parade through the loop passed block after block in which the cheering spectators overflowed the sidewalks, leaned from windows, peered down from the roofs, and blocked all traffic in the intersecting streets. The review of the national guardsmen in Union avenue just before the stockyards meeting brought out one of the greatest crowds that section of the city has ever seen.

Past the long ranks of cavalry and infantry, of artillery and engineers, signal and hospital men, bluejackets from the Great Lakes naval training station, each of the regiments carrying its own band and each band playing the "Marseillaise," the French envoys moved in review, saluting each stand of colors and smiling happily at the display of the tricolor.

Among the organizations taking part in the Michigan avenue parade were the First cavalry, led by Col. Foreman; the Second infantry, commanded by Col. John J. Garrity, and the Seventh infantry, commanded by Col. Daniel Moriarty.

Three thousand high school boys in military training classes reported at their respective schools in the morning to go in a body to participate in the procession. They were in charge of Lieut. James L. Frink, who has charge of the military training work in the schools.

Visit Lincoln Monument.

The day started with a short motor trip through Lincoln park for a view of the St. Gaudens statue of the civil war president. From there, escorted by motorcycle police, the official party, including army and navy officers of the United States, moved to the Art institute for a half hour trip through the galleries, with frequent pauses before the canvases brought here from France. The Frenchmen proved that Chicago is not furnishing all the surprises, for at the end of the tour M. Viviani gave a little surprise of his own.

"It may be well to announce at this time," said he, "that soon after we return to France there will be started for Chicago a Sevres vase, to be placed in this institute. I will communicate this to the minister of public instruction of my own country."

First Cavalry Clatters By.

Meantime Michigan boulevard was rapidly filling with Chicagoans of all ages. Down the broad way clattered the First cavalry under Col. Foreman, with the mounted band under Capt. Leland Bass, the recently enlarged musical organization arousing enthusiasm all along the route of march.

A few minutes before the start of the parade the cavalrymen swung into company formation, and as the doors of the institute swung open, stood at salute, then sweeping across the boulevard, marched northward to the strains of the "Marseillaise." Behind rolled the automobiles carrying the envoys and the civilian escort.

A couple of blocks north was a group of young women, each waving a tricolor frantically as the hero of the Marne appeared. The broad window sills of the public library were crammed with people. The sidewalks were jammed to the building line, and an army of policemen stood in front to keep the throng back. Even so, there were not enough to keep back all.

Joffre Salutes Gravely.

One young woman with a glistening silk tricolor bounded out of the mass, evaded a fat policeman, slipped through the file of marching policemen at the side of the Joffre car and joyously put the flag in the hands of Marshal Joffre. He saluted gravely and the car moved on.

From State street the parade moved across Jackson boulevard and back into Michigan, there to continue southward, past tens of thousands of citizens, who stretched in unbroken ranks all the way to Twenty-second street. At the First Regiment armory the cavalrymen dropped out of line and stood at salute, the band still screaming the "Marseillaise," while the automobile section continued.

A little later the mounted police dropped out of line, and then the cars, escorted only by motorcycle men, sped on through Grand boulevard and Washington park to the University of Chicago for the midday luncheon.

Even in the outlying sections there were small crowds of cheering civilians. In automobile row a car was parked with its radiator swung out toward the center of the street. On the hood was perched a tiny boy in military uniform, standing solemnly at salute until "Papa" Joffre saw him and raised his hand. The youngster's dignity vanished. He waved both arms and jumped in the air until his mother barely rescued him from falling off his perch.

At the university there was a short reception at the residence of President Harry Pratt Judson, and then a walk through cheering students, police by the university military training regiment, to Hutchinson hall for the luncheon and informal talks. From there, scarcity of time cutting short the planned ride through the west parks, the visitors were carried to the stockyards district for the review of the sailors and the national guardsmen, formed in Union avenue for several blocks. By order of Gov. Lowden all national guard units in the city were called out for this ceremony.

CAPT. FRANKLIN R. KENNEY announced yesterday morning that Marshal Joffre had approved the new army recruiting slogan, "Fight for the flag in the field in France." A placard bearing the slogan was shown to the general Friday night and its significance explained.

"Fine!" he said in French. "That is the idea! The French people will weep with joy the day the first American lands in France."

Miss Ruth Law, who has offered her services to Capt. Kenney, will probably make her first flight in Cincinnati on May 30, when she will fly over the city, throwing out placards bearing the slogan.

Through the influence of Capt. Kenney she has been authorized to wear the uniform of the aviation corps of the United States army. It is possible she may fly in Chicago before her appearance in Cincinnati.

The thirty days for the recruiting of 1,800 men from Chicago came to an end yesterday, 300 short of the mark. Lieut. Stevens will continue the work.

"Although the quota has not quite been reached," he said, "Chicago's response, on the whole, has been good. The navy is practically filled to its authorized strength. I expect to receive today orders covering the procedure to be taken in increasing the strength to the 150,000 now asked for."

Vice Admiral P. L. A. Chocheprat and M. Simon, members of the commission, were the guests of Capt. W. A. Moffett at the Great Lakes training station in the morning. Both complimented the American "jackies."

FRENCH PARTY TO HONOR LINCOLN

Springfield, Ill., May 5.—[Special.]—The French commission will arrive in Springfield some time Monday afternoon, it was announced today. From the train the commissioners will be driven directly to Oak Ridge cemetery, where a wreath will be placed upon the tomb of Lincoln.

Returning from the cemetery the commission, in charge of the reception committee headed by Gov. Lowden and the members of the joint committee of senate and house, will proceed to the state capitol, where the two branches of the general assembly will be in joint session.

The party will leave Springfield immediately after the joint session, the entire visit lasting about one hour.

BALFOUR GIVEN WILD APPLAUSE IN HOUSE TALK

President Sits in Gallery to Hear Address by British Leader.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—The house of representatives was the scene of a great outbreak of patriotism and enthusiasm today when A. J. Balfour, former British premier, now head of the mission in this country, appeared to address the members by invitation. He was the first British official to speak in the house in American history.

From the time that Speaker Clark introduced Mr. Balfour to the members until the noted Briton ended his short address the members of the house, the crowded galleries, and the justices of the Supreme court, who were present by special invitation, were in constant applause, at times breaking forth into cheers.

The whole house rose to its feet and shouted when Mr. Balfour said that the democratic governments of the world were fighting for existence and freedom, and that they would not cease until victory had been won, and predicted that the cause of democracy "surely shall conquer."

Surprise by President.

Just before the arrival of the Balfour party in the chamber, one of the members chanced to glance at the executive section of the gallery. There sat the president with Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. McAdoo. The party had slipped in unannounced, breaking precedent.

The member gazed for a moment and then began to applaud. Others followed his gaze and then joined in the applause which turned into cheers until the president arose and stood for a few minutes during the entry of the Balfour party from the speaker's room. Then Mr. Wilson seated himself to listen to Mr. Balfour's talk. Time after time during the address he was seen to applaud.

Address Made by Balfour.

Mr. Balfour's address was delivered in a slow, quiet manner.

"Will you permit me on behalf of my friends and myself," he said, "to offer you my deepest and sincerest thanks for the rare and valued honor which you have done us by receiving us here today? We all feel the greatness of this honor, but I think to none of us can it come home so closely as to one who, like myself, has been for forty-three years in the service of a free assembly like your own.

"I rejoice to think that a member, a very old member, I am sorry to say, of the British house of commons has been received here today by this great sister assembly with such kindness as you have shown to me and to my friends.

"Ladies and gentlemen, these two assemblies are the greatest and the oldest of the free assemblies now governing great nations in the world.

"All of the free assemblies now to be found governing the great nations of the earth have been modeled either upon your practice or upon ours or upon both combined.

Free People Draw Together.

"Mr. Speaker, the compliment paid to the mission from Great Britain by such an assembly and upon such an occasion is one not one of us is ever likely to forget, but there is something, after all, even deeper and more significant in the circumstances under which I now have the honor to address you than any which arise out of the interchange of courtesies, however sincere, between two great and friendly nations.

"We all, I think, feel instinctively that this is one of the great moments in the history of the world, and that what is happening on both sides of the Atlantic represents the drawing together of great and free peoples for mutual protection against the aggression of military despotism.

"I am not one of those—none of you are among those—who are such bad democrats as to say that democracies make no mistakes. All free assemblies have made blunders; sometimes they have committed crimes. Why is it then that we look forward to the spirit of free institutions, and especially among our present enemies, as one of the greatest guarantees of the future peace of the world? I will say to you, gentlemen, how it seems to me.

Effect of Despotism.

"It is quite true that the people and the representatives of the people may be betrayed by some momentary gust of passion into a policy which they ultimately deplore, but it is only a military despotism of the German type that can, through generations, if need be, pursue steadily, remorselessly, unscrupulously, and appallingly the object of dominating the civilization of mankind.

"And, mark you, this evil, this menace under which we are now suffering is not one which diminishes with the growth of knowledge and progress of material civilization, but on the contrary it increases with them.

"When I was young we used to flatter ourselves that progress inevitably meant peace and that growth of knowledge was always accompanied as its natural fruit by the growth of good will among the nations of the earth. Unhappily we know better now and we know there is such a thing in the world as a power which can with unvarying persistence focus all the resources of knowledge and of civilization into the one great task of making itself the moral and material master of the world.

"It is against that danger that we, the free peoples of western civilization, have banded ourselves together."

Substations for Tax Collection Grow Popular

The amount of taxes collected in the twenty-two substations during the month of April this year exceeded that received at the same stations in two months last year, according to the statement of County Treasurer Henry Stuckart yesterday. Last year $2,994,234 was collected in two months. This year in one month $3,459,514 was collected.

BALFOUR URGES U. S. SEND FORCE TO FRANCE SOON

Britain Joins in Hope of Seeing America on Battlefield.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—Great Britain formally joined France today in expressing the hope that an American expeditionary force soon will take its place on the western front in Europe.

Foreign Secretary Balfour told the council of national defense that the British would be overjoyed to welcome an American force in France and that its early dispatch could not but have an enormous psychological effect both on the allies and on their enemies.

Today's meeting brought together for the first time formal conferences of the British and American military officials, and there was a preliminary study of the whole general situation under the five heads of intelligence work, munitions, material, hospitals, and the expeditionary force question.

Joint Committees Are Appointed.

Five joint committees were appointed to work out a series of recommendations on these subjects.

At the meeting the officials summarized the results of the individual conferences held daily since the British mission arrived and laid the ground work for general discussions of all phases of military coöperation. While no formal announcement was made, the impression grew after the meeting that an American army will go to the western front as soon as possible.

The committee on intelligence is expected to take up censorship, espionage, and related subjects. It is realized that the United States faces a great problem in maintaining liberty of the press without disclosing military secrets, and it is thought the experience of the British will be of value.

Will Enlarge Munitions Output.

The munitions committee will face the task of enlarging the output of munitions in this country, so as to fully meet America's new needs without breaking up the vital flow to Europe.

A plan of apportioning American supplies among the allies and the maintenance of a proper balance between munitions, food, and other shipments is the first thing to be worked out by the trade committees. The allies will present an outline of their needs, and the Americans will submit a list giving the amounts this country can furnish.

'War Will Last Till Fleets Destroy German Bases'

The war will be prolonged until the allied fleets can destroy the German bases at Helgoland and the Kiel canal, in the opinion of Rear Admiral Albert Ross, who is aiding Capt. W. A. Moffett at the Great Lakes training station.

"The war will continue until the American fleet is raised to fighting strength," said Admiral Ross. "Then by a combined attack on the two German bases outside of the range of their own guns Germany can be crushed. To bring it about we must begin making guns outranging those of the Germans."

BOXES ONLY, FOR JOFFRE MEETING, OFFICIALLY SOLD

Committee Declares It Tried to Guard Tickets from Scalpers.

The following statement was given out yesterday by the City of Chicago committee for the reception of the French commission, being signed by Cyrus H. McCormick, chairman, and Gordon A. Ramsay, secretary:

"Regarding the report in the newspapers that boxes or seats for the Auditorium meeting Friday night, May 4, were sold through theater ticket scalpers, the reception committee desires to state that it has no knowledge of any such transaction.

"The expenses of the reception were partially met by the sale of boxes for the Auditorium meeting at $100 each. Except for eight boxes which were allotted to public officials, all the boxes were sold by Richard T. Crane Jr., who has a list of the purchasers, all of them representative citizens.

Seats Carefully Distributed.

"Seats other than those in the boxes were distributed by H. C. Edmunds, vice president of the Northern Trust company, who gave them out as equitably as possible through the foreign consulates and public and civic organizations.

"It is not conceivable that any of the citizens who purchased boxes would permit them to be disposed of by ticket speculators, nor does the committee believe that any of the organizations or individuals to whom seats in the body of the house were allotted would countenance any such traffic in seats as has been reported.

"It should be borne in mind that there were less than four thousand seats to be distributed and that the committee received many times that number of requests for seats from individuals and organizations."

More Tickets Sold.

Tickets for the demonstration in honor of the French visitors were on sale in Chicago again yesterday.

Ernie Young, ticket broker in the Union hotel lobby, admitted he had sold nine tickets. Five of the seats were for the Auditorium meeting and four for the Dexter pavilion demonstration. Waterfall's agency in the Palmer house disposed of eight tickets, according to the manager.

Mr. Young produced his ledger and showed a TRIBUNE reporter his profits on the sale of the tickets—$25. "I bought the tickets from half a dozen persons," said Mr. Young. For most of them I paid $2 apiece. I sold them for $3."

Cripple's Body Found in River.

The body of an unidentified man, whose left leg was off at the knee, about 35 years old, was taken from the south branch of the river yesterday.

JEWS IN FEAR

Palestinian Colonists May Suffer Fate of Armenian Christians, It Is Rumored.

Well authenticated report Jewish massacre threatened in Palestine. Can you intervene through foreign lodges or otherwise?

GILBERT, President,
76 Wardour street, London.

Mr. Kraus asked Secretary Lansing to send urgent messages to national presidents of the order in Norway, Germany, and Austria requesting them to petition their respective governments to call the attention of the Turkish government to the report.

"I am satisfied that there is truth to the report or the cablegram would not have been sent," Mr. Kraus said. "I do not believe, however, that the Turkish government will permit a massacre, but the situation is so serious that I cannot ignore it."

COLLEGE HEADS BEND ENERGIES TO HELP NATION

Washington, D. C., May 5.—Administrative officials of 180 leading institutions of learning in the United States conferred today with a committee of the advisory national defense commission and arranged machinery for coöperation with the government during the war.

Secretary Baker addressed the conference, pointing out that important defense work can be done by the schools of the country, and the educators adopted resolutions embodying plans for active service.

In a statement of principles adopted the educators went on record as believing that all colleges and universities should so modify their calendars and curricula as to comply fully with the present needs of the nation and to utilize most profitably the time of the students, institutional plants, forces, and equipments.

As an emergency measure it was suggested that colleges consider dividing the college year into four quarters of approximately twelve weeks each, and that where necessary courses be repeated at least twice each year.

Plan Colony of Workers at Bethlehem Steel Plant

Baltimore, Md., May 5.—[Special.]—Charles M. Schwab has launched the Dundalk company, a $5,100,000 corporation, to develop hundreds of acres of land adjacent to Sparrows Point and the local branch of the Bethlehem Steel company. A large part of the development will be used in connection with future homes for the thousands of employés of the steel company which will ultimately be employed here.

DEVICE WRAPS U-BOAT CHASERS IN MAGIC CLOAK

Invention to Be Tried Out by Navy Chief Here Tuesday.

L. A. Headen, 424 East Thirty-seventh street, has offered to the United States government a device which he says will make submarine chasers invisible at any distance more than fifty feet.

He had a conference yesterday with Capt. W. A. Moffett, commandant of the Great Lakes Training station, and arrangements were made to give the appliance a practical test on Tuesday morning. It causes a ship to merge apparently with the water.

Mr. Headen went to Washington the first of last week with his backers, George F. Leibrandt, president of the Lincoln State bank, and Joseph Jordan, 3106 South Park avenue. There he laid his plan before Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Capt. Frank Smith of the submarine board. Capt. Smith said he believed the device feasible.

Device Is Simple.

The device is what might be termed absurdly simple, but to an unscientific mind would appear to be effective for its purpose. Mr. Headen has conducted experiments for several weeks on the lake near Chicago. A fourteen foot boat moored 200 feet from shore, he and his friends declare, was absolutely invisible to spectators, and boats sent out to hunt for it were unable to find it.

Mr. Headen says he can equip a submarine with the same device which would make it invisible to aeroplanes.

Torpedo Wall for Ships.

James J. Russell, 1654 Monadnock building, has offered to the navy department a device planned to guard a ship from torpedoes fired by submarines.

Mr. Russell proposes to "fence in" ocean vessels by steel plates, twenty feet long, ten feet deep, and one-eighth of an inch thick, floated by means of airtight narrow barges and linked together to a length of 500 feet, more or less, and towed by a small high power torpedo boat.

ALLIED CHIEFS AGREED ON NEW PROGRAM OF WAR

High Officials of Four Nations Lay Plans for the Future.

PARIS, May 5.—The highest officials—civil, military, and naval—of Great Britain and France today ended a four day conference on the war situation.

A full discussion of all features of the situation was held and a semi-official report, issued tonight, says a complete accord was reached.

Those who took part in the conference were:

FOR ENGLAND — Premier Lloyd George, Sir John Jellicoe, first sea lord of the admiralty; Gen. Robertson, chief of staff of the army; Lord Robert Cecil, minister of blockade and acting foreign minister in Arthur Balfour's absence in the United States.

FOR FRANCE—Gen. Petain, chief of staff of the French army; Gen. Nivelle, generalissimo of the army; Minister of War Painleve, Minister of Marine Lacaze, Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs Ribot, Admiral De Bon, chief of the naval staff; M. Violette, food controller, and Minister of Commerce Clementel.

The Italian ambassador, Marquis Raggi, and A. P. Jswolski, the Russian ambassador, also were present.

RIBOT SEES VICTORY NEAR.

PARIS, May 5.—Alexandre Ribot, the French premier, in addressing today representatives of the British, French, and Italian parliaments attending an international congress here, referred to the significance of the gathering of delegates from countries representing liberal ideas and expressed the hope that the United States, Russia, and other entente allies would soon join in the manifestations of the allies' solidarity. Referring to the status of the war today, he said:

"While the war is unfinished, it is approaching its dénouement. The enemy still is struggling desperately, but we can feel his gradual exhaustion and discouragement. A calm examination of the military situation shows what a great change to our advantage has been wrought within a year. Then we were meeting the German offensive by the valor of our forces at Verdun. Now it is no longer they but we who are attacking. We are forcing the enemy to recoil. More than 40,000 prisoners and 500 cannon taken in the last few weeks attest the magnitude of our success and the extent of the enemy's defeat.

Says U. S. Assures Victory.

"The entrance of the United States into the war confirms our certainty of final victory. Germany feels it, and that is why she multiplies her maneuvers to obtain immediate peace. Certainly we wish peace as much as any one, but we do not want a peace which leaves us the same problems that brought on this war and which this war should forever settle. We have accomplished so many sacrifices in order that our children may not have to begin the same struggle again tomorrow. If so many of our children have fallen, it is for the deliverance of the world.

"Certainly we have no thought of oppressing any people or a nationality, even that of our enemies of today. But can we be blamed for wishing to destroy that oppression which has weighed so long upon the world and for wishing also guarantees with restitution and compensation and chastisement for the authors of crimes against humanity?

Cites Unrest in Germany.

"While our enemies have troubles which they seek to conceal within their frontiers, tranquillity prevails among us and among our allies. In the conscience of our working people there is one dominating purpose—to establish the right to live in a free country beyond the shadow of any tyranny."

Premier Ribot closed with an eloquent tribute to the United States on behalf of the united parliamentarians, saying:

"I am sure I interpret your feelings in addressing our cordial homage to the latest one who has come among us and whose disinterested concourse at this moment is so precious—to the republic of the United States."

WAR'S MOVES ON VARIOUS FRONTS OFFICIALLY TOLD

French and British Keep Up Gigantic Offensive on Western Line.

FRENCH FRONT

FRENCH.

PARIS, May 5.—Our operations continued to develop today in conjunction with those of the British armies in the region northeast of Soissons and the Chemins-des-Dames. Notwithstanding the desperate resistance of the Germans, who have thrown without number into the struggle important contingents, our troops gained a brilliant success.

Southeast of Vauxaillon we attacked a salient in the Hindenburg line and carried German positions on a front of about six kilometers, one part of the line extending from the Moisy farm to the Moulin de Laffaux and the other east of Moulin, where we advanced our lines as far as the immediate vicinity of the road from Soissons to Laon, north of Nanteuil-la-Fosse and Sancy.

The enemy suffered exceptionally heavy losses in the course of his counter attacks, which he has multiplied in this region and which have been broken down under our artillery and machine gun fire.

German columns observed on the march near Chermizy and Chamouille were caught by the fire of our heavy batteries and dispersed.

In the region of the Chemin-des-Dames our infantry occupied the entire plateau from east of Cerny en Laonnois to east of Craonne, notwithstanding the resistance and counter attacks of the enemy and have reached the hills which dominate the Ailette valley, south of Ailles and the Vauclerc forest.

The number of prisoners counted during the course of the day exceeds 4,300, which may be added to the 1,000 taken yesterday.

Yesterday south of the Oise a German attack on our small posts on the southwestern edge of the upper forest of Coucy was defeated by our artillery. On the Chemin-des-Dames there was active artillery fighting during the night on the front between Braye-en-Lannois and Hurtebise.

North of the Aisne the Germans made a violent counter attack on the village of Craonne and the positions captured by us yesterday. All the enemy's efforts came to naught in the face of the resistance of our infantry, machine guns, and artillery, and heavy losses were inflicted on the Germans. At no point were they able to approach our lines. The number of prisoners taken by us in this region reached 225, of whom nine are officers. One of the officers is a battalion commander and one is an observation officer of artillery.

Southeast of Berry-au-Bac the Germans attempted in a strong attack last evening to capture positions east of Hill 108. They were repulsed after an engagement and our line was maintained intact.

Information now at hand shows that after our attack yesterday northwest of Reims the enemy made violent counter attacks. The fighting was particularly severe. Our troops repulsed several counter attacks made with great numbers of men.

In the evening important German reserves were thrown into the battle and, debouching from Aguilcourt, made a powerful effort without success. Our heavy guns and field batteries broke up the attack, which cost the enemy large losses. We identified two new divisions on this part of the front. Prisoners taken in this region yesterday and actually counted number 700, to which must be added the 225 mentioned as having been taken in another region.

In the Champagne, after heavy artillery fighting, a violent engagement occurred late yesterday in the region of Mont Carnillet. We made progress east of this hill and on the slopes north of Mont Blond. The enemy made several violent attacks with troops belonging to two fresh divisions which recently arrived on this front. These efforts were checked by our fire, and 100 prisoners, of whom six are officers, remained in our hands. This brings up to more than 1,000 the number of prisoners taken yesterday between Auberive and Navarin farm, and four attacks by the enemy were without success for him.

BRITISH.

LONDON, May 5.—There is nothing of special importance to report from the battle front.

AVIATION.

The fighting in the air yesterday again resulted in our favor. Five German machines were brought down by our airplanes and four others were driven down out of control, in addition to one enemy machine shot down by our anti-aircraft guns. Two of our airplanes are missing.

Last night we made a successful raid east of Le Verguire, northwest of St. Quentin, where we captured a few prisoners and made progress north of Havrincourt and in the neighborhood of Fresnoy.

The enemy made three further counter attacks during the night upon our new positions in the Hindenburg line. The first of his attempts was broken up by our artillery fire; the second and third were driven off by our infantry after sharp fighting.

Hostile raiding parties were successfully repulsed early this morning in the neighborhood of Messages.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, May 5.—Western theater: Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria—After the sanguinary breaking down of British attacks on the Arras front, the development of infantry engagements yesterday was limited to the neighborhood of Bullecourt.

On both sides of the village the British attacks in dense masses were repulsed with severe losses. Weak advances near Lens and Fresnoy failed.

The number of prisoners has increased to ten British officers and 1,225 men. At least thirty-five machine guns were captured.

In the victorious repulse of the fourth British attempt to break through, the troops of the Prussian guard and those from Bavaria, Wurtemberg, Saxony and Baden took an especially prominent part, as also did regiments from the provinces of eastern Prussia, Posen, Silesia, Hanover and the Rhineland.

North of St. Quentin engagements resulted in our favor.

Front of the German crown prince—On the Aisne front the artillery battle continues with a tremendous expenditure of ammunition. Strong enemy reconnoitering advances have been repulsed in many places. Fights have developed for the possession of Wintenburg, west of Craonne, but have not yet been concluded.

After a lengthy and most profuse artillery fire attacks made by four French divisions between the Aisne and Brimont broke down. As proved by papers captured, the objective of the attack lay several kilometers behind our foremost line. Thanks to our stout resistance, the enemy succeeded in gaining only a footing in a protruding salient of a front trench.

East of Neuville the French, who temporarily penetrated our position, were driven out with the loss of 500 prisoners and several machine guns. Renewed attacks south of the Aisne during the evening were unable to turn the defeat.

North of Prosnes (Champagne) renewed French attempts by several divisions with the object of taking possession of our positions on the heights there failed. The French paid with heaviest losses for their temporary small gains of terrain to the southeast of Nauroy. Counter attacks put our infantry again in complete possession of their former line. More than 100 prisoners were brought in.

Front of Duke Albrecht of Wurttemburg—Apart from reconnoitering activity by both sides there were no events of importance.

AVIATION.

The enemy yesterday lost seven airplanes and one captive balloon. By an aerial attack on Ostend a large number of Belgians were killed and wounded. No military damage was done.

BELGIUM.

PARIS, May 5.—The activity of the artillery was relatively feeble today. In the neighborhood of Steenstraete bomb fighting was resumed.

ITALIAN FRONT

ITALIAN.

ROME, May 5.—In the Astico basin there were lively artillery actions. Our fire caused a big explosion on the slopes of Mont Seluggio, while the enemy hit a medical post, notwithstanding that it bore the Geneva cross visibly displayed.

On the Carnia front there were artillery duels from the Upper Degano to the head of the Chiasso torrent. In the Gortiz area the hostile artillery fire which lately has been active was much less aggressive yesterday.

On the Carso, after a violent preparatory bombardment, enemy detachments attacked our advanced lines on Dosso Faiti and were repulsed with considerable loss.

AVIATION.

During the night four hostile airplanes dropped bombs on Goritz. There were no casualties and no damage was caused.

MACEDONIAN FRONT

FRENCH.

PARIS, May 5.—There was moderate artillery activity along the whole front. Patrol engagements took place in the Italian sector. An enemy depot at Cestovo was bombarded by British airplanes.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, May 5.—In the Cerna bend west of Lake Doiran and on the Struma lowland the artillery activity revived at intervals during the day.

RUSSIAN FRONT

GERMAN.

BERLIN, May 5.—A lively Russian fire between Kovel and Stanislau caused a corresponding retaliatory fire.

SUPPLEMENTARY

BERLIN, May 5.—A new battle is in progress on the heights north of the Aisne.

BRITISH AND FRENCH JOINT OFFENSIVE

Where Gen. Haig and Gen. Nivelle Are Attacking the Wotan Line in Effort to Break Von Hindenburg's New Defensive Positions.

The past week witnessed the renewal of the British and and French offensive on the west front from the Champagne country to north of Arras. While no extensive gains were reported, the Germans have been forced out of important positions on both the southern end of the Wotan line in the region of Soissons and Reims and on the northern flank east of Arras.

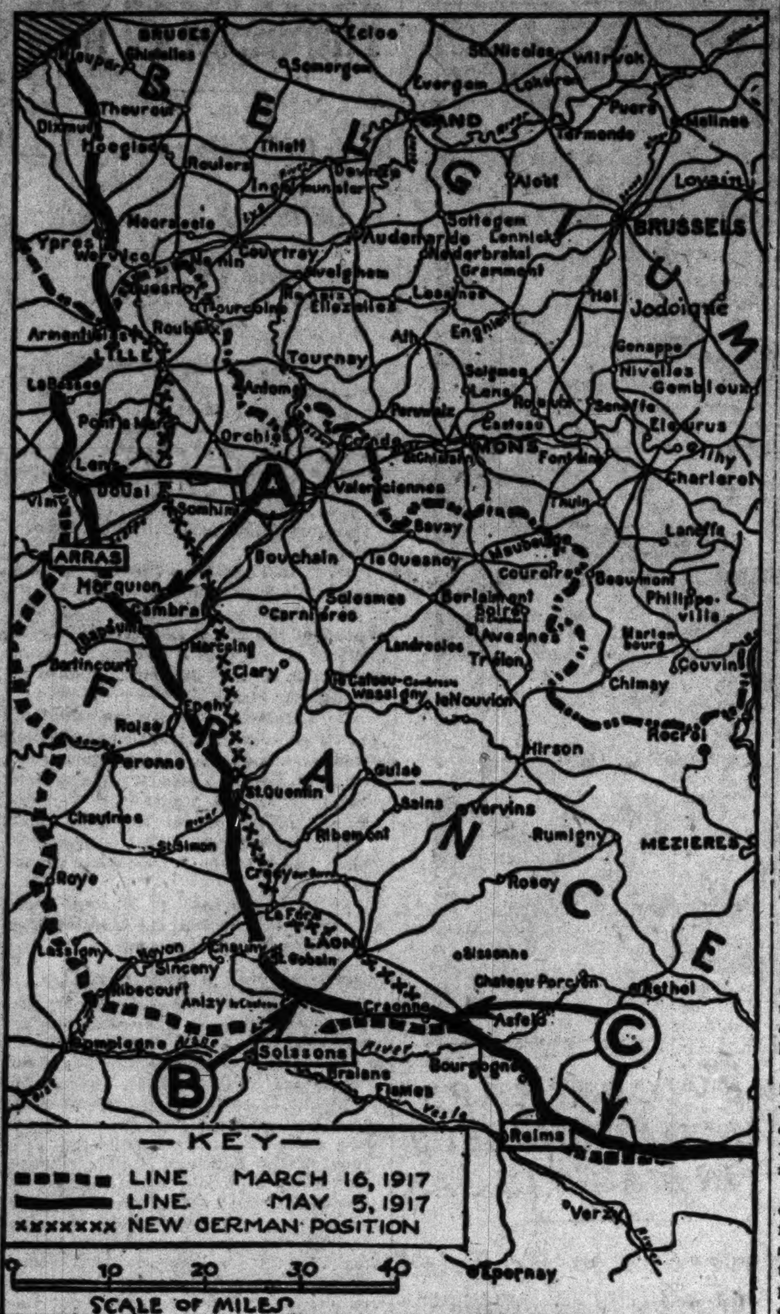
The British began their renewed push from the Vimy ridge south to Roeux, capturing 1,900 prisoners Sunday and Monday and some first line German positions. Berlin disputed these claims, estimating the British losses at 6,000 casualties and 1,000 prisoners taken by the Germans.

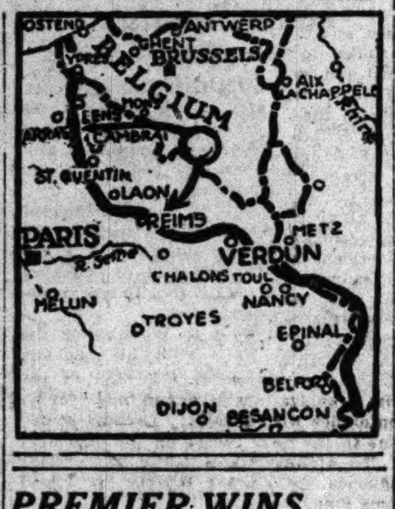
Two days later, after an intense bombardment, Gen. Haig again threw his infantry forward at Arras on a ten mile front, (A) from Fresnoy on the north to Queant on the south. In these attacks Fresnoy, Roeux, Cherisy, and Bullecourt were taken, though terrific counter attacks by the Germans forced the British to yield some of the ground gained.

While Haig was pounding the northern end the French attacked in the region of Reims (C): First, to the east of the cathedral city Gen. Nivelle smashed ahead at Moronvilliers on Monday, followed the next day by an attack along the Chemin-des-Dames before Craonne, northwest of Reims. These alternating attacks have resulted in gradually unloosening the Teuton hold on the lines dominating the city.

Aside from the strategic importance of smashing the German salient that swings south of the Aisne before Reims it is the prayer of all France to save the ruins of the cathedral from further demolition by the German guns.

The week closed with the French in possession of Craonne and smashing ahead on the road from Soissons to Laoan (B) on a four mile front. By this advance Gen. Nivelle's forces now control the entire ridge of hills dominating the Ailette river valley.





FACTIONS UNITE TO END TROUBLE FOR NEW RUSSIA

Men Who Led Protest Order Followers to Obey National Law.

PETROGRAD, via London, May 5.—In consequence of the disorders which occurred yesterday in Petrograd the executive committee of the council of workmen's and soldiers' delegates has decided to forbid all public meetings and demonstrations for the next two days.

Any one who incites the people to take part in any demonstration or fires a shot will be regarded as a traitor to the caunse of the revolution. The committee will submit to the council for investigation the causes leading to the firing of shots in the streets of Petrograd yesterday.

The executive committee has placarded the streets with a proclamation appealing to the people to maintain order and discipline and calling upon the soldiers not to go out carrying arms and to obey only orders bearing the official signature of the executive council. The proclamation also appeals to the workmen and soldiers not to take part in public meetings or demonstrations while carrying arms.

Protestants Still Firm.

The sitting of the grand council ended late last night after the delegates had discussed a supplementary communication from the provisional government explaining the note of May 1 to the allies.

The council passed a resolution declaring that the government's new note, which it will send to the allies, puts an end to all interpretations of the note of May 1, contrary to the interests and aims of the revolutionary democracy.

Another resolution was adopted declaring that the policy of annexation for the first time had been made the subject of international discussions and this fact should be considered an important victory for democracy. The resolution concluded:

"The executive committee, while asserting its unalterable determination not to make peace except on these conditions, appeals to the entire revolutionary democracy of Russia to rally around the council of workmen's and soldiers' delegates and declares its firm assurance that the peoples of all the belligerent countries will be able to overcome the resistance of their governments and force them to enter upon negotiations for peace on the basis of renunciation of all annexations and indemnities.

Explain May Day Note.

The explanation of the note of May 1 which the provisional government gave to the council and which will be forwarded to the allied governments follows:

"This note, in speaking of a decisive victory, had in view a solution of the problems which were mentioned in the communication of April 9 and which was thus specified:

"'The government deems it to be its right and duty to declare now that free Russia does not aim at the domination of other nations or at depriving them of their national patrimony or at occupying by force foreign territories, but that its object is to establish a durable peace on the basis of the rights of nations to decide their own destiny. The Russian nation does not lust after the strengthening of its power abroad at the expense of other nations; its aim is not to subjugate or humiliate anyone.'

"In referring to the 'penalties and guarantees' essential to a durable peace the provisional government had in view the reduction of armaments and the establishment fo international tribunals."

22,000 Carpenters Aid Draft.

The District Council of Carpenters of Chicago, which numbers 22,000 members, met at 73 West Randolph street yesterday and passed resolutions instructing its members to aid the government in every way in registering citizens under the draft system.

FRENCH BREAK GERMAN LINE ON FOUR MILE FRONT

Take 4,300 Enemy in Most Vicious Fight of Great War.

division—about 15,000 men. On Friday, however, Von Hindenburg put five divisions there. The defenders also poured an artillery and machine gun fire on the French of an intensity heretofore unapproached, and hardly a minute of the day went by that they did not loose poisoning gas.

"It was a prodigality of sacrifice of human life, in shelling and gas that gave excellent proof of German desperation.

"In this Friday's advance, which I witnessed, French officers learned later from their German prisoners that Von Hindenburg told his five divisions holding the first line trenches that they must stop the French 'regardless of cost.'

"But not even the density of this human barrier stopped the advance."

Deadlock Near Arras.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 5.—Throughout the day the British and Germans struggled and pushed back and forth. Positions were taken and retaken time after time. The British managed to get hold in Bullecourt during the night by occupying several houses in the southeast corner. Bombing parties slipped out in the darkness, and twisting through the streets and ruins peppered the Germans in other houses, or, penetrating still farther, tried hand grenade treatment on the front and the supporting trenches of the Hindenburg line itself—running to the east of the town.

This sort of fighting continued all through the night, the British bombers meeting German bombers, man meeting man, with the butts of rifles and even fists called into play.

Germans Regain Bullecourt.

As dawn came the Germans sallied out with stronger forces. The understanding this afternoon at headquarters was that the Germans had succeeded in reoccupying the whole of Bullecourt—although the British still clung tenaciously to their posts on three sides of the town.

Around Fresnoy, the Canadians stood off all further counter attacks of the same violent sort that have been directed against them for twenty-four hours.

New posts were taken late today by the British to the southwest of Oppy Wood—and maintained against violent attacks.

Roads Begin to Divert Trains to War Service

New York, May 5.—[Special.]—In conformity with plans of the government to conserve the resources of the country's railroads for the transportation of necessary supplies the Erie railroad, it was announced tonight, will discontinue at least eighty-two of its passenger trains in the New York suburban service, beginning Sunday, May 13. The trains and crews thus relieved will be available for purposes of military transportation.

Seek Persian Republic After Revolt in Russia

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Diplomatic dispatches received here today state that, as a result of the Russian revolution, democrats of Persia have started an agitation for establishment of a republic in that country. The centers of the movement appear to be at Tabriz and Teheran.

PREMIER WINS IN AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 5.—Early returns from today's elections indicate that the Nationalists, of which Premier Hughes is the leader, have won several seats in the lower house and are assured of a majority there. The complexion of the senate has not been determined by the first returns. Premier Hughes was reëlected to the house.

The campaign previous to the elections was the most bitter in a decade. Officials of the Labor party, of which Premier Hughes formerly was leader, split recently on the question of conscription, which Hughes strongly advocated and the party machine disowned him.

The premier, with some other Laborites, who still supported him, formed a coalition with the Liberal party, whose leader is Frank Cook, and took for their slogan the phrase, "Win the war."

PEACE TERMS TO BE OUTLINED BY GERMANY SOON

Hollweg to Make Plainer Statement—Reichstag May Curb Kaiser.

COPENHAGEN, May 5.—A plainer declaration of Germany's peace conditions will be made by Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg within a fortnight. Dr. Karl Helfferich, the vice chancellor, announced yesterday that an answer would be made within this time by the chancellor to the interpellations presented by the Conservatives and the Socialists. The chancellor's decision to define Germany's aims was the result of pressure exerted from all sides.

May Curb Power of Kaiser.

AMSTERDAM, May 5.—A restriction of the power of the emperor of Germany has been decided on by the constitution committee of the reichstag, according to a dispatch from Berlin. The committee has decided to alter Article XVII. of the imperial constitution, as follows:

"Ordinances and decrees of the kaiser will be issued in the name of the empire and will require for validity the counter signature of the imperial chancellor or his representative, who thereby assumes responsibility to the reichstag."

The decision of the committee was in accordance with a joint proposal by the Centrists, National Liberals, and the Progressives. Four Conservative members voted against the change.

The committee also adopted a resolution by the same proposers demanding a bill fixing the chancellor's responsibility for any violation of his official duty and the verification of such violation by a senate tribunal.

No Vote on War and Peace.

The constitution committee has rejected Dr. Bernstein's proposals requiring the approval of the reichstag when treaties are being inaugurated and concluded, when war is declared and when peace agreements are being settled, the Berlin dispatches state. The committee also has rejected the proposal to introduce a bill giving the reichstag power to dismiss the chancellor when it wishes, the advices add.

In the course of the second reading of the army estimates in the reichstag, a Berlin telegram reports, Lieut. Gen. von Stein, Prussian minister of war, said:

"The army fighting at the front is achieving a decision with unparalleled bravery, devotion, and loyalty. We here can hardly appraise adequately the gigantic services of every one, from the highest to the lowest at the front.

"I do not foster the hope that international peace will prevail after the war. So long as the interests of states clash there will be war. The prospects for an uninterrupted peace are not very brilliant when two great nations which previously did not think of maintaining big armies are beginning to create them."

Hollweg to Report Tuesday.

BERLIN, May 5.—The committee on foreign affairs of the federal diet is expected to meet Tuesday for the purpose of receiving a statement from Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor, on the military, political, and economic situation.

It is predicted that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg's announcement will coincide with the reply he will make to the interpellations of the Conservatives and Social Democrats regarding Germany's war aims.

ENGLAND GETS MORE MILLIONS

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—The United States will turn over immediately to the British government $25,000,000 in credits to be used for purchase of supplies in this country in addition to the $200,000,000 loan made to England last week.

This was announced by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo after a conference today with Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador; Sir Hardman Lever of the British war commission, and Sir Richard Crawford.

The money to cover the latest credit order was derived from short term treasury certificates of indebtedness.

France, it was announced, will be granted a loan of $100,000,000 within the next few days.

German Reservist Held on Guardsman's Charge

Albert Waulter, who admits that he is a German reservist, was arrested yesterday at the Acme hotel, 811 South State street, on complaint of Harry Morton, formerly a member of the Second Wisconsin infantry. According to Morton, the reservist has been criticizing President Wilson and the policies of the government with a freedom not contemplated by the limits of constitutional free speech and has attempted to persuade residents of the Acme hotel to join him in the destruction of munition plants in and near Chicago.

May Compromise on Age Limit of 30 in Army Bill

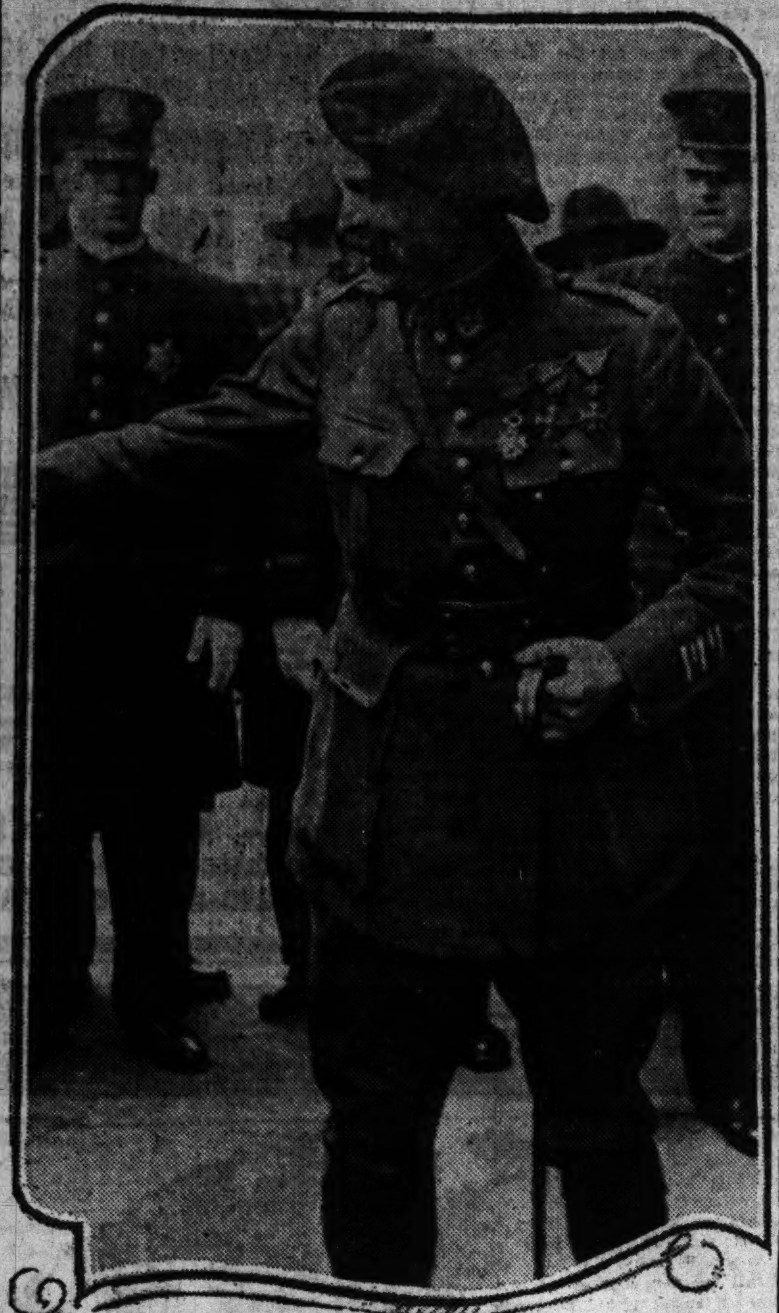
Washington, D. C., May 5.—Two meetings today of senate and house conferees of the army draft bill failed to bring an agreement on any of the important differences. The conferees discussed briefly the maximum age for conscription, fixed in the house bill at 40 and in the senate bill at 27 years. It is the general belief that a compromise making the maximum not over 30 years eventually will be reached.

Study Telegraphy, Appeal to Young Men and Women

Washington, D. C., May 5.—An appeal to young men and women to take up telegraphy was issued tonight by the war department, which announced that the Western Union Telegraph company has agreed to undertake the training of 1,000 telegraphers to recruit the signal corps and take the places of commercial operators called to the colors.

"THE BLUE DEVIL"

Col. Fabry, with Twenty-seven Wounds, Still "Full of Pep"; Boasts He Is "Half American" Because of His Wooden Leg, Made in U. S. A.



LIEUT.-COL. FABRY.

CLAD in the sea blue uniform of a colonel of Alpine chasseurs, Lieut. Col. Jean Fabry, "the Blue Devil of France," watched the crowds as they cheered and his hand came to a rigid military salute. Col. Fabry is one of the popular heroes in France, as he has seen as much active service as any one man in the French army.

As a commander he led his men in the battles of the Marne, Ypres, Dixmude, Arras, and in the Vosges; and during an assault on the heights of Reichackerkopf he lost his leg and is now wearing a wooden one. He has been wounded twenty-seven times. During the battle of the Yser with a command of 1,600 men he defended for a week a long line of defense.

"I am so glad to get to Chicago and to know that the people like us, as they have shown by this demonstration," he said Friday. "I feel that I am half American, as my wooden leg was made in the U. S. A."

"The enthusiastic greeting of you Americans is truly gratifying," he continued. Then, with traditional French gallantry, he turned to a young woman near him and said:

"Ah, and it is also affecting my heart!"

11 LADS QUALIFY FOR M'CORMICK ANNAPOLIS POST

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Eleven Illinois boys have qualified to take the preliminary examination for appointment to the naval academy at Annapolis by Congressman at Large Medill McCormick. They are the following:

Charles R. Pratt, 9226 Longwood drive, Chicago; Charles M. Lucas, 457 Belmont avenue, Chicago; G. Harmon English, 216 West Elm street, Canton; Fred Borgfeldt, 1144 Wilmette avenue, Wilmette; Richard M. Carpenter, 1629 Greenleaf avenue, Chicago; J. Kelly Smith, Galesburg; Henry J. Brown, 859 Fullerton avenue, Chicago; Fred Danford, Chicago; Edwin O. Gale, Oak Park; Warren McCaffery, 5839 Indiana avenue, Chicago; Irvin Busse, 2400 Wentworth avenue, Chicago.

On May 12 these boys will take the preliminary examination. The one standing highest will be appointed by Representative McCormick.

WILSON SAYS HE SUPPORTS FREE SPEECH

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—President Wilson believes that the freedom of speech should be safeguarded.

In a letter made public toda. addressed to Herbert Croly of the New Republic, Miss Lillian D. Wald of the Henry Street settlement, New York; Judge Ben B. Lindsey, and others, who had written him regarding the threatened war time invasion of free speech and free press, the president said he agrees with them that these things should be preserved and that "at the right time" he purposes to consider means of safeguarding them.

"I do not know," the letter says, "what steps it will be practicable to take in the immediate future to safeguard the things which, I agree with you in thinking, ought in any circumstances be safeguarded, but you may be sure I have the matter in mind and will act, I hope, at the right time, in the spirit of your suggestion."

BALFOUR WON TO IRISH HOME RULE BY AMERICANS?

Will Urge Speedy Action in Parliament, Washington Belief.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—That American public opinion in favor of Irish home rule is being favorably received not only in England but by members of the British war commission, including Arthur James Balfour, the minister for foreign affairs, now in Washington, has been demonstrated here within the last few days.

As a result of the utterances of prominent Americans in public life, as well as the efforts of Irish-Americans urging immediate establishment of home rule, it is said by men in close touch with Mr. Balfour on the subject that he proposes to cable Lloyd George and the British parliament urging speedy settlement of the Irish question as an inducement to whole hearted coöperation of the United States and Great Britain in prosecution of the war.

Chicagoans at Conference.

Mr. Balfour has had several important conferences on the subject this week. In one of them Congressman Medill McCormick, Judge Marcus Kavanagh, and Judge John P. McGoorty of Chicago were most favorably impressed with the attitude of the British foreign minister on the subject. Later Mr. Balfour discussed the issue with Representative McCormick and is to see him again before leaving Washington.

In these conferences there was discussion of Representative McCormick's resolution introduced April 9, providing that the house send its greetings to the governments of allied nations, expressing the hope that peace would witness the restoration of Belgium and Serbia and the establishment of a united self-governing Ireland and Poland, and it can be stated that representatives of the British commission look upon it with favor.

Approves McCormick Move.

One of the prominent members of the British mission told Mr. McCormick that he approved his resolution most thoroughly. The state department also has had the McCormick resolution under deliberation and within a fortnight is expected to assent to a favorable report on the measure or one in terms similar thereto.

The conferences here have established the fact that the British government is anxious to have the Irish question settled as soon as possible in order to avert a threatened outbreak. Only four counties in Ireland are holding out against the settlement of the issue, Antrim, Down, Londonderry, and Armagh.

In this situation Lloyd George, it is declared, is anxious to secure American opinion, conscious of the fact that it is having a great influence upon the political leaders in these four counties.

Roosevelt Urges Home Rule.

Within the week there have been cabled to London the opinions of many prominent Americans on this subject. Copies also have been delivered to Mr. Balfour here. Among other opinions are the following:

Theodore Roosevelt—"I speak as a friend of England, a firm wellwisher to the British empire, and a man who has ardently championed the case of the allies, and has done all in his power to bring America into the war on their side—and who will now fight beside them if his government permits him.

"I most earnestly hope that full home rule will be given Ireland; home rule relatively to the empire such as Texas or Maine or Oregon now enjoys relatively to the national government at Washington."

Taft Hopes for Settlement.

William H. Taft—"We in the United States are hoping earnestly for a speedy settlement of the Irish home rule question. It would help to solidify and hearten American public sentiment in the great cause for which the democracies of Great Britain, France, Russia, Italy, and the United States are fighting shoulder to shoulder and which they must and will win."

John Purroy Mitchel—We hope not only in the interests of Ireland and of Great Britain but in the interests of the great struggle in which America now is engaged that home rule may be accorded in generous manner to Ireland.

In all about one hundred and fifty such expressions of opinion by prominent Americans have been cabled to London and submitted to Mr. Balfour. Mr. Balfour also was given a copy of THE TRIBUNE'S editorial on the subject, which he read with great interest.

A committee of Chicagoans now in Washington representing a number of Irish organizations arranged today for a conference with Secretary Lansing some time in the near future on the question of the United States using its official influence with Great Britain for Irish home rule.

They also conferred with members of the house committee on foreign affairs and senate committee on foreign relations with a view to setting a time for hearings on the subject.

"LIBERTY LOAN"

Huge Total Registered on First Two Days by Middle West.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 5.—The two day total of allotments for the liberty loan from the middle western states follows:

Illinois	$26,292,000
Indiana	9,040,000
Iowa	2,372,000
Minnesota	1,228,000
Michigan	6,274,000
Missouri	3,276,000
Nebraska	1,274,000
Ohio	22,314,000
Wisconsin	3,483,000

Estimates received during the two days from some of the chief cities of the country were as follows:

Boston	$ 6,165,000
Chicago	21,565,000
Cleveland	11,130,000
Detroit	4,650,000
Indianapolis	4,870,000
Kansas City	635,000
Los Angeles	400,000
Minneapolis	695,000
Milwaukee	2,100,000

Philadelphia	14,075,000
Pittsburgh	5,018,000
San Francisco	5,650,000

EVERY MINUTE BRINGS $500,000 TO LIBERTY LOAN

Subscriptions Pour In at Faster Rate—Estimate of Surplus Raised.

Washington, D. C., April 5.—The treasury was buried today beneath an avalanche of applications for allotments in the Liberty loan. Yesterday's pace of $20,000,000 an hour was quickened to almost $500,000 a minute, and it became apparent that the $2,000,000,000 offering would be oversubscribed beyond all previous estimates.

Compilation of the actual amount tentatively pledged today was beyond the physical possibility with the present working staff. Probably one-fourth of the offering already has been spoken for.

Officials listed applications received up to 2 p. m. and found that during the six hours of working time that had elapsed since the last compilation, the country had offered $172,983,000 additional, bringing the grand total for the two days up to $311,657,000, exclusive of thousands of replies yet to be listed.

Few of Banks Yet Heard From.

Applications listed yesterday and today represent the offerings of less than 6 per cent of the total number of financial institutions before which Secretary McAdoo placed the offering forty-eight hours ago.

Replies to the offering received today came from virtually every part of the world where the American flag is flown. Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, and the Philippines proved that they are not financial slackers by cabling substantial offers. From every state the reply was overwhelming.

New York, the country's financial stronghold, sent offerings totaling $53,000,000, bringing its two day total up to $116,890,000. Today's New York applications included two of $10,000,000 each, one of $4,000,000, one of $3,000,000, two of $2,500,000, two of $2,000,000, and six of $1,000,000.

Philadelphia offered $13,380,000, including one of $3,000,000, another of $2,000,000, and six of $1,000,000.

West Doing Its Share.

Pittsburgh sent offers totaling $4,668,000, including one of $2,000,000 and another of $1,000,000. Three applications of $1,000,000 each were received from San Francisco, making the day's total $5,650,000. Boston also sent three individual applications of $1,000,000 each among the day's offers of $4,115,000. Cleveland sent two applications of $2,000,000.

A Milwaukee bank wanted $2,000,000 and another in Detroit asked for $1,500,000. Individual offers of $1,000,000 each were received from Chicago, New Orleans, and Toledo.

Examinations Monday for Q. M. C. Enlisted Reserve

Department Quartermaster D. E. McCarthy announced yesterday that examination of men who have applied for enlistment in the quartermaster's enlisted reserve corps will begin at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning at room 567 federal building.

PRAY FOR PEACE, POPE'S DIRECT PLEA TO PEOPLE

ROME, May 5.—Pope Benedict tonight appealed to the people of belligerent nations of the world to pray for peace.

He issued a plea to invoke divine intervention for a "just peace," asking that the month of June be set aside for such appeals.

While the vatican's statement was addressed to all belligerents, it laid special emphasis on appeals to the people themselves, urging their prayers.

This is not the first time Pope Benedict has asked for peace prayers, but it is the first time he has addressed his plea to the people themselves. Previous vatican appeals have been general.

The pope's appeal is of particular interest just now, owing to the situation in Austria-Hungary. The dual monarchy is the greatest of the Catholic nations. Reports have been persistent recently that Emperor Carl is facing an overwhelming sentiment among his people for ending of the war.

On New Negro Freedom.

Dr. Hollis Burke Frissell, aged 79 years, principal of Hampton institute, member of the general educational board, will give a series of addresses beginning this morning on the new freedom of the Negro, for which Hampton is said to be responsible.

HERE'S WAY YOU MUST ENLIST IF LIABLE TO DUTY

Civilian Officials to Conduct Conscription; Army Keeps Its Hands Off.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—An official outline of the method by which military registration is to be carried out under the selective conscription bill was made public today with an appeal from the war department for the voluntary services of state, election, and other officials, in order that there will be no delay in enrolling and classifying millions of men for army duty.

Careful preparation has been made to place the whole task in the hands of civilian officials of the states and to remove every suggestion of military force in putting the measure into effect. The only function of the federal government will be supervision through the office of the provost marshal general.

War Department's Statement.

The department's statement follows:

"There was a time in the country's history when military enumerators, backed by bayonets, went out among the people to take a compulsory service census. Today under the principle of universal liability to service the execution of the law is put into the hands of the people.

"The approval of the new national army bill and the president's proclamation thereunder will be coincident. All persons within the age limits prescribed will be required to present themselves for registration at the customary voting places in the voting precincts in which they have their permanent homes, on a day which the president will announce. The probability is that from ten to fifteen days will elapse between approval of the bill and registration day.

"The governor of each state will be the chief of registration therein. The machinery of registration in each county is to be in charge of the sheriff, the county clerk, and the county physician, acting ex-officio, unless a different board shall be announced by the governor. In cities containing populations of more than 30,000 the registration will be under the control of the mayor and selected boards.

Apportionment of Registrars.

"In order that the designated county and city officials and the people generally can get a clear understanding of the census methods the following brief outline is given:

"The sheriff or other designated officials, immediately upon receiving notice from the governor, shall appoint registrars for each voting precinct.

"The proportion of registrars shall be one for each 170 persons to be registered. Each age to be registered will comprise about 1 per cent of the population. If, for instance, all men between 19 and 25 years of age, inclusive, are to be registered, the registrar would have to enroll about 7 per cent of the precinct population.

"It is desirable to accept the services of competent volunteer registrars to serve without compensation. All registrars must be sworn.

"The voting place in each precinct must be prepared for registration. Full printed instructions covering every detail of registration will be in the hands of sheriffs and mayors on the fifth day after the president's proclamation.

In Cities of Over 30,000.

"The mayor of a city containing more than 30,000 inhabitants, or the officials designated by the governor therein, shall, with approval of the governor, appoint for each ward or convenient minor subdivision containing about 30,000 people one registration board, and shall designate one officer of each board to perform duties similar to those imposed on the sheriff, as heretofore outlined. If the mayor desires, he may appoint a central board to coördinate the work of minor boards.

"On the fifth day after the president has issued his proclamation, clerks of counties and cities of over 30,000 must secure a supply of blanks and copies of the registration regulations from the sheriff or from the mayor. Absentees and the sick will apply to such clerks to have their registration cards filled out. In no case shall such persons be given registration certificates. They are to be instructed by the clerk that the burden is on them to see to it that the cards reach the registers of their home precincts by registration day.

Absentees and the Sick.

"Persons absent from their home counties may be registered by mail. If so absent a man should go to the clerk of the county where he may be staying on the sixth day after the date of the president's proclamation. If he is in a city of over 30,000 population the city clerk is the official to whom to apply. The absentee will be told how to register, but he must mail his card in time to reach his precinct by registration day.

"Persons too sick to present themselves for registration must send a competent person to the county or city clerk on the sixth day after the issuing of the proclamation. The clerk will give instructions for registration.

Colleges and Other Institutions.

"Officials of educational, charitable, and other institutions should apply for instructions to the county or city clerk on the sixth day after the date of the proclamation for instructions as to a convenient method of registration.

"The wardens of jails, penitentiaries, and reformatories should apply to the county or city clerk for instructions on the sixth day.

"Five days after the date of the president's proclamation complete regulations will be in the hands of all sheriffs and of the officials of cities of over 30,000 population.

"The president is authorized to call upon all public officers to assist in the execution of the law. The plan is, however, to rely on the people for the proper execution of the law. It is expected that patriotic citizens will offer their services free as registrars. Such services will be gratefully acknowledged. Volunteers for this service should communicate immediately with the proper official."

Church Flag Raising Today.

Five hundred members of Auburn Park Methodist Episcopal church will participate in a flag raising in front of the church this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

One million registration blanks arrived in Chicago yesterday for Mayor Thompson, who will be chief registration officer under the national military draft law passed by congress. This is a full sized sample of the registration blank which all men in the United States probably between 19 and 27 years of age will be required to fill out. Besides the questions appearing in the reproduction above, the man on the reverse side will find the queries: "Tall, medium, or short (specify which)? Slender, medium, or stout (which)? Color of eyes? Color of hair? Bald? Has person lost arm, leg, hand, foot, or both eyes, or is he otherwise disabled (specify)? Then follows: "I certify that my answers are true, that the person registered has read his own answers, that I have witnessed his signature, and that all of his answers of which I have knowledge are true, except as follows:" There follows a blank in which the registrar may make personal comment and in which he signs his name, precinct, city, or county, state, and date of registration.

PRINCE OF WALES TO WED COUSIN?

LONDON, May 5.—Prince Edward Albert of Wales, heir apparent to the British throne, has answered for himself the question whom he will marry, according to the National News, a London weekly. The News says the prince has decided he will ask for the hand of his first cousin, Princess Maud, the youngest daughter of the princess royal and sister to Princess Arthur of Connaught.

BOHEMIA UNDER MILITARY RULE

LONDON, May 5.—Martial law has been proclaimed throughout Bohemia, according to a Prague telegram to Basle newspapers transmitted by the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Geneva. All newspapers of Bohemia have suspended publication, the message adds.

LIPTON EXPECTS AMERICAN HELP TO SAVE BRITAIN

Sir Thomas Thinks Yankee Brains Will Defeat the U-Boat War.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, May 5.—Sir Thomas Lipton, who is in close touch with the problem of feeding both the military and the civil sections of the population, in an interview today said:

"There is no bluff about the scarcity of food. We are up against it, but America has come in just at the right time, and no one can make me believe America will not rise to the emergency.

"The situation is much worse than English people realize. The storehouses throughout the country are being emptied. Everything is being run bare. There is some idea here that we are not taking strong enough action to meet the crisis. That is not so. I know that the most drastic machinery is being prepared to put the whole United Kingdom on rations, and when the necessity arises the machinery will be ready.

Authorities in Earnest.

"Lord Devonport's announcement that we can get along until the middle of July may sound reassuring, but you may be certain that the government would not go to the great expense of actually setting up, as it is at this moment, a compulsory rationing department unless they seriously thought it would be criminal if we waited till the last loaf of bread was in sight and then tried to scramble together some sort of a department that would enable everybody to get their fair share of bread.

"For two reasons I personally think that we shall escape bread tickets. First and foremost, I am convinced that America's inventive genius will devise some means of putting the submarine in its place, which is at the bottom of the sea.

"Three tries for the America's cup compel me to admit that the American shipbuilders' genius is unrivalled, and I shall be surprised if a craft does not come out from Sandy Hook, on or under the water, and solve the problem of submarines.

People Curb Bread Use.

"My other reason for hoping we shall escape the bread tickets is that the people here are undoubtedly cutting down on their consumption of bread without any policeman making them do it. Unless I am much mistaken, the campaign for voluntary bread saving will have widespread results.

"But we shall still need every ship that America can build and every ounce of food she can spare. It is a good thing for us that we have such an ally to depend on. Personally, when I am in a tight corner there is no one I should rather have by my side than any man whom I had found, in sporting contests, to be an honorable but determined opponent. After my cup contests I perhaps know better than any other living Britisher how well the American man fills that bill and it is a fine thing to know that he is with us in these times.

"The American women also will have a big hand in making those sacrifices and economies upon which victory depends, and I do not want any better allies than the women of America. When our united efforts have won the war I shall have another shot at the cup."

Bernstorff to Advise Kaiser.

LONDON, May 5.—Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador to the United States, left Berlin this afternoon for German grand headquarters, where he will be received for a conference with the kaiser, according to a wireless message from Berlin tonight.

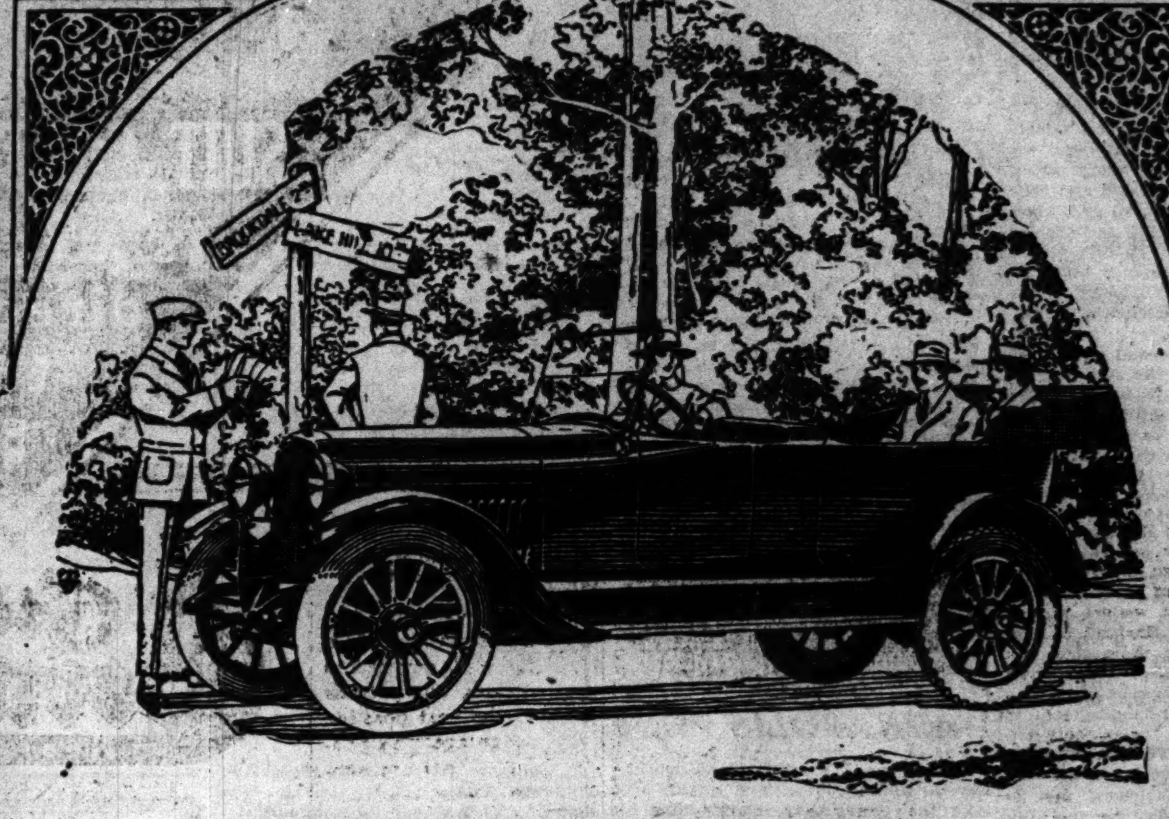
PAIGE



PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

The Final Test of Quality

It is a matter of record in fifteen of the principal cities that Paige Used Cars bring a higher price—proportionate to first cost—than any other American automobiles.

And here, after all is said and done, is the final test of quality.

A Used Car has been "through the mill." Its motor and all of its working parts have been subjected to constant strain.

Its "finish" has been knocked off—if it will come off at all.

Its gears, its rear axle and its transmission have endured the punishment of day-in and day-out pounding. All of its weakness is plainly evident and likewise its strength.

The Used Car either stands before you a broken down, dispirited "has-been," or a strong, robust champion of many battles—ready and eager for all the service that man can give it.

That, we repeat, is the final test of quality.

In this test the Paige stands supreme. After fifteen—twenty-five—thirty-five thousand miles of service, there is still enough goodness left in a Paige to command a record price in used car markets.

Frankly, now, is there anything that we could tell you about our product that would be more convincing? Could you have any better guarantee that a Paige is all that we claim it to be—all that you could possibly expect it to be?

As to the selection of a model, this is merely a matter of your own personal requirements.

In our line there are two seven-passenger cars, a five-passenger car, two roadsters and a complete line of enclosed cars.

You alone can make a choice, but please remember that you cannot make a mistake. For all these models are Paiges—blood-brothers of the same strain. That is the really important thing.

But don't lose any time. Come in and inspect the Paige line today. Let us give you the kind of demonstration that will definitely settle your automobile problem, and place your order while you can secure an early delivery.

NATION GATHERS ITS STRENGTH TO FIGHT FAMINE

"Uncle Joe" Cannon Says Corn Will Be Savior in Hunger Crisis.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—"When my friends in the south [illegible] against an embargo on cotton and at the same time ask congress to pass a law to conserve the food they will not produce but desire to consume I almost lose patience with the American sense of humor."

In these words Uncle Joe Cannon today summed up the issue of the next great legislative battle on the war program in congress. Amid warnings of an approaching national food famine, even a world food famine, the national legislature is about to wrestle with the problem of increasing and conserving the American supplies of grain and other foodstuffs.

Cannon Talks on Crops.

"Let's take the six billion crop of 1915 [illegible] the latest official figures, even though it was a banner year," said Mr. Cannon, who consented to discuss the question for THE TRIBUNE. "One-sixth of it was wheat and five-sixths grain not generally used for food. Comparatively few people in this country and fewer in Europe eat corn, or oats, or barley, or rye, and a very small percentage of those grains find their way to the table in any form, unless you refer to meat produced by feeding corn. But a great many people who eat only wheat bread are clamoring for the conservation of grain to increase the food supplies to the allies. I recently read a statement from Mr. Hoover, who had charge of relief work in Belgium, that we should conserve all our wheat for the allies because they are not acquainted with the virtues of corn, do not know how to bake corn bread and do not like it. Mr. Hoover requests us to eat corn bread and let the allies have all our wheat. That would be true benevolence, but I have seen no evidence of our people, even those who are crying loudest for the conservation of grain, following Mr. Hoover's advice and turning their appetites to corn bread for satisfaction.

Cause of Wheat Price.

"The high price of wheat is due to natural causes, a considerable reduction in the supply last year, and a great increase in the demand for abroad. The [illegible] market on other grains is helped by the hysteria of those who are demanding the conservation of grain, who are helping the grain speculators. I am reliably informed that there are many thousands of bushels of corn still on the farms in central Illinois, and the farmers are unable to secure cars to ship this corn to Chicago, let alone shipping it to the seaboard or to Europe.

"I am informed that we are exporting barley and rye to England to supply the breweries over there since the [illegible], and that there were short crops of these grains in Scotland. We exported 100,000,000 bushels of oats to feed the allies' horses; 154,000,000 bushels of wheat; 14,000,000 barrels of flour, and [illegible],000,000 worth of meat to feed the people. As for corn, I see by the government reports that we exported about 12,000,000 bushels of corn to England last year, and 427,261 barrels of corn meal. That was about four-tenths of 1 per cent of our corn crop which went to England.

Feed It to Hogs.

"In 1907 we produced 2,500,000,000 bushels of corn and had 72,533,000 head of cattle; in 1915, with 3,000,000,000 bushels of corn, we had only 58,329,000 head of all kinds of cattle. In 1911 we had 65,410,000 hogs in the country and in 1916 we had only 64,618,000 hogs. In 1909 we had 57,000,000 sheep and in 1915 less than 50,000,000. So you see we had more cattle, hogs, and sheep to fatten in the lean corn years than we had in the fat corn year of 1915. The sober truth is that we feed 90 per cent of our corn to cattle and hogs, export less than 2 per cent, and have to convert the remainder into corn syrup, alcohol, and other articles which are not popular with the professional conservationist. What are the corn growers to do with their corn if they are to increase the production and reduce the present consumption without any hope of a new market? Do you want us to use it for fuel again?"

Corn Versus Wheat.

Uncle Joe lighted a fresh cigar, puffed away for a few minutes, and then became reminiscent on the subject of corn.

"I once thought," he said, "that we might teach the people to again eat corn as they did two or three generations ago. But we haven't made much headway against the big flour mills that turn out such white flour that a large part of the nutriment of the wheat goes into the bran. We have supported propagandas all over the civilized world to make corn recognized as food for man as well as for beast.

SERVICE

Marshall Field & Co. Honor a Veteran Saleswoman.

Miss Mary Hallam

Probably the veteran saleswoman of the United States, Miss Mary Hallam, celebrated yesterday the forty-fourth anniversary of her employment by Marshall Field. She was hired by Marshall Field himself when the establishment was a small drapery store at Market and Madison streets.

Miss Hallam, who has sold laces to Mrs. Abraham Lincoln, Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant, and hundreds of other famous women, was congratulated by scores of friends and old customers during the day. Her counter was a bower of flowers.

John G. Shedd, in sending her forty-four huge American Beauties, said: "Miss Hallam is the equal of any man or woman in the world in tending to business. She has been late twice in forty-four years. She has reduced sales psychology to such an art that she can diagnose a customer's wants before she has spoken."

FOUR NEW TAXES CONSIDERED TO RAISE REVENUE

Jewelry, Cotton, Advertising, and Pipe Lines May Be Levied Upon.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Four new taxes were proposed to the ways and means committee of the house today as the means by which the $1,800,000,000 revenue demanded by the treasury department can be raised. The proposals are:

1. A tax on manufactured jewelry of all sorts, assessed at the factory, of probably 5 per cent.
2. A tax on advertising, including newspapers, magazines, programs, etc.
3. A tax on cotton of $2.50 a bale.
4. A tax on pipe lines as a substitute for proposed taxes on gasoline.

In addition to these another increase in the liquor tax was urged and seriously considered by the committee.

South Fights Tax on Cotton.

The harmony of the committee and the regularity of its procedure was rudely interrupted by the suggestion of Representative Moore of Pennsylvania that the tax on cotton be assessed. The southern members of the committee immediately objected and said they would oppose such a tax to the end, but Representative Moore said he was going to press the proposal in committee and at least force a vote on it.

Much of the time today was consumed by the consideration of the proposed increased rates on second class mail matter. Representatives of the Curtis and other publishing companies have made strong protests against this tax.

Postal Rate Boost Laid Over.

Assistant Postmaster General Koons was before the committee with figures on how the increase should be assessed and what it would bring. After vainly attempting to reach a decision the committee instructed Mr. Koons to bring more figures on Monday with a view to lessening the proposed tax on second class matter in the first and second zones, where daily newspapers would be hit the hardest.

The committee also attempted to reach a decision on the excess profits tax but failed. The committee does not expect now to finish its work until Tuesday or Wednesday.

PRICES

Vegetables Are Going to Be Cheaper, Crop Reports from South Indicate.

NEWS from all over the south indicates the new vegetable crops now approaching maturity are large. Swift dropping of the high prices are expected.

Within the last two days strawberries began coming in from as far north as Tennessee.

Hastings, Fla., has sent 1,100 more cars of potatoes than were shipped at this date one year ago and the condition of the crop is much better. A wire last night said that Wharton, Tex., has 7,000 acres and buyers are paying $100 to $110 an acre for the crop on the ground. This should mean a price not greatly in excess of 75 cents a bushel. So great is the potato crop in Florida that barrels are in great demand.

Two great tomato sections, Manatee, Fla., with 3,000 acres, and Dania, Fla., with 1,000 acres, have started shipping.

Colorado has increased its bean growing to 10,000 acres from nothing a few years ago and this year the Rocky Ford section alone has in 3,500 acres of cantaloupes.

GUARDS MORALS OF SOLDIERS

Washington, D. C., May 5.—Raymond B. Fosdick of New York was named by Secretary Baker today as chairman of an advisory committee on "checking moral hazards frequently associated with camp life" during the army mobilization.

This statement was made at the war department:

"Mr. Baker's idea is that the commission will coördinate many agencies now seeking opportunity for service among soldiers in training camps and will operate as a clearing house to eliminate competition and lost motion or overlapping organizations.

"In carrying out this work it will attempt to promote coöperation between camps and neighboring towns and cities so that the latter will feel the responsibility for providing soldiers on leave with adequate sources of healthful amusement."

8,000 Home Defenders of New York City on Parade

New York, May 5.—Eight thousand members of New York City's home defense league, clad in khaki and carrying police clubs, paraded today. They were reviewed by Mayor Mitchel, Police Commissioner Arthur Woods, Maj. Gen. J. Franklin Bell, the new commander of the department of the east, and Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, commandant of the New York navy yard.

To Free Your Skin of Hair or Fuzz

(Boudoir Secrets)

No toilet table is complete without a small package of delatone, for with it hair or fuzz can be quickly banished from the skin. To remove hairs you merely mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the objectionable hairs. This should be left on the skin about two minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when it will be found free from hair or blemish. Be sure you get genuine delatone.—Advt.

Scholle Furniture for Porch and Sun Parlor

Easy Chair or Rocker, arched top, ea.,	$10.50	Round Table	$10.00
Chaise Longue	16.50	Imperial Peacock Chair	32.00
Round Top Stool	1.75	Tiffin Table to match	9.50
Easy Chair or Rocker, straight top, each	10.00	Stool to match	4.00

YOU won't need more than half an invitation from the sun to sit on your porch and enjoy outdoor air after the long tiresome winter we have just had.

Here's some real porch or sun parlor furniture; the newest thing in the world, from the oldest country in the world—China. We have just received a big shipment from China; made on our own order, and not likely to be duplicated until after the war.

This furniture is made from the hard, tough outside of the Malacca (rattan); it is positively sun proof and practically waterproof (as much so as wood can be); the furniture is collapsible for storing and takes very little room; it will last a lifetime and more.

Don't buy any porch or sun parlor furniture for any reason—for looks, comfort, convenience, novelty, durability, or for anything else—until you have seen this—it is wonderful—and very low in price.

Rugs for Porch and Sun Parlor

Rugs to match the furnishings of porch and sun parlor are essential, if you want to create the atmosphere of comfort and good taste.

We have anything you want in domestic rugs for such uses; a wide variety in materials and colors and all sizes. Prices as low as present conditions permit; but such rugs never cost very much money and they give excellent service.

HOME ECONOMY HELP TO NATION, WOMEN WARNED

Houston Makes Appeal to Prevent Waste of Supplies in U. S.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Secretary of Agriculture Houston, in an address to the women of the United States made public today, urges them to make saving rather than spending their social standard during the war.

"Make economy fashionable lest it become obligatory," Secretary Houston warns.

"Every woman can give important service to the nation in its present emergency," the secretary's address continues. "She need not leave her home or abandon her home duties to help the armed forces. She can help to feed and clothe our armies and help to supply food to those beyond the seas by practicing effective thrift in her own household.

Heavy Draft on Resources.

"Every ounce of food the housewife saves from being wasted in her home—all food which she or her children produce in the garden and cans or preserves, every garment which care and skillful repair make it unnecessary to replace—all lessen that household's draft on the already insufficient world supplies.

"Waste in any individual household may seem to be insignificant, but if only a single ounce of edible food, on the average, is allowed to spoil or be thrown away in each of our 20,000,000 homes, over 1,300,000 pounds of material would be wasted each day. It takes the fruit of many acres and the work of many people to raise, prepare, and distribute 464,000,000 pounds of food a year.

Clothing and Shoes.

"Clothing is largely an agricultural product and represents the results of labor on the sheep ranges, in cotton fields, and in mills and factories. Whenever a useful garment is needlessly discarded material needed to keep some one warm or dry may be consumed merely to gratify a passing fancy.

"Leather, too, is scarce and the proper shoeing of armies calls for great supplies of this material. Anything that can be done to encourage adults or children to take care of their shoes and make them last longer means that so much more leather is made available for other purposes."

TRIPLE IT

That's the Demand of Ex-Wife, Now Getting $52 a Month Alimony—She Says Former Husband Has $7,500 a Year.

FROM $52 to $150 a month is the increase in alimony asked by Mrs. Lillian R. Erickson, 4737 Drake avenue, of her former husband, Emery T. Erickson, 745 Junior terrace. They were divorced March 1, 1912. The alimony awarded then by the court was $7 a week. Later it was increased to $11.

In a petition filed by Mrs. Erickson in the Circuit court yesterday it is alleged that Mr. Erickson has an income of $7,500 a year and is associated with his father in a clothing store at Division and Clybourn. He has remarried and is a member of the Illinois Athletic club, the petition states.

Other decrees asked:

Charles W. Massmann charged Mrs. Clara A. Massmann with running away with Albert J. Gehr.

Mrs. Willy Amburgy, 5023 Glenwood avenue, charged Cullen Amburgy, a dentist of Williamson, W. Va., with infidelity. A nurse is named.

WOMAN'S CLUB TO DO WAR WORK DURING SUMMER

The Chicago Woman's club plans to keep open house this summer for the women of Chicago who want to come there for instruction and consultation concerning women's war work.

Every department of the club was represented yesterday at a meeting of the section for housewifely thrift of the Woman's Club Unit for Patriotic Service.

The home department will have a series of free, open lectures through May and June. On Friday of this week there will be three speakers: Mrs. C. H. Candy on "The Food Situation," W. A. Frost on "Speculations in Foodstuffs," Sol Westerfield on "The Ethics of Buying." Mrs. S. W. Reddeld of Evanston will demonstrate her portable mill on which she grinds all the flour used in her household.

The art and literature department has started to raise $2,600 for an American ambulance.

The education department will aid boys and girls sent to work on the farms.

Capper Is a Candidate for United States Senate

Topeka, Kas., May 5.—Arthur Capper, governor of Kansas, tonight announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination to the United States senate.

RAILROADS OPEN CAMPAIGN TO INCREASE FOOD

Union Pacific First Line to Be Visited by Holden Lecturers.

A special educational campaign is to be launched by railroads of the west in an effort to increase and conserve the food supply of the country. The campaign will be under the personal direction of Perry G. Holden, director of the agricultural extension department of the International Harvester company.

Along Union Pacific.

A trip first will be made along the lines of the Union Pacific railway and more than 500 meetings will be held at the different towns along the line west of Lincoln, Neb.

Lectures will be given to the farmers on their own farms and they will be urged and assisted in working out their own individual problems in agricultural and live stock raising.

More than twenty-five speakers have been obtained for the lectures and talks which will be given on the tour.

Local Groups to Aid.

The local authorities and civic bodies, as well as the various agricultural societies, will be asked to give their support to the movement by arousing the interest of the farmers in their own localities.

The members of the lecture party are being furnished six Pullman cars by the Union Pacific railway, in which they will live all the time while on the tour, thus saving the inconvenience of arranging for hotel accommodations.

NEW GRAND JURY WILL ACT UPON FOOD EVIDENCE

The April federal grand jury was discharged yesterday after making its final report to Judge Landis.

The May grand jury, which will be assembled Thursday, will consider evidence of illegal price fixing combinations on the board of trade and the butter and egg board.

The evidence has been prepared in a form so succinct, it is understood, that any indictments which may be voted will be handed down within a few weeks.

U. OF C. STUDENT TO DRIVE 'FRAT'S' WAR AMBULANCE

Another young collegian who cannot wait for Washington to perfect its scheme of war making will sail May 26 for France as an ambulance driver. The Red Cross pilot is John I. Kautz of Indianapolis, a student at the University of Chicago. His own funds, representing summers of hard work, will help to send him to the French front.

Kautz is 21 years old and a member of the Chicago chapter of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He will drive the Ferderick Funston memorial fund ambulance, the gift of the national Phi Delta to France. When the total funds necessary to send the Funston car and driver to France did not seem to Kautz to be coming in fast enough he contributed his own bank account of $200.

THE ADVENT of a Distinguished PIANO

KRANICH & BACH, recognized leaders in the manufacture of high-grade pianos and player pianos, have established permanent warerooms for the exhibition and sale of their celebrated instruments at 235 South Wabash Avenue.

Throughout the world the musical pre-eminence of the Kranich & Bach piano has been so firmly established that its artistic standing is well-known to most readers of this newspaper. For three generations this superb instrument has been the choice of discriminating people whose musical tastes are above the average. The tonal beauties of the Kranich & Bach are equalled by no other make of piano, irrespective of name or price.

Built complete from start to finish in the Kranich & Bach factory, in only one ultra-quality grade, by direct descendants of the original founders, the Kranich & Bach is today the one striking example of the artistic ideals of the old-time piano craftsmen to whom nothing short of musical perfection was adequate.

KRANICH-&-BACH
Ultra-Quality PIANOS and PLAYER PIANOS

Ownership of a Kranich & Bach carries with it the pride and joy of possessing the very best. In the homes of Chicago's most cultured music lovers there are hundreds of our instruments, some of them forty years old, that are giving convincing evidence of Kranich & Bach superiority.

With this opening of representative warerooms the Kranich & Bach now takes its place at the forefront of Chicago's artistic pianos, and to local admirers is given the opportunity of inspecting a full line of these beautiful instruments at our convenient and spacious warerooms.

The U. S. Government Purchased King 8 Stock Chasses for Light Armored Marine Cars Because They Are the Most Durable, Most Economical and Most Accessible

The King Eight is the only car in which each part is accessible without the removal of another part. For war or pleasure this is a highly important advantage.

You may never need to take YOUR car to the front; you may never want to ride over Lookout Mountain on high gear; you may never care to make a fuel economy test like the one from Pittsburgh to Milwaukee. You want your car for pleasure, business or both. But your car should have the efficiency that made these unbroken King records possible. With the King Eight you'll feel secure. It will be victorious in every test that you put it to.

The King Eight was the first car in America to adopt Cantilever Springs, left-hand drive and center control. The King is always first. Come and see this car—the result of twenty-three years of successful engineering.

We will announce an advance in price within a few days. To secure present prices immediate purchase is necessary.

BUSINESS FEARS MAKING WILSON SOLE DICTATOR

Stagnation and Unrest Likely to Result, They Say.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

President Wilson as a dictator in almost absolute control of labor, industry, and commerce is not an idea which appeals to the business men of Chicago and the middle west.

They are reluctant to criticize the president in times like these. They are, themselves, in favor of as great a degree of federal control and direction as the needs of the country demand. But they fear, if not business disaster, at least a period of stagnation and of unrest, should the present legislative program of the administration be carried out by congress.

What Wilson Wants.

As summed up by Arthur Henning, The Tribune's Washington correspondent, President Wilson is asking that power be granted him:

1. To control the sale, distribution, and prices of food, clothing, and other commodities.
2. To control the distribution of labor on farms and in all industries, through exemptions from service in the new armies.
3. To control and commandeer, if desired, shipyards, steel and munition plants, and other industries.
4. To control the railroads.
5. To control and distribute exports and to declare embargoes.
6. To regulate and control the conduct of the people and of the press.

Fear Nation in Disorder.

The fact that the president is asking for the power, and that he does not intend to use it except in case of necessity, does not relieve the minds of business men. They fear that the mere granting of such dictatorial power would upset business and throw the finances of the country into disorder.

To the argument that such power must be granted, if at all, before congress adjourns, they reply that congress need not adjourn without day, but only from week to week, so that as necessity arises it might take up new legislation.

The fact that similar powers have been granted in Great Britain does not, in the opinion of Chicago men, make them necessarily wise for adoption in the United States. The British isles are small, compact, and homogeneous, with a total area twice as large as that of the state of Illinois. What might apply to British conditions might easily be unworkable, even disastrous, in a country which covers half a continent.

Movement Is General.

It is understood that not only Chicago business men but those of the whole country are working hard through associations of commerce and other similar bodies to devise a program which will give all necessary control to the government, without doing unnecessary damage to business, and, consequently, to the prosperity of the nation, thus delaying its success in the war.

They are undertaking this work, not in the spirit of criticizing the president or his policies, but rather with the idea of helping the government to get the desired results as easily and speedily as possible. Leaders in the commercial life of Chicago, who were consulted yesterday, wished to defer comment until the program is completed and ready for public discussion.

Men Must Be Tried Out.

For one thing they think that before dictatorial power is granted by congress over commerce and labor the best executive minds in the country, representing all sides of the issues involved, should be summoned to administer it. They point out that even in Great Britain the process of selecting the governing executives was a slow one and that by a process of trial and rejection the present administrative heads were secured.

They think it most important that anything which approaches to national hysteria be avoided and that the public must be wisely educated to recognize the wisdom of the several steps which it may be necessary to take.

They point out that when the great war began legal moratoria were declared in all the hostile countries and in many others; that for a period of months there was general stagnation in all lines of commerce, which was followed by a time of great and perhaps dangerous inflation.

Wish to Avoid Dangers.

They wish to avoid these dangers in the United States. They are certain they can be avoided by the coöperation of the business and financial interests of the United States. They are anxious to use their combined experience and wisdom in a patriotic effort to save the country from unnecessary mistakes.

They hope very shortly, perhaps within a week, to have a number of definite suggestions to lay before the administration.

Chicago Girl Takes Blinded Soldiers in London on Walks and Reads to Them.

Miss Marjorie Robbins
W. & D. DOWNEY PHOTO.

Miss Marjorie Robbins, a Chicago girl, is named in dispatches concerning the activities of American girls in the Red Cross service. Just now she is playing the rôle of "Sunshine" to the blinded English soldiers who have been sent home to London.

It is Miss Robbins' part to take these afflicted men on walks, to read to them, and make their darkness endurable.

She is the daughter of Herbert Robbins, who is the foreign manager of an American firm in London. In letters to her friend, Miss Marie Schoemaker, daughter of P. R. Schoemaker of 2400 Hartzell street, Evanston, Miss Robbins has told of the Red Cross work and the slow but sure progress the crippled "Tommies" are making in providing themselves with new forms of earning livelihoods.

BIG DROP IN FOOD PRICES COMING, REYNOLDS SAYS

Food prices are going to drop soon and drop hard, according to George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial bank, who is just back from the west. He declared that "unscrupulous speculators' had taken advantage of "an excited and frightened public." Mr. Reynolds last night said:

"Farmers everywhere throughout the country are keenly alive to the situation. Food production is increasing by leaps and bounds. All over the west the acreage is being increased and in every city and town vacant lots are being planted to gardens.

"Just as soon as agitation subsides and we cease hoarding foods and other necessaries there will be an immediate decline in prices. Of course, we must economize and avoid waste, but it isn't necessary to go to extremes in curtailing our daily needs."

Mr. Reynolds spent two months in California. He says the west is awake to the seriousness of the war situation.

L. Frank Sues Exhibitors Association for $50,000

Suit for $50,000 damages was begun yesterday by Louis Frank, former general manager of the Exhibitors association, against Peter J. Schaefer, Alfred Donburger, Lee A. Ochs, Joseph Hopp, Thomas Furnace, and Ludwig Schindler, executives of the association. The suit is for alleged libel in letters that Schaefer wrote to the other defendants, according to Attorney Adler. The result was the discharge of Frank, it is charged. He was reappointed after injunction proceedings, but his resignation was soon demanded, the attorney alleges.

PLAN VAST ARMY OF BOYS TO AID WAR INDUSTRIES

Washington, D. C., May 5.—Plans for mobilization of the youth of the nation to aid in agriculture and other industries vital to national defense were announced by Secretary of Labor Wilson late today. Working through a departmental organization called the United States Boys' Working Reserve, a preliminary survey of the situation has been started.

William E. Hall has been made national director with headquarters in Washington. He will be assisted by governors and leaders of the great national boys' organizations with the added assistance of a national advisory council composed of experts on farm management, physical welfare, transportation, finance, and wage rates.

The department estimates there are 5,000,000 boys betwen the age of 16 and the age of enlistment, of which at least 2,000,000 are permanently idle. During the summer this number is greatly increased.

MASON PHELPS SEEKS TO ADOPT DESERTED BABY

Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps of 1400 Astor street have filed papers to adopt the tiny companion of Mrs. Phelps' daily jaunts in the park.

The boy is 18 months old, is known as Hubbard Phelps, and he has been in their custody for six months, the petition says. His parents have deserted him, it is alleged.

Mr. Phelps is a former western amateur golf champion. His wife is the daughter of Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen. On many of Mr. Phelps' hunting trips in Alaska and the Rockies Mrs. Phelps has accompanied him.

Grocers May Convene Here.

Plans were made yesterday to bring the convention of the National Wholesale Grocers' association to Chicago in June. It was to have met in Washington, D. C., May 14, but was called off on account of "unusual conditions" in that city in connection with the war. About 2,000 members will attend.

NOW is the Time
You NEED the Britannica

NOW is the Time
To USE the Britannica

NOW is the Time
To BUY the Britannica

NOW is the Time you must buy it or NEVER

THE fact that this country is now in war is an imperative reason why you should own the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The fact that the war will touch your pocketbook is an imperative reason why you should own this great library of universal knowledge. To study it, make use of it, get its help, means more knowledge about your work, more efficiency, more skill, greater earning power, more knowledge of how to economize.

What Will Be the Result of the War?

The man who knows what this country is about—the man who knows what has happened in this country's history in time of war—the man who knows what political and commercial currents and cross-currents are influencing all the nations of the world—the man who knows or has a quick, reliable source of information is going to be a sober, sane and reliable citizen. He will not be stampeded into a panicky frame of mind by rumors and surmises. The person who depends on reports, guessings and the "they-say" stories current on the streets is going to be a source of worry to himself and possible trouble to the government.

You must buy NOW or you can NEVER own the Britannica

Now is the time when you NEED the Encyclopaedia Britannica. It is the most complete, most reliable, most authoritative source of facts on all subjects of government, the history of the United States, the history of all the nations of the world. It answers questions of precedent, usage, the political bent or tendencies of nations and points the way to the aspirations and governing influences of all nations.

War taxes mean increased burdens, increased expenses. War necessities mean increased production, possibly increased opportunities for the man who can learn facts quickly.

You will be asked to do more, to produce more. The time is at hand when men will be asked to know more about their jobs. Women at home will be asked to practice greater domestic economies—a better knowledge of domestic science—the food-values of different foods, food preservation, food preparation, etc., etc. The Britannica covers all these things fully, intelligently, interestingly, and thousands of other things equally important.

Homes will be left without the strong support and advice of their men folks. Women will be called on to decide questions they have always left to husbands, brothers, sons or fathers. Women may have to go into business to take men's places.

NOW or NEVER you must make up your mind about buying

Now is the time you need the Britannica in your home to help you prepare for possibilities—to use—to answer questions and direct you with authority on the thousands of questions of fact about everyday things, from the food value of the things you put on your table to the rights of a tenant, insurance, leases, etc., the collection or payment of money and hundreds of business customs.

A woman who recently bought the Britannica writes:

"We are very much pleased with the Britannica. Under the heading 'Dietetics' I found out more pertaining to the different values of food than I ever knew."

Thousands of doctors will be needed in the armies and hospitals—communities may be left with too few medical men to care for the population. It will be necessary to know more about hygiene, health control, sanitation in the home and community. Nowhere can you find more complete, more reliable help and direction in all such matters than in the new Encyclopaedia Britannica. In it you will find an answer to every question on every need of our complicated domestic life.

As the war will bring heavier taxes it will be necessary in thousands of homes to find additional ways of earning money. The Britannica will be a helpful guide in the selection of a money-making side line. It will give you the facts on which to work intelligently. With knowledge of how and when and why you can make such things successful as photography, bee keeping, poultry raising.

Now is the time when you need the Britannica. Now is the time when you should use the Britannica, and most important of all—NOW OR NEVER IS THE TIME WHEN

YOU MUST DECIDE IF YOU WILL BUY THE BRITANNICA.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica is published in two forms—the original form, the Cambridge University Issue, with large pages, large type, broad margins (75,000 sets of this have been sold—less than 1000 sets are left)—and the "Handy Volume" Issue, the popular low-priced form with smaller pages, smaller type, and therefore less costly to print and bind.

Inside of the next two or three weeks every remaining set of the "Handy Volume" Issue and of the Cambridge Issue of the Britannica will have been sold.

Therefore, if you want to own the Britannica you must decide NOW or you NEVER will be able to buy it. To prove to yourself if this great work will be useful and helpful to you, go to the store named below, see both the "Handy Volume" set and the Cambridge issue. Examine the Britannica thoroughly, see the different bindings, learn the prices, learn the terms of the plan by which you can buy on conveniently small monthly payments. Then, if you decide to buy, leave your order right there in the store. Or, if you already know that the Britannica will be a help to you—useful to you—sign and mail the "Reserve" Order Form TODAY.

You must do one or the other of these two things Now or you Never will be in time to get one of these last sets.

Do not write for information. The last set will be sold before you can get our booklet describing the Britannica—read it—make up your mind and get your order back to us.

See the Britannica at the store named below—or, mail the "Reserve" Order Form at once. NOW or NEVER.

Those who cannot go to this store may use this "Reserve" Order Form, which will be legally binding upon us to reserve one set for you, just the same as if you ordered it in person.

EQUALITY LEAGUE VOTES AGAINST 2 INSURGENTS

Suffrage Organization Finds "Old Clique" All Right.

Most of the members of the Political Equality league at its annual election yesterday in the Congress hotel seemed to be trying to register indifference. But in one corner of the room an excited group, among whom were two candidates for the board of directors, frankly showed the strain.

Mrs. C. D. McVickers and Mrs. Alonzo C. Tenney, who have caused a commotion in the club by trying to break up what they called "the old clique," announced that if they were not elected they would resign.

"Need New Blood."

"What we need in this club is new blood," said Mrs. McVickers. "They asked me what I had done that I should want to be a director. They never give you a chance to do anything. The old crowd rules. I know fifty women who will resign if I am not elected."

Mrs. McVickers and Mrs. Tenney were defeated.

"That proves it," said Miss Edith Swift, who was elected. "We did perfectly right to place Mrs. McVickers' name at the end of the list. She got only thirty-nine votes in spite of her proxies."

Mrs. Harriet Stokes Thompson, retiring president of the club, said during her two years as president more than half of the board was newly elected.

New Officers.

President—Mrs. Stella S. Jannotta.

Secretaries—Mrs. M. F. Gallagher and Mrs. Florence V. Gray.

Treasurer—Mrs. Samuel B. Shirk.

Financial secretary—Mrs. David B. McDonald.

Chairman education department—Mrs. Martin Kent Northam.

Civics department—Miss Margaret Dobyne.

Legislative department—Mrs. Lelida Pappe.

Directors—Mrs. Harriet Stokes Thompson, Mrs. Florence Butler Blanchard, Mrs. Henry Clay Coffeen, Miss Edith Swift, Mrs. Russell Brydon, Mrs. Edward D. Gotchy, Mrs. Kenneth S. McLennan, Miss Amy Van Craenenbroeck, Mrs. C. N. Rowley, and Mrs. John P. Marsh.

The meeting was held in the Florentine room.

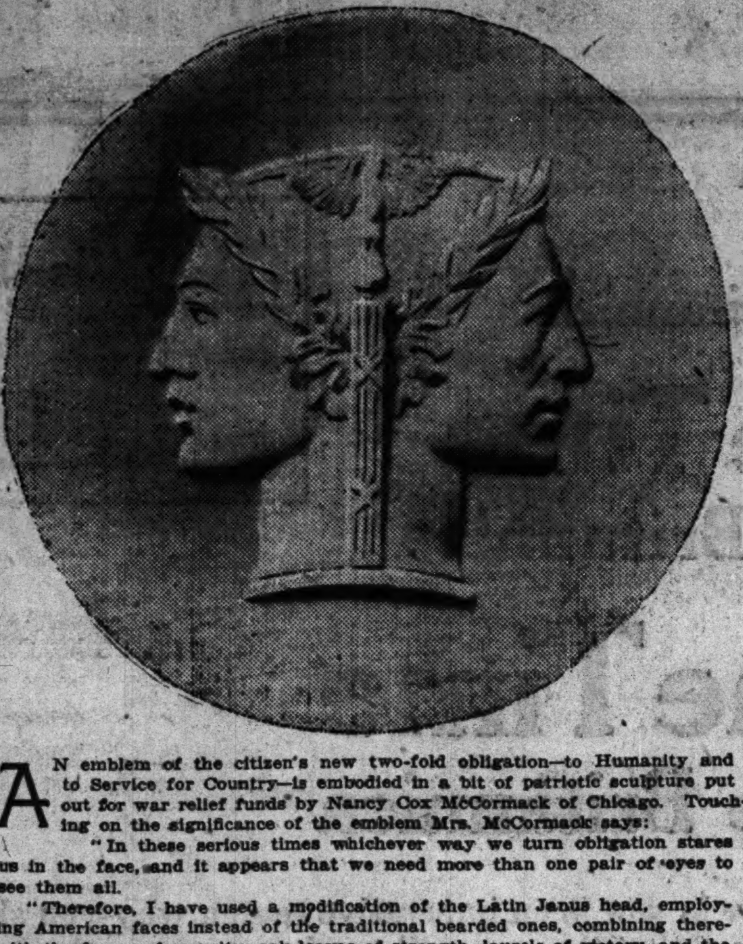
AN EMBLEM OF OBLIGATION



An emblem of the citizen's new two-fold obligation—to Humanity and to Service for Country—is embodied in a bit of patriotic sculpture put out for war relief funds by Nancy Cox McCormack of Chicago. Touching on the significance of the emblem Mrs. McCormack says:

"In these serious times whichever way we turn obligation stares us in the face, and it appears that we need more than one pair of eyes to see them all.

"Therefore, I have used a modification of the Latin Janus head, employing American faces instead of the traditional bearded ones, combining therewith the fasces of security, oak leaves of strength, laurels of victory, and the American eagle on guard. Janus was the god of good beginnings that insure good endings and was invoked by the Romans at the commencement of all wars and vast undertakings. The faces convey the impression of preparedness and that we are ever on the lookout to serve our country."

BUYERS OF COAL BEING FLEECED; PUBLIC WARNED

Washington, D. C., May 5.—Retail prices of coal generally obtaining are unwarranted, the federal trade commission ruled today in a report to congress wherein it counseled the public not to indulge in a "buying panic."

The consumer should buy as in past years, not try to hoard four months' supply in a single month, the commission said.

Moreover it announced that it intends to expose any dealer or speculator who tries to stampede the public into abnormal buying or who tries to justify high prices, especially as there is coal for all and the output will be increased.

The board held that there is no justification to pass on the consumer any greater increases than the pay raises granted to miners. Further, it said that the usual summer discount ought to apply.

"The commission," the report says, "calls attention to activities of speculators in anthracite coal whose unearned profits in many instances are more than 100 per cent."

Woman Who Had Jewels in Handbag Loses Them

A woman was sought by the police yesterday as the thief of $2,000 worth of jewels which Mrs. T. R. Crocker of 2043 Sherman avenue, Evanston, seldom wore but always carried with her in her handbag.

"I noticed a strange woman following me while I was in Marshall Field & Co.'s store yesterday," she told the Central police.

POLITICAL RIVAL OF MISS RANKIN DRINKS POISON

E. Jacob Crull of Elkhart, Blames Suffrage for Suicide.

Elkhart, Ind., May 5.—[Special.]—Broken hearted, his relatives say, because he was defeated by a woman—Jeannette Rankin—for the Republican nomination for congress in Montana last August, E. Jacob Crull, a native of Elkhart, committed suicide here today by swallowing acid. He died six hours after being taken to a hospital.

"When women get to vote we men might as well quit," he said to a local interviewer on the day of his arrival from Montana last October.

"But I enjoy the distinction," he added, "the distinction, mind you, of having been defeated in the August primaries by a woman—a woman who got 4,000 majority in a state that gave the opposite national candidate a 20,000 majority.

"A woman who could turn 24,000 votes in a total of 175,000 is some woman, mind you."

Miss Rankin Expresses Sorrow.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—Miss Jeannette Rankin expressed sorrow this afternoon when told of the attempt at suicide of E. Jacob Crull at Elkhart, Ind. She would say nothing more.

USED-AUTO SHOW LURES BIG CROWD AND REAL CASH

Coliseum Filled at Motordom's First and Greatest Bargain Sale.

BY SHEPPARD BUTLER.

Motordom's biggest bargain sale opened at the Coliseum yesterday to a crowd that increased steadily, despite the lure of the Joffre celebration, until by late afternoon the floor of the big auditorium was filled almost to capacity.

It was Chicago's first experiment with a used automobile show—the first, indeed, in the United States on any such scale as this—and the visitors showed a lively interest in the proceedings that was anything but idle curiostiy. "Sightseers at the national motor exhibits in January stroll by casually, or at best content themselves with trying upholstery and taking a booklet with them. These folk pried into the "innards" and signed checks.

First Sale Prompt.

A flag bedecked automobile parade down Michigan avenue and through the loop started the ball rolling shortly after 1 o'clock. Before it had returned to the Coliseum and within the first half hour of the show the first sale had been made —that of a Haynes roadster to Dr. Victor P. Diederich of 4159 Greenview avenue.

About 120 used machines of all descriptions formed the first installment of cars displayed. The figures on the official price tags ranged from $375 for a Maxwell to $4,300 for an elaborately equipped 1916 Pierce-Arrow. Most of the prices were between $800 and $900.

As each car is sold it is removed from the floor during stated hours set aside for the purpose and another is rolled in to take its place. The exhibiters expect to dispose of nearly 700 "second editions" before the show ends a week from today.

Each of the cars entered bears three official tags on its radiator, outlining its pedigree and specifications in detail and testifying to its having been examined and tested by a committee of experienced automobile engineers. Touring models, of course, are in the majority, but there are also many limousines, sedans, and roadsters—even a quaint little model Ford racer. Few of the offerings are more than three years old.

Exhibit Many Models.

Most of the dealers have confined themselves to displaying their own makes, though there are several who have disregarded this and show anything they have on hand.

An elaborate decorative scheme, running to green, white, and American flags provides effective mise-en-scene, and there are special attractions in the form of a Reo and an Oakland to be given away at the end of the show. Twenty-nine exhibitors of motor accessories have booths around the outer edge of the floor.

Boy's Skull Fractured by Farmer's Motor Car

James Miller, 11 years old, was knocked down by an automobile at West Lake and North Paulina streets and his skull fractured yesterday. He was taken to the county hospital.

George Sheldon, 48 years old, a farmer of Grays Lake, Ill., who was driving the car, was arrested. He said the boy ran in front of the automobile.

BANDIT LEADER COMES TO SEE HIS NEW SON; CAUGHT

"Bill" Norton and Kay-Se Both Make Lengthy Confessions.

"Bill" Norton, bandit chieftain and safeblower emeritus, one of the leaders of the gang some of whom are held and others sought for fifty-seven robberies since Jan. 1, couldn't resist the first wail of his newborn yesterday. It landed him in jail.

In the meantime Capt. Mooney's men took into custody the elusive Indian maiden, Kay-Se, whose romantic exploits caused the arrests of several of her male cohorts. Kay-Se rewarded the detectives by making a complete confession of the gang's operations. When Norton was told of this he, too, broke down and made a full statement.

Phone Wires Tapped.

It was the telephone wires over which Norton talked to the sickroom of his wife hearing the news of his son and heir and telling "the missus" he would hurry right over that caused his arrest.

The agents of Acting Capt. James L. Mooney of the detective bureau were "listening in" on tapped wires. They heard Norton promise to "hurry right over." And when he arrived there was a short, swift battle. The call of fatherhood was strong. So were the detectives.

Confessions said to have been obtained by Capt. Mooney are expected to clear up the long string of robberies. The six men taken by Capt. Mooney and his men following the robberies of the Kowalewski Bros.' bank, at 1250 West Fifty-first street, and the Merchants bank, at 4649 South State street, are all said to be implicated in the confessions.

It was declared by several members of the gang that the "blowoff" came when Kay-Se, the Indian girl, became embroiled in a three cornered romance. Charles Francis, also a leader of the robbers, was said to be her husband and Moran a suitor for her favor. When Francis and Moran clashed there was trouble. The romance of the robbers brought about their downfall.

What Confessions Tell.

In their confessions Norton and Kay-Se are said by detectives to have given information that will lead to the immediate arrest of a number of other men who have been suspected, but whose actual complicity in robberies could not be established. Capt. Mooney now regards his case against the safeblowers as complete. The confessions obtained by him clear up the two bank robberies which resulted in the midnight raids of a week ago, and also dozens of other robberies and safeblowings.

The Times-and YOU!

An Editorial Advertisement by Fred'k H. Bartlett

OPTIMISM is the keynote of the times. Prosperity is here, gaining momentum daily. It will be with us for years and years to come.

This is the unanimous verdict of political economists, great editors and financial authorities. It is the opinion universally shared in by the people everywhere.

But there are certain vital facts in connection with our country's present situation that deserve emphasis, that demand extended repetition. They should be borne home forcefully to every thinking citizen. And this is my intention, my chief reason for penning and publishing these words.

Our boundless, resistless National POWER—measured in terms of Wealth and Resources, developed and latent—has placed us and will keep us safe, happy and prosperous. You know and I know that, in the final analysis, our nation's present and future industrial, commercial, financial status has in it all the elements that make our long-continued prosperity a positive, settled factor.

Here we are, unshakably fixed in the proud position of Banker to the World! The "balance of trade" is all in our favor. Virtually every country in the universe owes us money. And in the last thirty-three months of the European war (during which period we were being changed from a debtor- into a creditor-nation) we have enjoyed an era of prosperity unparalleled in history.

Wages were never higher, the money market was never in better shape. Yes, commodities have been unusually costly, but that condition always accompanies extraordinarily prosperous times. Production hasn't completely kept pace with demand; this is the explanation, reduced to its simplest form.

The thing we all want to remember, however, the one outstanding fact that must be kept uppermost in our minds, is this:

The result to us of our entry into the world strife is aptly and tersely summed up in a recent newspaper headline: "War Billions to Swell Flood of Riches in U. S." The why of this is easily seen. Our great war loan calls for the issuance, as you know, of seven billions of dollars in government bonds. An inconceivably stupendous sum. The largest single government credit in the entire world's history. And one that I sincerely hope and confidently believe will be over-subscribed to in record-breaking time.

Virtually every penny of the colossal amount thus raised is to be spent here to the final end of strengthening our already impregnable entire business structure.

* * * *

How is all this going to affect YOU, Mr. Average American Citizen? How is it going to influence your own individual welfare, your peace of mind, your personal finances?

Not in the slightest—UNLESS you choose to get something tangible and worth while out of the great wave of Super-Prosperity that even now is sweeping over the country, making feverishly active every line and artery of business and trade, boosting wages and prices willy-nilly in its wake, stimulating everywhere as never has been stimulated before—

—the Real Estate Market!

This, then, is the secondary object of my message to you today:

To ask you to let the times, born of epochal conditions, MAKE MONEY for you. To advise you, with all the earnestness at my command, to buy, with all possible speed, at least one parcel of good Chicago property!

I may be digressing a trifle when I tell you I am not entirely selfish or biased in vouchsafing this advice. If I was, I doubtless would say to you, "Buy Bartlett property."

And my motives in publishing this editorial advertisement are not purely philanthropic, either. I know that once you are started along straight-thinking lines, once you become alive to the fact that fortune-making opportunities await you in the general field of local real estate, Bartlett real estate must surely come in for its rightful share of your consideration and attention.

When I said two weeks ago, in a public personal statement, that a boom in Chicago realty was almost here, I little dreamt my prediction would so swiftly approach fulfillment. In common with other expert real estate men, I knew the realty boom had to come. One always does on the heels of a protracted industrial flurry. But recent developments have hastened our property boom, have brought it here weeks before the most sanguine "insider" anticipated.

A falsely forced inflation of prices is deplorable. Chicago real estate in this present instance, however, can double, treble, quadruple in price without being artificially inflated. Regardless of how high the prices mount, they never will get ahead of the actual intrinsic values.

Leave aside the fact that Chicago real estate prices are this very minute at rock-bottom. Forget that vacant property alone of all big money-making investments will not be taxed under the new government levies. Put aside the certain knowledge that record-breaking prosperity will bring you no definite financial reward unless you do acquire during its progress something really worth while, something safe and sound as this earth itself. Remember only that Chicago's now-here-and-flourishing realty boom will put in your pocket more in the way of profits than you thought any legitimate investment could produce.

—and you have the one all-sufficient, all-impelling reason for placing at least a part of your savings in some choice parcel or parcels of Chicago real estate NOW!

U.S. GRAND JURY INDICTS BIG TILE FIRMS AND MEN

Accused of Conspiracy in Restraint of Trade in the West.

Twelve corporations and twenty-nine individuals, including some of the largest distributors of tiles, mantels, marbles, and mosaics in the middle west, were indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury on charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

The indictments cap a climax to a government investigation which has lasted for six months and has reached into almost every state in the union. The ramifications and influences of the so-called tile trust have reached into all the big arteries of the tile trade, according to the government, and indictments of tile distributors and perhaps some manufacturers are expected in half a dozen districts.

A special assistant attorney general began the inquiry. The headquarters of the alleged combination in restraint of interstate commerce was found to be in Chicago, and for that reason the first batch of indictments were returned here.

Individuals Indicted.

Names of the individuals indicted, except those who appeared and gave bond, were suppressed by District Attorney Clyne. Those known to have been hit are:

Henry J. Kopp, president of the North Shore Mantel and Tile company.

John Fitzgerald of the Fitzgerald Tiling company.

Frank P. Armistead, manager of Dawson Bros.

Leo Kraemer of the Cobb & Perine company.

Mel D'Ambrosio of John Caretti & Co.

Corporations Named.

The corporations indicted on three counts each as were the individuals are:

Chicago Mosaic and Tiling company, 3433 Indiana avenue.

Cobb & Perine company, 3910 Sheridan road.

William H. Jackson company, 902 South Michigan avenue.

M. Keating & Sons, 4046 Wentworth avenue.

North Shore Mantel and Tile company, 5441 Broadway.

Edward Pickens company, 2934 Cottage Grove avenue.

Other Firms Named.

These firms and individuals, it is alleged, managed to effect a combination which stifled the tile trade. They dealt, the indictments set forth, almost exclusively with the Alhambra Tile company of Newport, Ky.; the Brooklyn Vitrified Tile works of Brooklyn; the Brunt Tile and Porcelain company of Brooklyn; the Atlantic Tile Manufacturing company of Matteawan, N. Y.; the Matteawan Tile company of Matteawan; the Grueby Faience and Tile company of Chicago; the Mosaic Tile company of Zanesville,

WORLD FAMINE OUTRUNS PEACE, VIEW OF SWEDES

Socialists' Pacifist Sittings Discredited; Hunger Peril Seen.

BY CYRIL BROWN.

[Copyright: 1917: By Press Publishing Company (New York World).]

STOCKHOLM, via London, May 5.—Stockholm, though preponderatingly pro-German, sees no peace in sight, and the international Socialists holding spasmodic sittings here are not taken overseriously in responsible Swedish circles, despite the Socialists now in Stockholm include such notables as the Danish minister, Stauning, and Grimm, the chairman of the international bureau in Switzerland.

Though the Swedish leader, Branting, expressed himself optimistically to me regarding the foundation work for ultimate peace now being done in the Swedish capital, I encountered, almost everywhere, a skeptical feeling regarding the utility of the Socialist conference, particularly owing to its lack of a completely representative character.

Minister Lindman's Views.

Arvid Lindman, Sweden's minister of foreign affairs, received me this morning and, on condition that he was not to be quoted, spent half an hour discussing Sweden's complex economic problem, particularly as it has been or may be affected by America's entry into the war.

I gathered the following general survey of the situation from his excellency, which undoubtedly reflects the views held in high official circles:

The possibility is fully realized that a continuance of the war may culminate in a world famine. Sweden, although short of foodstuffs, can just manage to hold through until the next harvest under the present bread ration, which is enforced by the card system, the bread ration, although small, being adequate.

Whether Sweden could hold out over another year depends on the next harvest. With average good crops Sweden can just manage to feed itself with the most rigid economy. The safety margin, particularly in view of the doubtful character of the next harvest, is such that the importation of breadstuffs from America is more than desirable. Negotiations toward this end have become the imperative duty of the government to the people.

In economic negotiations with America, Sweden is coöperating closely with Denmark and Norway, in addition to meeting the foreign ministers of the Scandinavian states, who realize they are all in the same economical world war boat. The Swedish economic commission, under the leadership of former Minister Washington Lagerkrantz, will, it is hoped, be able to reassure America that American breadstuffs and other exported commodities which may in the future be permitted to reach Sweden will not be reëxported, so that there will be no danger of benefiting Germany. Sweden wants not only American breadstuffs but needs, and will continue to need increasingly American food and cotton.

In addition to assurance that Germany will not be a beneficiary, Sweden is in a position to barter advantageously by reason of its command of the rail transit traffic to Russia, which is assuming vital importance, as the unlimited submarine war is becoming more effective. Doubtless, in view of Sweden's growing appetite for American commodities, Minister Morris would be able to extract concessions and permits from the present Swedish government for transit shipment of American goods by the safe rail route to Russia.

Have Something to Swap.

Besides control of the transit traffic to Russia, Sweden holds certain other trumps, notably its exportable wood pulp, ores, and finished steel, all of which possess the utmost desirability for England.

That fine experience comes nearest matching the sensation of the Twin-six drive.

Smooth and mighty power—power economically and efficiently used—coupled with Packard grace, elegance, comfort.

It is Diana's charm—and the strength of Hercules—to serve you.

There are twenty and more body styles to choose from—among them enclosed carriages nimble as any touring car.

Are you going to swing through this summer in a Twin-six?

STELK FINES FIVE ON GIRL CHARGES; TO ENFORCE ACT

Two Young Sisters Sent Back to Farm After City Escapade.

Fines were imposed by Judge John Stelk yesterday on five men for contributing to the delinquency of girls. Those fined were:

Michael Todorovich, owner of an employment agency at 112 South Canal street; $100 and costs on each of two charges.

Thomas Gary, ex-pugilist, $50.

Sisters Sent Back to Farm.

Todorovich, Press, and Gary were accused of having taken Marion Umlauf, 17 years old, and her sister, Charlotte, 16, to rooms in the Saratoga hotel where Press lived. After the cases were disposed of the sisters were taken back to their home—a farm in South Haven, Mich.—by their father.

Bower was arrested on complaint of a resident of North Central Park avenue, who charged that he contributed to the delinquency of his 16 year old daughter.

Phelan was arraigned on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 15 year old girl who lives on Southport avenue.

Denials were made by all the defendants.

Act to Be Enforced.

"The delinquency act is going to be enforced in Chicago," declared Judge Stelk. "This act is intended to protect girls under the age of 18 years and whether or not the girl makes a practice of leading an immoral life the law is violated and punishment will be meted out.

"The girls also will be taken care of and, where it is proper, placed in homes."

POLICE CAPTURE ROBBER AT END OF SILVER TRAIL

Ben Kuzius, 1815 Rice street, stepped into the grocery of William Sadowski, 925 North Lincoln street, yesterday and held up the proprietor with a revolver. Mary Sadowski witnessed the scene from her sitting room at the rear of the store and screamed "Police" out of a window.

Kuzius ran two blocks and entered the butcher shop of Stanley Przysiecki at 856 Wood street. There he again brought his revolver into play and, while the butcher stood with hands up, rifled the cash register. He threw $4 in pennies on the floor.

"These," he said, "are no good to me."

Then he stuffed $40 in his outside coat pocket and dashed out the door.

Przysiecki ran after him, firing from a revolver. Kuzius sent back two shots at his pursuer. He was sighted by Policeman William O'Donnell and Christ Grote. He was captured as he fired his last shot at the policemen from an alley. Only $21.70 of the stolen money was found in his pocket. His pocket had a hole in it, and the fleeing robber had leaked silver pieces all along the route of his flight. Przysiecki backtracked his trail and recovered $7. The remainder of the money had been picked up by others. They kept it.

GIRL DENIES SHE'S IN LOVE WITH TOWER

Miss Theodosia Hadley of Indianapolis issued a statement yesterday denying the charges of Mrs. W. L. Tower, wife of Prof. Tower of the University of Chicago, that the professor and Miss Hadley were in love with each other. Mrs. Tower has filed a suit for separate maintenance and Prof. Tower has started divorce proceedings in Arizona.

"I have seen Prof. and Mrs. Tower only two times since I graduated from the University of Chicago in 1904," said Miss Hadley. "In 1913 I met them in France. I accepted an invitation to dine with them. I saw Prof. Tower again about six weeks ago in Chicago, but not to speak to him. The charge in the suit, so far as it relates to me, is untrue."

Mrs. Jeannette Hadley, mother of the girl, sides with Prof. Tower and said Mrs. Tower was hardly responsible for her action in filing the suit.

Mrs. Tower says in her bill that when Prof. Tower said he wanted to marry Miss Hadley she went to Indianapolis to see her. At first, she says, she was inclined to give in in favor of Miss Hadley, but changed her mind.

SUES 36 PERSONS FOR $500,000 ON POISON CHARGES

Guy G. Shaw, 1330 North La Salle street, has filed suit in the United States District court at Grand Rapids, Mich., through his attorneys, Callahan & Callahan, for $500,000 damages against Edmund S. Rankin and thirty-five other persons of wealth and prominence in southern Michigan.

Shaw, who is a corporation promoter, stock salesman and life insurance man, charges that when he attempted to form corporations, the defendants collected his profits or plunged the new company into bankruptcy by buying up a small amount of stock. He also charges that they administered poison to him and kept him doped with drugs and have alienated the affections of his mother, Mrs. Sarah E. Shaw of Kalamazoo.

Chief among the defendants who, Shaw charges, have hounded him for twenty years, are: Judson W. Woodruff of Columbus, O., Edmund S. Rankin, vice president of the Kalamazoo National bank; Charles S. Cutting, Charles H. Williams, and W. R. Beebe of Kalamazoo. Two sisters of Shaw, Miss Muriel M. Shaw and Mrs. Helen G. Hare, are made defendants.

Gompers Unable to Come; Labor Meeting Delayed

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, will not be in Chicago today, according to a telegram received from him by Edward N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor. As the result a meeting to protest against the use of injunctions in labor disputes, to have been held this afternoon with Mr. Gompers as the chief speaker, has been called off.

"Coming Events Cast Shadows"

The pestiferous house-fly is on his way here. Soon he'll bud and bloom by the million and attack the milk and food of the younger generations. Why not beat him to it? Instal a Kewanee Water-Heating Garbage Burner and make it impossible for him to find a square-meal around your premises.

Clean up, Citizens, clean up! The Kewanee Garbage Burner is the means. It not only prevents the house-fly, but does away with the Garbage Man who comes to you daily with "the rankest compound of villainous smell that ever offended nostril." Shakespeare wrote that in the 15th Century but Shake was prophetic and undoubtedly meant OUR garbage man.

The Kewanee Garbage Burner is much in little. It is a compact steel chamber which occupies a small corner in the basement, burns the garbage while it is fresh and turns it into fuel to heat the hot-water tank, and destroys everything the fly has to feed on. No smell arises from the burning. Not a thing is left in cellar, yard or back-porch for fly, mouse or other pests to feed on. It is a health agent, an economist, a friend. Doctors think it is the best thing in the world to keep the home clean and healthy. And every flat that has one, ought to rent on sight. Think it over landlord, tenant.

Famous Hill-Climb of HUDSON SUPER-SIX

In a hundred cities Hudson dealers have won the local records with the Super-Six.

Not in America only. In several countries Super-Sixes have won the hill-climbing records.

But the Pike's Peak climb last September was the world's supreme test. There twenty great cars, all specially built, met for a race to "the top of the world." The Hudson Super-Six special made the best time of all.

What They Drove

The Super-Six, remember, is a small, light six. It doesn't win by size. It won these tests just as it won all other worth-while records—by endurance.

This invention—patented by Hudson—has minimized motor friction. It thus added 80 per cent to the motor's efficiency. It nearly doubled the motor's endurance.

You don't care to climb Pike's Peak at the speed the Super-Six showed it could do. You don't care to go 102 miles per hour, as a Super-Six stock chassis has done. Or 1819 miles in 24 hours, also with a stock chassis.

But you want the car which holds those records, if you buy a great car. Not because they prove capacity, but because they prove endurance—prove that no service you will ever demand will equal its capacity.

All-Round Ruler

But the Hudson is now more than monarch in performance. It is fully as distinctive in style and beauty this year, in finish, in equipment and in luxury. It has a new gasoline saver, in the form of radiator shutters, which, through controlling the heat of the motor in part, overcomes the disadvantages and waste of the present poor grade of gasoline. It has a patent pneumatic carburetor, exclusively Hudson, self-adjusting to every engine speed.

In whatever you prize most—performance, style, beauty or economy—you will find the Hudson leader. That's why it leads all other front-rank cars in sale.

WOMEN EXTEND LINES TO WIN RED CROSS MEMBERS

Will Establish Booths in Loop Stores and the Leading Clubs.

New methods of recruiting members to the Red Cross will be started tomorrow in an effort to make a good showing on Friday, when the number of "recruits" for the week will be announced. There will be no more daily reports.

In all the downtown department stores membership booths will be opened, with young women in charge. Booths will be established also at the Chicago Athletic club, the Illinois Athletic club, the Union League club, the Chicago club, the Hamilton club, and the University club. In most of the club booths women will be in charge.

Co-eds Will Help.

Following a conference between Mrs. J. T. Harahan and B. I. Budd of the elevated railways it was announced that University of Chicago co-eds will solicit subscriptions from all the loop elevated stations, platforms, and in the trains. They will be dressed in white uniforms, with a Red Cross emblem. The girls for the work will be selected by Mrs. Harry Pratt Judson from the Lexington hall registration bureau of the Red Cross at the university.

Several of the suburbs will have independent campaigns. Evanston will start a campaign for 5,000 members at a mass meeting at the Strand theater next Thursday night. Winnetka has started a campaign to obtain 1,000 members and Kenilworth one to get 500.

Many lodges have started recruiting campaigns among their own members. F. S. Loomis, grand master of the Royal Arcanum, instructed the eighty lodges of the order yesterday to enlist every member of the organization and as many members of their families as possible. There are 18,000 men who belong to the eighty lodges.

Seventy Lodges Join Move.

At a meeting on Wednesday night a similar order will be sent to seventy Chicago lodges of the Tribe of Ben Hur. The membership is approximately 5,000 men.

Eight speakers have been added to the oratory squad. They will commence speaking this week at meetings of various natures. The new list includes Miss Mary Bartelme, the Rev. E. H. Kelly, Miss Harriet Vittum, the Rev. Albert H. Gage, John D. Shoop, John S. Miller, T. F. Donahue and Daniel Donahy.

The large Chicago banks began their drive yesterday to obtain 20,000 members. F. O. Wetmore, president of the First National bank, is the leader of the campaign. Another effort for Red Cross membership will be conducted by the outlying banks.

Register Workers.

At the same time the membership work is being pushed, offices will be opened to register men and women for various activities. Colin Herrle of Washington, registration expert for the American Red Cross, is expected tomorrow or Tuesday to take charge of the work.

Mrs. Philip S. Doane of the Red Cross shop returned from Washington, where she attended the conference for workers of the Red Cross from every part of the country.

"One great need, we were told," said Mrs. Doane, "is for garments for the allied troops in France."

A scarcity of knitting needles is interfering with the home and shop manufacture of socks and sweaters.

William H. Harrington of 5541 Dorchester avenue registered for clerical work at the registration reserve bureau. He is 77 years old and a veteran of the civil war.

ANSWERS

Persons Seeking Information Concerning Red Cross Funds and Purposes May Find It Here.

INQUIRIES from prospective subscribers to the Red Cross fund have come to THE TRIBUNE regarding the purpose and proposed distribution of the funds which are being collected through a membership campaign. Following are the questions and answers:

Q.—Is the money for purposes of war relief only?

A.—No. It may be used for local catastrophes, such as fire, flood, and famine.

Q.—How will the money be distributed?

A.—The Red Cross may devote 5 per cent for administrative expenses of the society. From the $1 memberships 50 cents stays in Chicago and 50 cents goes to Washington; from the $2 memberships $1 to the Red Cross magazine, 50 cents to Chicago, and 50 cents to Washington; from the $5 memberships $1 to the magazine and $2 to both Chicago and Washington; from $10 memberships $1 to the magazine, $3 to Chicago, and $6 to Washington. All the funds from life membership, $25, and patrons, $100, go to Washington.

Q.—How may one subscribe with the understanding that the money is to be used only for United States soldiers and sailors?

A.—In making a donation which is not a membership fee it may be stated on the check that the money is solely for the use of soldiers or for any other specified purpose and the Red Cross will spend the money as requested.

A.—Eliot Wadsworth, a Boston banker, who has gone to Washington to devote his entire time, without salary, to the work.

A.—Yes. Funds collected in Chicago, however, are expended by the Chicago organization.

One of the uses of the membership fund will be civilian relief—the care of destitute families of soldiers and sailors.

WHITE HOUSE SEWING CIRCLE FOR RED CROSS

Washington, D. C., May 5.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is now busily engaged at the White House in the making of sheets, pillow cases, pajamas, and other hospital supplies for the American Red Cross, of which her husband is president.

With greatly diminished social duties because of the war, Mrs. Wilson and Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, the president's cousin, are said to be devoting much time to Red Cross work.

Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the vice president, has organized the wives of the senators, and they are meeting weekly to sew for the Red Cross.

Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, wife of the secretary of the interior, has organized the women of the interior department for the same purpose, while Mrs. David F. Houston, wife of the secretary of agriculture, is working along other lines of Red Cross work.

Predicts City Will Get 300,000 Into Red Cross

"If America is going to win this war, and it will, we must all coöperate," said Attorney Phil A. Grau yesterday before the members of the Irish Fellowship club at their weekly luncheon.

"If you can't go to the front and fight for your country you can join the Red Cross. Chicago has been called upon to get 150,000 members. With the coöperation being given by the business men we will double that amount."

GEORGE ADE HAS STRAIGHT STUFF FOR KAISER BILL

Hoosier Speaks at Dinner of Indiana Society Here.

Patriotism spiced the feast of reason and travesty sped the flow of soul at the annual banquet of the Indiana society of Chicago at the Blackstone hotel last night when the new officers were formally inducted into office.

The Hoosiers sang—of the Star Spangled Banner, of Dixie, of love, of the banks of the Wabash. Miss Louise Dresser rendered the last. Paul Althause, tenor of the Metropolitan opera, sang "Marseillaise" to thunders of applause. Miss Louise Sloane, a comely Hoosierette, led the general singing, the words of the songs being flashed on the screen.

George Ade Speaks.

Retiring President George Ade of the society spoke.

"Our friends of the east misjudge us, sometimes," said Mr. Ade, after the preliminary remarks. "In the last few weeks we have been coming up against a dreadful crisis. Much vocal energy has been expended along the Atlantic seaboard in an effort to arouse the middle west to a sense of our national danger. It is a significant repetition of history that while New York was exhorting Indiana was enlisting."

Mr. Ade had a few remarks to make about Germany.

"When the Huns were turned back at the battle of the Marne, it was because destiny coöperated with the French. When the whole world is headed for freedom the kaiser himself cannot turn it back. When countless people are moving towards the light can a man named Hindenburg send them into the darkness?

Germany Cannot Win.

"Germany cannot win, because she has set herself against the edicts of Supreme Authority. It will be a great disappointment to the kaiser when he learns that the partnership which never existed is permanently dissolved. America has been called upon to break the news to him."

A mock, bewhiskered, and irreverant duma petitioned a mock, bewigged, jocular Supreme court for various rights and privileges, which were granted by "the Hon. Wilbur D. Nesbit, chief justice of the Supreme court of the Indiana society," joining in with the duma. The duma consisted of Col. George T. Buckingham, Arista B. Williams, Edward Rector, and Charles Arthur Carlisle. It made its solemn entrance to the tune of "Yankee Doodle."

One on John.

A proposal advanced by the duma to annex Treasure island to secure the protection of King John T. McCutcheon was granted. King John and his consort were led to the platform, and the ruler of Treasure island was crowned—Queen Evelyn.

"The real ruler," said the chamberlain, and he handed McCutcheon a rain check.

PLAN MEETINGS TO ENLIST 75,000 NEGROES FOR WAR

That Lincoln freed the bodies of the Negroes, but that Hampton institute freed their minds and gave them true citizenship will be emphasized in an address this morning in Second Presbyterian church, East Twentieth street and South Michigan avenue, by Dr. Hollis Burke Frissell, principal of Hampton.

Dr. Frissell also will speak before the Sunday Evening club in the community house at Winnetka. The purpose of the greater Hampton patriotic movement to enlist the 75,000 Negroes in Chicago for industrial and military service will be described by John C. Whiting.

A similar program will be given in the evening in Garfield Boulevard Presbyterian church, Halsted and Garfield boulevard. Dr. John M. Griffin of the greater Hampton movement will speak.

The Cadillac Landaulet, $3935

CADILLAC YEAR 'ROUND BODY TYPES ARE FASHIONABLE, COMFORTABLE, SERVICEABLE—ADVISABLE

What type of car will serve you best? Which comes nearest to meeting your daily needs? What use or service do you most require?

Uppermost in wise men's minds are thoughts like these as spring approaches. For spring is the time when Nature urges us to freshen up—and new things should be bought—but wisely bought.

Spring and summer are no longer the only seasons you expect to use your car. The year 'round thought is in your mind whenever a car is mentioned.

What car is most surely comfortable both at 10 degrees below and at 90 degrees in the shade—in balmy breezes or wintry blasts—in rain or shine? What type of car will best protect your clothes from dust and mud—in town or out?

Think out these things before you buy—and look ahead as well. In year 'round types twice last year's allotment has barely met the Cadillac demand. In spring we now sell three times the number we sold in winter two years ago.

A year from now—or two or three—half the new cars will be of year 'round types, we believe. You'll want to drive your Cadillac that long, at least. Ten years will not wear it out.

A look ahead makes year 'round types advisable to purchase—from both the fashion and business points of view. They will always be "the thing" among wise buyers and thus will bring a higher resale price some years from now.

So choose. A summer type or a year 'round type—both are here in wide variety. Of summer types we offer four at $2265. Of year 'round types we have eight from $2735 to $3935, and with Foster custom built bodies, $4000 to $5500.

The year 'round types with sliding windows are as fully open to the breeze as any touring car with the top up. And in winter they afford protection and perfection no curtains or makeshift can ever offer. The demand for these types can still be met with reasonably prompt delivery.

THIRTY ILLINOIS DOCTORS CHOSEN TO GO TO FRANCE

Will Be Members of First U. S. Contingent Sent to the War Zone.

Thirty doctors were chosen for immediate duty in France by nine representatives of the Illinois committee on medical preparedness of the national council of defense yesterday. The war department is accepting only officers of the medical reserve call under the age of 55. Although twenty-three of those chosen have not received commissions, their applications are at Washington and will be acted upon early in the week.

The entire list was telegraphed to Washington last night for approval. The medical contingent of 500 men is expected to be the first organization to be sent to France by the war department.

Illinois' Contingent.

Russell Pettit,
Thomas P. Foley,
Ralph E. Kuhns,
J. P. Cleary,
John W. Tope,
S. H. Richmond,
Henry Uhlman.

Those whose applications are at Washington:

John G. O'Malley,
David F. Hayes,
John F. Mugcomb,
Thomas H. Reagan,
Samuel B. Herdman,
Charles W. Hall,
John Carroll Hall,
Roy T. Rodaway,
A. F. Fisher,
Herman H. Bassler,
Percy Earl Hopkins,
Charles L. Garras,
O. E. Alyea,
Harry H. Felts,
John E. Allaben,
Richard J. Miller,
Gottlieb A. Lurie,
D. A. Lehman,
Torrence Reed,
Hiran Earl Ross,
W. P. Earngey,
W. C. Meacham,
Walter P. Murfin.

100 Doctors Apply.

Over 100 doctors under the limiting age of 55, applied to Dr. L. L. McArthur, chairman of the Illinois committee, at his office yesterday. Each man appeared before the committee separately and was recommended for a captaincy or lieutenancy or rejected according to previous experiences and fitness.

Dr. Franklin H. Martin, who has been in Washington for several weeks with the National Council of Defense is expected in Chicago tomorrow. Dr. Frederic A. Besley, who is in charge of hospital unit 12, the Northwestern unit, will also return from Washington tomorrow. It is expected that he will bring definite orders as to when the unit will sail for France.

STATE DEFENSE COUNCIL STARTS LABORS TUESDAY

The first meeting of the Illinois defense council, comprising fourteen of the leading business men of Chicago and Illinois, and headed by Samuel Insull, president of the Commonwealth Edison company, will be held in the capitol at Springfield Tuesday.

Mr. Insull, who returned yesterday from Washington, where he attended a meeting of the national defense council as the representative of Illinois, refused to make any statement concerning the matters to be taken up by the state body.

The state council will coöperate with the national body and under the legislative act which created it will have powers of a court in making investigations. The members of the council were selected by Gov. Lowden for their practicability and all interests are represented. In addition to Mr. Insull those on the board are: J. Ogden Armour, John P. Hopkins, Dr. Frank Billings, Charles H. Wacker, John A. Spoor, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Levy Mayer, Fred W. Upham, Victor A. Olander, and David E. Shanahan, all of Chicago, and B. F. Harris, Champaign; John H. Walker, Springfield; John H. Harrison, Danville; Lieut. Gov. Oglesby, Elkhart.

PRIZE BABY

If Homer Had Been a Day Older He Couldn't Have Entered the Baby Week Contest.

Homer Lee Sorber

If Homer Lee Sorber of 4231 Roscoe street had been a day older he couldn't have won the prize at the baby show which closed Chicago's baby week celebration at the Strand theater yesterday. As it is, Master Homer, who was 1 year 364 days old yesterday, coming just under the line of the 2 year prohibition for registration in the contest, will today celebrate his second birthday with an extra large drink of milk from a brand new silver cup presented to him yesterday by Dr. W. A. Evans of THE TRIBUNE as the most nearly perfect baby registered at the show.

"He is an exceptionally fine baby," said Dr. Evans. "He got 98 out of a possible 100 points in the examination."

The baby's father is Martin L. Sorber, a clerk in the water pipe extension department of the city hall.

Some $10,000 given during the week to Dr. Robertson was turned over to the Infant Welfare society.

MRS. A. V. BROWN, WIDOW OF N. W. U. FOUNDER, DIES

Mrs. Andrew J. Brown, widow of one of the founders and first trustees of Northwestern university, died yesterday in her home, 1505 Oak avenue, Evanston. She was 90 years old.

Mrs. Brown was born March 8, 1828, in Hudson, N. Y., and removed to Evanston with her husband in 1866. Mr. Brown engaged in the practice of law and in the real estate business, and was active in the affairs of the university until his death in 1906.

After that Mrs. Brown continued her labors in the educational institution and remained active in university affairs until within a short time of her death. She was a sister of Ezra McCagg, a Chicago attorney for many years.

The funeral will be tomorrow with burial in Graceland.

Commercial Club Names Officers for Ensuing Year

At a meeting of the Commercial club held last night at the Union League club the following officers were elected: President, Harrison B. Riley; vice president, Louis A. Ferguson; secretary, Alfred Cowles; treasurer, Homer A. Stillwell; members of the executive committee: Edgar A. Bancroft, one year term; Charles H. Markham and Donald R. McLennan, two year terms; chairman of the reception committee, Albert A. Sprague; members of the reception committee, Clarence A. Pettet, John T. Pirie, James Simpson, and Soloman A. Smith.

UNIVERSITY MEN FLOCK TO TRAIN FOR COMMISSION

Colleges in Midwest to Send Hundreds to Encampments.

Colleges and universities of the middle west are responding enthusiastically to the call for rookies for military instruction at the four middle west officers' training camps, to be opened on May 15.

Most of the college men who have accepted the opportunity to train for commissions with the first 500,000 troops raised are seniors. Though the men will be in training and will be unable to be present on their commencement days, they will receive their diplomas by mail at the request of the government.

The University of Illinois stands first in the number of men accepted. It has already furnished 393. All will go to Fort Sheridan. They are regarded as exceptionally fine timber for officers because of the military training requirement at the university.

The University of Wisconsin has furnished 175 men; University of Chicago, 202; University of Michigan, 200, and Purdue at Lafayette, Ind., 175.

Muncie, Ind., has sent more men, taking into consideration its population, than any other city in the fifteen states in the central army department, according to Maj. Paul Malone, in charge of the department training division.

A telegram from Maj. George Goode, in charge of the St. Louis office, was received yesterday saying that 869 applications had been received at his office and that 533 men have already been certified to the commander of the camp at Fort Riley. The latest figures on the number of men accepted for the four camps are: Fort Sheridan, 3,400 (capacity 5,000); Fort Benjamin Harrison, 2,900 (capacity 5,000); Fort Snelling, 2,000 (capacity 2,500), and Fort Riley, 2,300 (capacity 2,500).

OBITUARY.

DR. WILLIAM E. BAKER, 54 years old and a practicing physician in Chicago for twenty years, died yesterday at the Francis E. Willard hospital from pneumonia after an illness of three days. He is survived by a widow and one son, William E. Baker Jr. Funeral services will be held at the residence, 1000 Dakin street, Tuesday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock and at the West Chicago Masonic temple, 12 Oakley street, at 2 o'clock, under the auspices of Columbia commandery, No. 63, Knights Templar. Interment will be at Arlington cemetery with services by Hesperia lodge, No. 411, A. F. & A. M.

WALTER SCATES, 77 years old, former publisher of the Sewing Machine Advance and manufacturer of sewing machine accessories, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arden B. Lapham Jr. of 1239 Madison park, from stomach trouble. Mr. Scates was the eldest son of the late Judge Walter Bennett Scates, and served in Taylor's battery in the civil war. Besides his daughter he is survived by two brothers, Charles and William Scates.

WILLIAM ALBERT SHARP died May 3 at Duluth, Minn. He was a resident of Chicago for twenty-seven years and was born in Bloomington, Ill., in 1860. He was a member of Englewood blue lodge, Englewood chapter, Englewood commandery, and Oriental Consistory and Mystic Shrine. Four daughters, Mrs. O. E. Lafleur of Pittsburgh, Mrs. A. C. Vickery, Mrs. Dorothy Kilduff, and Mrs. H. M. Robbins, survive him.

DR. WALTER DEMAREST, known in Chicago and New York as a musician, died yesterday in the Morris Plains, N. J., hospital, of an illness which had invalided him for twenty-three years. He was 62 years old. The funeral will be held tomorrow in Hackensack, N. J., with burial by the Masonic order, of which he was a Chicago member. He leaves a widow and two sons, Calvin, the billiardist, and Dean Demarest.

JAMES B. BRADFORD, 84 years old and a resident of Chicago since 1871, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Keenon, 2145 West Adams street. Funeral services will be held at the residence on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be at Forest Home cemetery.

DEATH NOTICES.

IN MEMORIAM.

BURD—I have knelt at thy shrine, my brother. I gave a promise, the same as thine, to help the widow and orphan, and my fellowmen. Those are deeds that must be done to make our life sublime, so that our word will always live to end of all time. Copyright by Frand Addison Burd, Chicago, Ill.

JONES—Virginia Alice Jones; in loving memory of our baby dear, who was called to heaven one year ago, May 6, 1916.

A beautiful rose to use was given,
  A dear, precious treasure God gave;
Mercilessly torn from our bosom,
  Fading away in the grave.
She was too pure for this earth,
  Too beautiful to stay,
So the angels came and bore
  Our darling baby away.
Friends may think the wound is healed,
  Little do they know the sorrow
  That lies within our hearts concealed.

THOMAS AND ETHEL JONES, HAZEL JONES.

KAUFMAN—Otto Kaufman passed away one year ago, May 6.

One sad long year has passed away
  Yet time brings no relief.
I miss you, dear, more each day,
  With sad and bitter grief.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
  How sweet the memory still,
But it has left a lonesomeness
  The world can never fill.

As Compared with Other Values the Jeffery Six Stands Pre-eminent in Its Price Field

Spring and summer touring days lie just ahead—days that invite Chicago's thousands of motorists to the Open Road.

As the days grow sunnier, warmer, longer, the desire for driving is more pronounced.

On the city boulevards and the country roads your attention will be called to the many Jeffery Sixes. For more than 2,000 Jeffery cars are giving satisfactory service in the hands of Chicago owners today.

Note how silently these cars wind in and out through traffic tangles—how easily they negotiate the country roads, uphill and down, through sand and mud. Their drivers rarely have to shift gears. For the Jeffery Six trottles down to two miles an hour on high and responds to the throttle with marvelously quick pick-up.

If you're planning a tour this summer you'll be interested in seeing this Jeffery Six work out. Ask one of our demonstrators to show you what this car will do on the hills, through mud or deep sand. After you see the energy of this wonderful 53-horsepower Jeffery "Six" motor translated into real pulling power and road performance, you'll know it's a car you can trust for every emergency that comes with a trans-continental run.

Built 93 per cent complete in Nash shops by skilled builders, this Jeffery Six is a car that is road-ready the day it is delivered. It is a car that stays fit season after season after thousands of miles of severest service.

The stream lines you'll approve. You'll like the cut of the trim hammock slung body.

Come to our new daylight showroom at 2258 Michigan Avenue. See this car. Inspect the electrically propelled glass encased motor. It will give you a new definition of fine workmanship and a thorough understanding why the Jeffery Six stands pre-eminent, the unquestioned leader in its price field.

BUTTER IS CHEAP!

That statement shocks you, but it is true. It shocks you because you have been taught and accustomed yourself to think that Butter is dear—no matter what its price.

It's an odd superstition and responsible for a good deal of penny-wisdom and pound-foolishness in our kitchens and on our tables.

When family expenses are running high and require cutting down, the first item to fall under the axe is Butter.

You think that Butter is dear; and do not know, therefore, that, in very truth, it is one of the cheapest necessities.

You forget that it is not what you pay, but what you get for what you pay which determines whether a product is cheap or dear.

Shoe-pegs are cheaper than oats; they look alike; they seem alike. Yet no one would undertake to fool his horse by feeding him shoe-pegs.

And you cannot attempt, with impunity, to fool yourself, your breadwinners, your growing children, on the Butter which they want, crave, need, and must have, for proper nourishment and proper growth.

Butter is not merely a relish for bread; it has a high food-value of its own. And besides making the bread more palatable and digestible it doubles and trebles the nourishment in proportion to the amount used.

That is why children are so eager for bread and Butter, spread on thick. They just need it; their bodies crave for it, and when you deny it to them or curtail it you check their vitality and their growth.

Once you know this important truth you will no longer be lured to save pennies from the family-allowance at the expense of family health.

Butter Is Cheap

Butter is not merely a fat in cooking, baking and frying. It adds food-value—high food-and-energy value and digestibility to everything with which it is used.

The steak, fish, fowl, vegetable, bread, biscuits, pie, cake, etc., prepared liberally with Butter, not only are better, taste better, digest better, but because of the high food-and-energy value of the Butter used give more nourishment, build body, bone and brawn, and promote growth.

Butter never is a debtor. It pays its way and returns dividends. It gives back in health-value, unfailingly, infinitely more than its cost. And anything which does not merely tickle the palate but feeds, nourishes and repairs waste should be the last, not the first, to fall under the axe of retrenchment.

Butter is cheap. It stands at the very top of nourishing, health-giving, energizing foods, and at the very bottom in prices.

Let us prove it to you.

One way of showing the value of foods is to determine their respective energy values.

While the energy-value of its fat-content does not express the entire food-value of Butter, it furnishes in energy-value alone more than any other palatable food for every dime spent.

Halibut	158	energy-values
Veal cutlet	173	”
Eggs	211	”
Pork tenderloin	223	”
Potatoes	225	”
Chicken	239	”
Sirloin steak	278	”
Leg of lamb	286	”
Round steak	296	”
Ham	363	”
Pork chops	479	”
BUTTER	682	”

Butter at 50c a pound gives you three times as much energy-value as eggs, pork tenderloin, or potatoes; and more than double the energy-values procurable in sirloin steak, leg of lamb, or round steak.

Inform yourself upon such astounding facts.

REMEMBER

It's not what you pay, but what you get for what you pay, which must determine your choice. By that standard you will eat MORE Butter, not less; you will cook with BUTTER in preference to any other fat, because Butter gives you greater value in health, strength, vitality, growth, and appetizing food than any other.

And remember also:

BUTTER IS CHEAP

"THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR BUTTER"

NATIONAL DAIRY COUNCIL, 130 North Fifth Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

This Council is composed of 280,000 dairymen, dairy cattle breeders and representatives of all allied dairy interests. Its purposes are to build a greater and better American dairy agriculture—resulting in improved soil-fertility and better farm life—to encourage every American consumer to have a keener appreciation (like European nations) of the high food value of dairy products. The Council believes its mission is patriotic.

A wider use of dairy products on the tables and in the kitchens of our American homes will mean a healthier and cheaper fed nation. Our slogans are: "Drink and use more milk." "Eat and cook with more butter." "Ice cream is not alone an excellent dessert, but a real food." "Cheese is the staff of life of many nations; why not in U. S. A.?" "Dairy products—palatable, nourishing, economical—are Nature's best food."

Send me your free book, "Fifty-one Dairy-Dish Recipes", and your literature concerning the food-value and economy of Butter and its effect upon growth.

BY OTTO ENGEL.

In the first extra inning combat of the season St. Ignatius academy nosed out Lake Forest academy, 3 to 2, at the White Sox park yesterday. Both pitchers hurled remarkable ball, each allowing four bingles, but Condon's performance was more noteworthy because he fanned twenty-four batsmen. After being held helpless for seven rounds, the locals knotted the score in the eighth by shoving two across and won in the twelfth when Bulger walked, stole second, advanced a peg on Frawley's infield hit, and scored on Hackett's hard smash to the pitcher. Oak Park clinched second place after the first round of play in the Suburban league by beating Evanston, 11 to 7, in one of those old fashioned swatfests. Catcher Cooley was forced to quit in the second round when he suffered a broken second finger on his right hand. Powers starred at bat, driving six runs home and scoring another. Score:

CRAZY KENNEDY, DETECTIVE

Words AND Pictures

BY RING W. LARDNER

CHAPTER 1.

"KENNEDY," I said to the famous detective one morning, "this is the finest day we have had this spring. I should think it would do you good to forget your experiments for a few hours this afternoon and come with me to the ball park."

"I would simply love to!" replied my friend. "But this morning I received a letter from my brother, a minor league ball player, saying that he would be in on the noon train and that he was in great trouble."

"Your brother!" I exclaimed. "I never knew you had one."

"To quote Shakespeare," Kennedy answered smilingly, "'there are more things in heaven and hell than you ever heard of, Benvolio.'"

CHAPTER 2.

It was after 1 o'clock that afternoon when the door opened and an extremely ugly young man entered the laboratory.

"Ah, brother, I see you are here!" said Kennedy.

"Wonderful, brother!" replied the newcomer.

"Shake hands with my pal, Morrison of the Daily Times," said Crazy. "Morrison, this is my younger brother, Slacker."

"I am charmed to meet you, Mr. Kennedy," said I, "despite the fact that you are no Venus de Milo."

LARDNER

"You Are No Venus de Milo."

Slacker Kennedy opened his mouth in a smile, displaying a set of teeth that seemed to have been collected at random.

"You wrote that you were in trouble," said Crazy to his brother. "You can speak as freely before Morrison as if you and I were alone."

"I am in terrible straits," began Slacker. "Congress has passed the draft bill, and it looks as if I were doomed. I am 23 years old and single, with no dependents, and am in perfect health."

"I deduce," deduced Crazy, "that you want to escape service."

"I see your powers of deduction are unimpaired," complimented the visiting brother.

"And," continued my friend, "you want us to show you a way out."

"O, if you only would!" exclaimed the other, glancing appealingly at us both.

"Why not get married?" I suggested.

"I'm surprised at you, Morrison!" Crazy scolded. "Does Slacker look to you like a person who could inveigle a girl to the altar, even in an unconscious moment?"

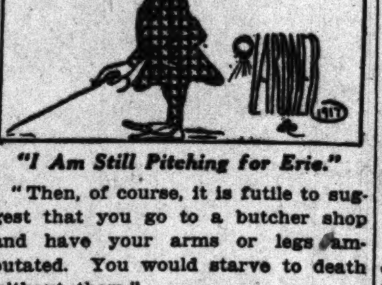
"I have tried that method," said the younger Kennedy. "I even visited a home for the blind and proposed to every female inmate. But they all insisted that I describe my appearance, and when I had complied they laughed and sent me away."

"Can't you catch some disease?" I inquired.

"That, too, I have attempted. But though I spent hours in several contagious hospitals, I came out as good as new."

"Slacker," said Crazy, "are you still earning your living by playing ball?"

"Yes," was the reply. "I am still pitching for Erie."



"I Am Still Pitching for Erie."

"Then, of course, it is futile to suggest that you go to a butcher shop and have your arms or legs amputated. You would starve to death without them."

Crazy pondered silently a moment.

"Slacker," he resumed excitedly, "I have it! Come with me! And, Morrison, I believe you had better stay here, lest what happens nauseate you."

CHAPTER 3.

At 8 o'clock in the evening Crazy returned to the laboratory alone.

"Where is your brother?" I asked.

"My brother," replied my friend, "is beside the New York Central tracks at Englewood. And," he added, "he will not have to go to war."

"How did you do it, Crazy?" I inquired.

"The only logical way," he answered. "I made him lay his neck on the outside rail, and when the train came along his head was cut off. And now," he concluded, smiling, "he is not only immune from military service, but he is much better looking and he can still earn his living as a pitcher. And when he wakes up he will be right near a train for Erie."

Columbus, O., May 5.—By defeating the Illinois nine here this afternoon Ohio State won a pitchers' battle, 1 to 0. The cause for Illinois' grief was a wild pitch by Klein in the third inning, while Staudt, left fielder, was reposing on third base. Studt had walked, reached second on a sacrifice, and third on a fielder's choice. Capt. Wright of Ohio held the visitors to five hits and Klein of the Illini allowed only four singles. Score:

REDLEGS' SPURT IN FIRST ROUND BEATS CUBS, 7-4

Six Runs in Opener Rout Hendrix and Offset Rally in Ninth.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

If it only had been a little below zero yesterday the Cubs might have been saved from defeat. It was just as cold as on the previous day, and as the Cubs won so easily on the previous day no one even considered calling off the game of yesterday and the Cubs went out expecting to rake the Reds into another defeat. Zero weather might have caused Manager Mitchell to consent to a postponement. As it was he played the game and the Reds kicked the Cubs all over the lot before one inning was played and won out by a final count of 7 to 4.

The whole thing about yesterday's affair was that Mitchell made the wrong guess on the selection of a pitcher. He sent Claude Hendrix to the slab firmly convinced that Claude had his old spitter and his fast ball and his curve all working as they never worked before. The Reds knocked his swell spitter and his fancy curve and his remarkable fast ball all over the north side lot in the first inning and scored six runs before Claude knew he was in a ball game. He had to be rescued by Vic Aldridge before the round was over or it might not be over yet.

Cubs Start Spurt in Ninth.

Aldridge then hurled a beauty game for the rest of the way, and in the ninth the Cubs went upon a rampage and drove in four runs and had three more on the sacks, just enough to tie the count, when the final out was made. It was a lively finish and a lively start and a terribly chilly affair between times.

Perhaps if it hadn't been so chilly the Cubs would have knocked the Reds flat again. The whole ball game hinged upon one measly little bit of a play in the first inning which went against the Cubs because Fred Merkle's fingers were so numb he wasn't able to realize all the things he felt.

Merkle dropped a perfectly thrown ball in that round, a ball that bounced to Zeider and was pegged over to first base as it is supposed to be pegged. Merkle dropped it because he didn't feel anything in his fingers on account of the cold, and the beans were spilled right there. One run should have been scored by the Reds in the first inning, but because of Merkle's numb fingers six were scored before three men could be retired, and the ball game was shotell.

Aldridge Stops Redlegs.

It got so bad before the first inning was over that Hendrix was sent to the shower bath without even getting warmed up and Blossom Aldridge was summoned to service. Blossom did some valiant hurling for the balance of the combat and would have shut out the enemy except for a mistake in the ninth which permitted the seventh run.

Pete Schneider, the husky hurler who was driven behind the curtain in the first inning on the previous day, was the man on the slab for the Reds and breezed along nicely with a six run lead until he grew overanxious in the ninth and blew into small bits. Manager Mathewson, who from his long experience on the slab knows all about the shivers which a slab man encounters, yanked this big German boy and sent Knetzer, the knuckle ball expert, out to save the game. Knetzer made good, but he allowed the Cubs to get to the point where another swat or another base on balls would have made a sad story for Cincinnati last night.

Of All Sad Words——

When the final out was made the Cubs had three men on the bases and Fred Merkle at bat. Three runs were needed to tie and Merkle's best was a measly little Texas leaguer sort of fly ball which was capturd by Kopf. Had Merkle hit one into the left bleacher the final score would have been Chicago, 8; Cincinnati, 7.

GOLF!!

Noted Instructor Will Write Series of Articles for Golf Readers of "The Tribune."

George A. O'Neil

George O'Neil will write a comprehensive series of golf articles for THE TRIBUNE.

Of course you know George O'Neil—nearly every golfer of note in Chicago calls him "George." You can now become one of his pupils, and therefore a fellow alumnus of John D. Rockefeller, Mason Phelps, Donald Edwards, Addison Stillwell, Miss Elaine Rosenthal, Miss Caroline Painter, Miss Myra Helmer, and many other tournament winners.

O'Neil's services and methods always have been in great demand for instruction. He does not believe any one can learn golf "by the book," but he does think any player can improve his game by studying his faults and trying to remedy them.

In the articles to be published O'Neil will appeal as much or probably more to actual players of experience as to novices. While there will be plenty of A B C rudiments, O'Neil's discussion of the different clubs and their proper use, theory of shots and errors common to golfers, will supply information as well as food for thought to those who already play a pretty fair game.

The series promises to be the greatest contribution to instructive golf literature written up to this time, and by a man who knows how to play golf and how to teach it.

Recently a prominent Chicagoan whose wife ranks in the championship flight was asked if she would read such a series of articles by O'Neil.

"Read them?" he replied. "Why, she'd frame them."

The first article, one of three on "The Driver," will appear next Sunday. The stories have been in type for some time, but O'Neil has been insistent in his theory that the time to read golf is after golf is actually being played, so the articles have waited for the backward spring.

Refreshing your memory on O'Neil's early history, he was one of a group of American boys who learned the game under the tutelage of Joe Mitchell of Cleveland. He located in Chicago and was professional at the old Auburn Park Golf club. When the Beverly Country club was formed in 1908 he laid out that course and remained there until last fall, when he became associated with the new Chain-O-Lakes Country club of South Bend as manager.

For several winters he conducted an indoor golf school in Chicago. In other seasons he was in southern California, where he gave lessons to John D. Rockefeller, who also had been a pupil in Cleveland. Last fall he laid out the new course at Howey, Fla.

BROWNS TALLY AFTER RISBERG DROPS POP FLY

BY I. E. SANBORN.

St. Louis, Mo., May 5.—[Special.]—Ernest Koob throttled Comiskey's de luxe twenty-four cylinder machine down to one scratch hit which did not pass the infield today and emerged from a slab duel with Eddie Cicotte with a 1 to 0 victory because Swede Risberg dropped a pop fly which he was trying to take away from Felsch in the sixth inning.

Chicago had only one chance to make a run and owed that to a two base wild throw by Lavan. The Browns made for themselves only one opportunity to count and were cheated out of that by perfect play behind Cicotte. Two other chances fell to the lot of the home team, and one of them was improved. Sisler whaled a single into right field after Austin had reached second base in the sixth on Risberg's effort, and that was all there was to the game.

One Sox Reaches Second.

It was a featureless game, as pitched battles always are. The features were all negative. Seven Rowlands reached first; one got as far as second, and nobody farther. Imagine working up any enthusiasm over that. Weaver's lone hit came with one down in the first inning. He chopped a high bounder to the first base side of Koob. Ernie Johnson, who was subbing at second, tore in and tried to pull a brilliant stop and throw, but failed. A double play on Eddie Collins' rap to Koob sterilised that hit.

Four passes were issued by Koob, all of them after two were out, so they were worthless. The only visitor who reached second base was Gandil, who opened the fifth with a rap to Lavan and reached second when Johnny hurled wildly to first. Chick was right there on second when the side went out.

Risberg's Muff Fatal.

Cicotte, who pitched a no-hit game against the Browns last time here, was touched for five safeties, but would have blanked his opponents if given perfect support. The fatal sixth began with Shotton's pop fly to Risberg. Austin followed with a popup back of second. Risberg, Felsch, and E. Collins were eligible, but Risberg claimed the chance. He muffed the ball, letting Austin to second, from where he raced home on Sisler's single

Once before that and once thereafter Cicotte was in trouble. In the third a scratch hit, a pass, and a boot by E. Collins filled the bags with one down. Austin soaked a hard bounder to Risberg, who fielded cleanly and forced Lavan at the plate. Sisler struck out.

In the seventh Marsans led off with a double to left, and was sacrificed to third by Johnson. Lavan poked a warm one to E. Collins, who nailed Marsans at the pan, and Koob fouled the side out.

Notes

St. Louis, Mo., May 5.—[Special.]—Two games are booked here for tomorrow.

Looks as if the White Sox needed cranking.

Jackson was back in the game, although slightly lame. He was allowed to walk to first twice and did not have any severe fielding to do.

Lavan's first hit was an accident. He half ducked away from a ball which hit his bat and caromed off just over Gandil's head for a single.

Cicotte passed Marsans with two gone in the fourth, then picked him off first base when the Cuban took a prolonged nap.

The sun was shining when the Rowlands reached town, but clouds gathered in the afternoon. It was the best weather the Rowlands have seen since they opened the season here on April 1.

CIRCLES BAT OUT 13-3 VICTORY IN CRAFTSMEN TILT

Wilson Hits Homer with the Bases Full in Win Over Bohemia.

Art Wilson pounded a homer with the bases packed and his drive paved the way for a seven run rally by the Circle nine in the eighth inning of a Craftsmen's league game at Gunderson avenue and Harrison place. The Circles beat Bohemia, 13 to 3. The game featured the Craftsmen's league opening round. Score:

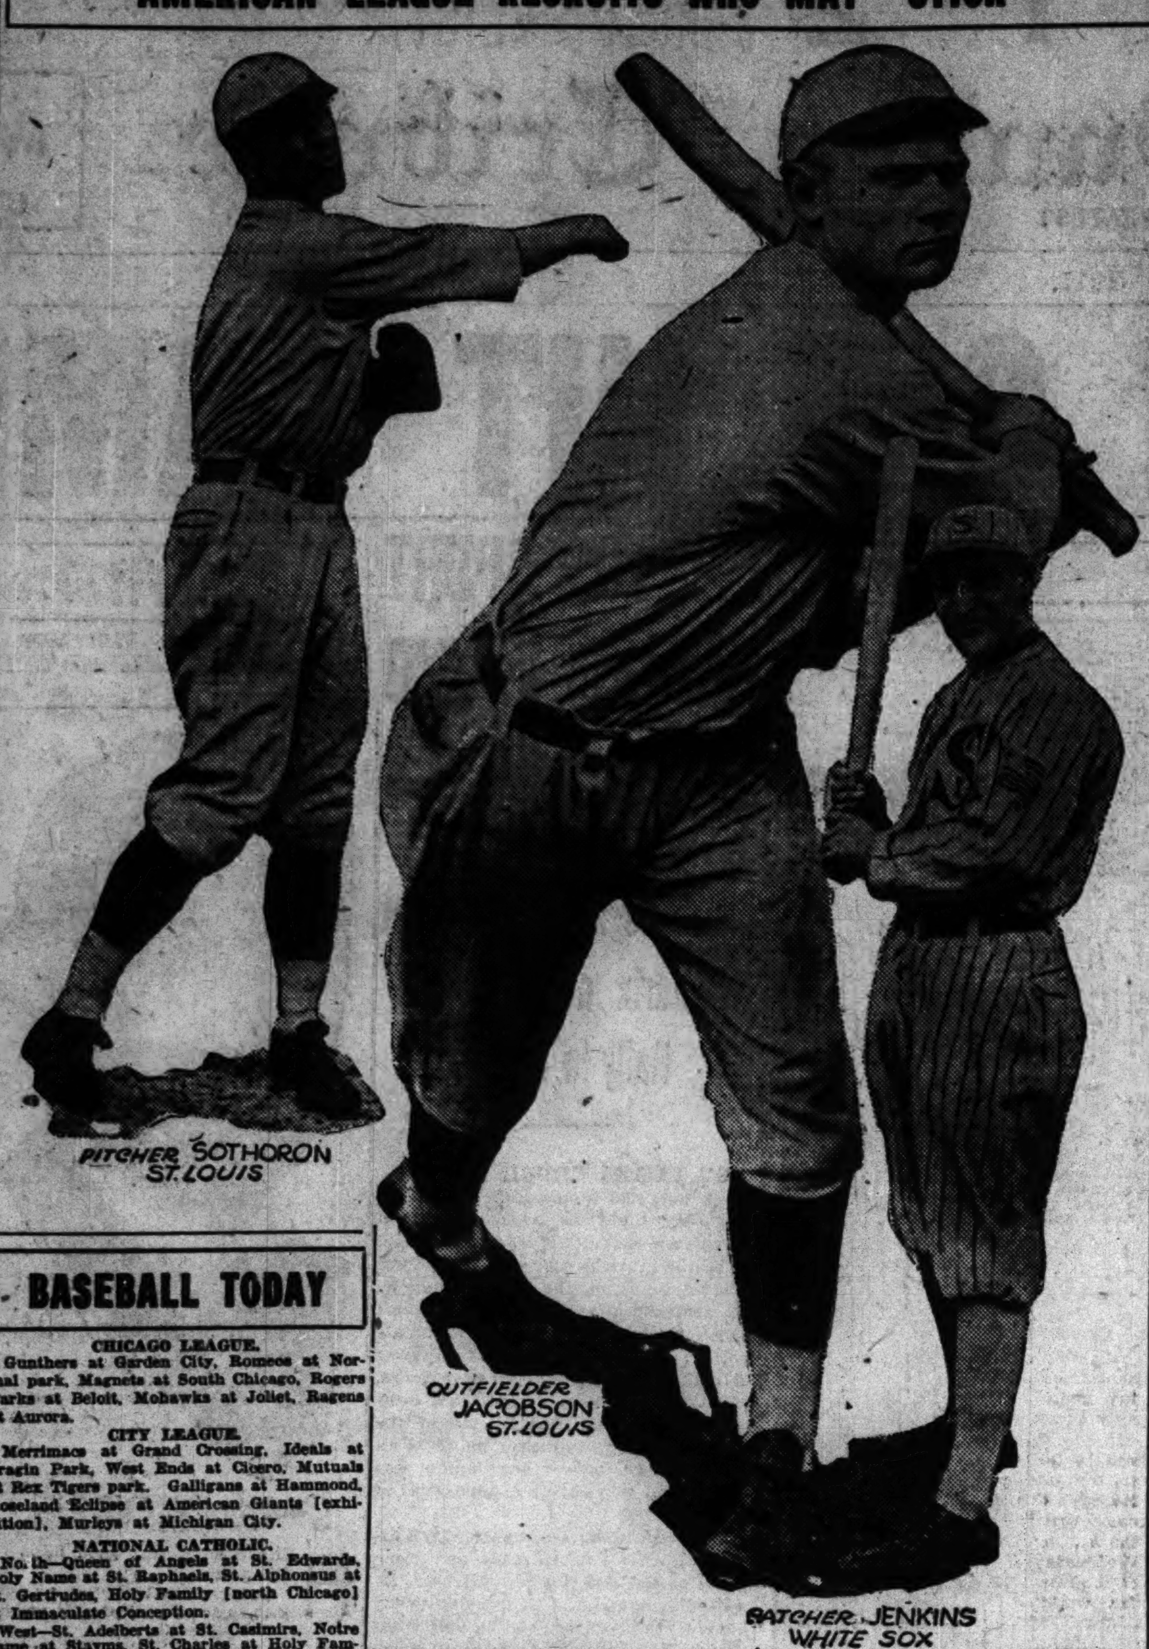
AMERICAN LEAGUE RECRUITS WHO MAY "STICK"



PITCHER SOTHORON ST. LOUIS
OUTFIELDER JACOBSON ST. LOUIS
CATCHER JENKINS WHITE SOX

FIELDER JONES' proverbial luck with pitchers did not desert him when he severed relations with Comiskey and the White Sox. In Allan Sothoron, a sturdy right hander plucked from Portland of the Pacific Coast league, Jones and the Browns seem to have the best looking pitching prospect of the season. In his trials thus far Sothoron has more than made good. Outfielder Jacobson, another Brown recruit, has been giving a good account of himself and seems billed for a regular job in the big show. Catcher Joe Jenkins of the White Sox is a newcomer from the Texas league. He has not been tried behind the bat in a championship game, but Manager Rowland thinks pretty well of him and he probably will be retained to help out Schalk and Lynn should occasion demand. Jenkins earned a rep as a slugger by swatting .319 for Houston last year, and Rowland has an idea the youngster will hit 'em against American league hurling.

Notes

The Reds left for home last night, and Jim Callahan and his Pirates will open a two days' engagement at the north side today.

Art Wilson had a finger split by a foul tip during that first inning rumpus and had to retire for repairs. His place was filled most admirably by Rowdy Elliott. By the way, Rowdy is now one of us, because it is past the first of May, and he either had to be a real Cub or be shipped to Oakland by May 1.

Hal Chase slipped one over on Larry Doyle in that first inning fuss. The bases were filled, with one out. Hal was the runner on second when the batter hit to Zeider. Zeider tossed to Doyle for a force play at second, and Doyle held the ball while Chase scored all the way from second, following the runner in from third.

INQUISITIVE FANS

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Runner on first base and batter hits ground ball to first baseman, who touches first base and throws to second ahead of the runner. Is not this considered a forceout at second base and a double play, or must the man running to second be touched? Is not the runner forced to occupy second base, or can he return to first base? J. D. REILLY.

Runner ceases to be forced the instant first base is touched, consequently can return to first and must be tagged to be retired.

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A fielder catches a fly ball while on the run. He falls, and while on the ground the ball touches the ground, but the fielder still has it in his hand and has not fumbled the ball. Is the runner out or safe? L. G. J.

Runner is out.

Platteville, Wis.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Who led the National league in hitting in 1916 and where did Hal Chase finish? F. A. L.

Hoelke of New York first, Chase of Cincinnati was second. Chase was really entitled to first place as Hoelke played in only thirty-four games.

A Friend In Deed

AN auto jack should be, above all things, dependable. Picture a tire gone flat; an isolated road, night coming on. In a "pinch" like this, it's up to your jack to get you up and away, quickly. If it fails there's trouble in store.

Can you afford to face a situation like this with an unreliable jack? With

Hartford
AUTO JACK
The Best Jack Money Can Buy

in your tool box, you can successfully meet this or any other emergency. The Hartford will not stall, collapse or break.

It's the easiest-working auto jack—15 pounds of wrist-pressure upon its handle smoothly lifts 1000 pounds of car-weight upon its rack. It is the strongest jack built. Its gears are turned from solid steel; its case is tough malleable iron. Its base is broad and firm. More, its handle is long, its stroke, short. And it is beautiful to look upon.

Who tries, buys, for test proves it best. Ask your dealer. Ask any user.

FRANKLIN

The Experienced Motorist Deliberately Chooses the Franklin Sedan for Every-Day-in-the-Year Motoring—AND WHY?

WHEN seeking a car that you intend to keep on the road twelve months of the year, hold these facts before you:

He has had intimate knowledge of other fine cars.

And based on that knowledge, he deliberately chooses the Franklin Sedan for all-year use.

The reasons he tells us for this choice, are the reasons back of every sale we make of a Franklin Sedan:

It is lighter and more resilient than the average fine touring car. These features make it practical for all kinds of touring anywhere—and at any time.

Takes Roads as They Come

Its scientific light weight (every experienced motorist knows Franklin scientific light weight) goes over rough roads with the ease, the freedom from shock and strain, that protects you and the car; makes hills with the same ability as a touring car; and gives you a speed, for the day's run, that won't make you apologize for your car.

Touring Comfort Above the Ordinary

In summer, for instance, when touring is regarded as a pleasure in a touring car, it actually is a pleasure in the Franklin Sedan. You feel as fresh and cool at the end of the tour as at the start. The dust and dirt, the sun glare and sunburn, the rain and the storm are outside your car.

The V-front, with four adjustable sections, lets in what you want, and shuts out what you don't want—just like ventilating your own home.

If you are anxious to learn about a new touring comfort, come to our show rooms and examine this car.

SPUDS AND CORN, BEANS, TOO, AT ONWENTSIA CLUB

Golfers Allot Ground to Raise Foodstuffs as a War Measure.

BY JOE DAVIS.

Onwentsia golfers will contribute potatoes, corn, and beans to the war vegetable fund. Approximately six acres have been planted with the tubers, several with King Corn, and more with the Boston staple. The work will be directed by competent gardeners and a middle master trained in boy scout work has been engaged to aid the caddies in doing their bit in helping care for the crops.

All members of the club who accept service in the army or navy will have their dues waived during the period of such service. Orders have been issued to all departments of the club for strict economy in expenditures and no new work, changes, or other expenses will be incurred beyond those required for the proper upkeep of the property.

All cups and prizes will be omitted from the events this year. A record of winners will be kept and perpetuated in some form. Employés of the club at their own volition have suggested a meatless day each week.

Don't Quit Golf, Says Eaton.

Marquis Eaton, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, who plays golf at Flossmoor, has addressed a letter to President C. C. Paddock of that club urging him and his fellow directors to encourage the members to continue to play. Mr. Eaton says in part:

"My observation is that the average golf player is a man of large business and community activities. He looks to golf for that wholesome rest and relaxation which enable him to bear up under the strain. For these reasons I should deplore any studied effort to dissuade people from playing golf because our country is engaged in war.

"In any choice between golf and service every patriotic man will choose to serve. The correct view of golf is that it helps men to think clearly and serve well. The time may come when the government will require from each of us not only a portion but all our time and energy. It would be intemperate to say that, with respect to the average business man, that time has as yet arrived."

Ad Men Hold Tourney.

Forty members of the Western Advertising Golfers' association competed in the first tournament of the season at the Grand Beach, Mich., course. A. J. Busselman won low gross prize in the qualifying round, C. V. Hodges taking low net. Fred Sperry won the first flight, Busselman taking the consolation prize. Winners in the other flights and consolation winners were:

Second flight—Grey Sullivan, Tom Swirles.
Third flight—W. F. Kentnor, F. C. Merrill.
Fourth flight—W. A. Jordan, Don Campbell.
Fifth flight—W. A. Sturgis, Wallace Patterson.
Sixth flight—P. A. Skelton, J. H. Ward.
Seventh flight—Noel Morency, P. W. Fowler.
Eighth flight—R. B. Johnson, L. A. Hodges.
Ninth flight—H. B. Fairchild, H. Inman.
Tenth flight—C. V. Hodges, F. T. Short.

Flossmoor.

Despite a chilly breeze over 100 members competed in the opening event of the season at the Flossmoor Country club. It was a novelty contest against bogey in which contestants were credited with a point for each hole made in bogey figures and additional points for "birdies" or "eagles." Warren T. Wood piled up a count of 21 points and won in class A. A. J. Allen won in the other class with a total of 17. E. B. Tolman taking the runnerup prize with 15.

In the ball sweepstakes A. F. James, with [illegible]—81, led the field, while Tolman finished second with 104—17—87. Other scores registered were N. B. Higbie, 107—19—88; A. J. Allen, 105—[illegible]—88; E. K. Findley, 116—26—90.

Calumet.

Yesterday's feature at Calumet was a blind bogey sweepstakes. Honors rested between R. W. Heath and H. W. Beum, each registering a net of 81, which were the blind figures. The former had a gross of 99 and handicap of 18, while Beum registered 101 less 20. Low gross was annexed by W. D. [illegible], who negotiated the round in 85, taking an allowance of 6, giving him a net of 79. Second place resulted in a triple deadlock between W. C. Brown, 105—25—80; J. W. Revel, 102—22—80; and E. C. Towslee, [illegible]—80.

Jackson Park.

William Brown had low net score in class A in the monthly class handicap at Jackson park with a card of 76—9—67. P. M. McCann was second with 76—5—71. Other scores in class A were: Clyde Cadwell, 78—6—72; J. C. Flanagan, 84—12—72; T. F. Lyon, [illegible]—73; A. B. Cole, 85—12—73. The pairings are Brown and Lyon, McCann and Cole, Cadwell and Flanagan, byes.

Park Ridge.

Park Ridge golfers opened their season with a ball sweepstakes and the qualifying round for the Publicity Committee cup. Winners in the former were: H. E. Stebbings, P. T. Kelly, W. H. Coleman, A. J. Carstens. The qualifying round will be completed today.

Chicago.

Sixty players took part in the initial contest of the season at the Chicago Golf club, which was a handicap for a Saturday cup. R. H. Scott had low gross and net with a card of 86—6—80. Dr. W. A. D. Montgomery with 103—20—83 was second. Other leading cards were: C. G. Osborne, 89—5—84; Thomas [illegible], 96—10—86; K. L. Ames, 92—2—90.

Edgewood.

C. C. Glos took first prize in the handicap at Edgewood with a card of 103—28—75. C. E. Wakefield, 97—17—80, and H. H. Mitchell, 85—5—80, tied for second place. Other leading scores were: J. P. Johnson, [illegible]—83; W. R. Keelen, 121—30—91; R. G. Marvins, 107—16—91.

Maywood.

Maywood members competed in an eighteen hole contest with 1917 handicaps applying for the first time. E. G. Allen led with a card of 83—11—72, while Paul Burnett followed with 80—5—75. Other prize winners were: K. Pedersen, 81—5—76; D. Weber, 78—2—76; B. F. Davis, 80—2—78; T. E. Henry, 88—10—78; F. T. White, 90—11—79; J. C. Hanley, 93—14—79; F. C. Cutler, 85—5—80; W. Gibson, 91—11—80; J. T. Hanson, 96—16—80; G. H. Lambert, 90—7—83.

La Grange Boys In Lead.

La Grange with a total of 477 led in the first of the three rounds for the Suburban High school golf championship staged yesterday morning at Skokie. Thornton had 483, New Trier, 498; University High, 526, and Bloomfield, 563.

Davis of Thornton had the best individual card with 77, two strokes over par. He went out in 37 and home in 40, getting the long fifth hole, 590 yards, in 4.

Healer and Hartshorne of New Trier were protested on the ground that they had received pay for caddying. The former had 97 and the latter 87. The protest will be decided by the Suburban league officials, as golf is not recognized by the state board. The second round will be played on Saturday at a south side course.

Call to Form Boys' League.

The Chicago Boys' Baseball league will be launched tomorrow night at the Briggs house. This league will be composed of teams between 12 and 16 years old. The meetings will be called at 6:30 o'clock, so the youngsters can get home early.

CONQUEROR OF JOE STECHER WHO CLAIMS WRESTLING TITLE

Earl Caddock

If Earl Caddock of Anita, Ia., former amateur champion, can defeat Ed (Strangler) Lewis and Joe Stecher on the mat he will rival in popularity Frank Gotch, whose retirement has left these three grapplers as the most logical field from which to pick his successor.

Both Lewis and Stecher, largely because no suspicion of fraud, for which the mat game is noted, or rather notorious, ever has attached to their names, are popular, but Caddock, much lighter than either, will have the popular sympathy because of this physical disadvantage.

Caddock weighs around 180 pounds, despite futile efforts to build up. Stecher in his best condition ranges around 205 pounds, while Lewis scales between 225 and 230. Lewis, it will be remembered, weighed only 185 pounds when he first came into prominence.

Caddock, as the conqueror of Stecher, and Lewis, who beat Olin, who had a referee's decision over Stecher, seem the logical pair to meet for the title. There is, however, disposition among critics to concede that Stecher belongs in the ranking on his past performances.

In the accompanying photograph Caddock is shown applying a scissors on head and wrist lock.

STIFF SOCCER MATCHES TODAY

The Slavia-Swedish American soccer game in the Peel cup competition at Forty-sixth street and Kedzie avenue this afternoon will be one of the biggest attractions of the tournament, as each team has a large following and the winner enters the semi-final round. Palmer Park Jrs. will meet Harvey at Pullman in an equally well matched contest for a berth in the semi-finals. This round already has been reached by Joliet and Corinthians.

In the first division of the league Corinthians will play champion Joliets at Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove, and Campbell Rovers will tackle Bricklayers at Thirty-fifth and Wentworth avenue. The Brickies will be without Truesdale, their outside left, who has enlisted.

In the third division Sellers will play at Rangers field and Union meets Fram II. at Fram's ground.

Hall Leads Marksmen at Lincoln Park Traps

E. E. Hall had high score of 83 at the Lincoln park traps yesterday. The program called for twenty-five targets at sixteen yards, twenty-five at eighteen yards, twenty-five at twenty yards, and twelve pair of doubles. It was the ninth of a series of twelve to decide the Lincoln park championship. Leading

MORIN BATTLES BERT TREDICK FOR CUE HONORS

With only six more games to play, the race for first place in the Chicago Billiard league has narrowed down to Charley Morin of Mussey's Monroe street room and Bert Tredick of Conklin's. They have to meet twice, and should Morin, who is leading by one game, win he will take first prize, while a victory for Tredick will bring about a tie, and leave the championship up to the final game. Standing:

	W.	L.	B.G.	H.R.
Morin, Mussey's II	13	3	48	9
Tredick, Conklin's	12	4	52	7
Klatcher, Howe's	10	7	67	8
White, Frasor's	10	7	59	8
Rogers, Bensinger's	10	7	57	8
Shea-Lauben, Mussey's I	9	8	56	9
Graumann, Dearborn	7	9	74	8
Le Gros, Casino	7	10	51	7
Ward, Leffingwell's	4	13	76	6
Lundgren, Petersen's	1	17	76	7

The Red Cross should benefit largely from the final week's play in the Chicago Billiard league tournament, as the whole of the receipts will be donated to the fund. In addition, 10 per cent of the receipts of the big three cushion tournament which will start on Wednesday night at Mussey's Monroe street room will go to the fund.

Should Tredick win from Morin they will be tied and first place will depend on the outcome of their final game at Mussey's the following Monday. On Friday night no game will be played in the All Star tournament. This will open Wednesday night, Maupome, champion of the Interstate league, meeting Cannefax, world's champion.

LA GRANGE TRACK CRACKS ENLIST, WRECKING TEAM

Konousky and Wilson Quit to Start Drill—Coach Will Go to Front.

La Grange's track team, the one which has been winning more than its share of honors in recent years, was shot to pieces yesterday with the announcement that George Konousky and John Wilson will leave next week for a point in Missouri to start military training.

Konousky was regarded as one of the best all around track men developed in the county high schools. In a meet with Oak Park he won five firsts.

Director of Athletics F. S. Moore of La Grange handed in his resignation to take effect June 15. He plans to join the Harvard medical unit which will sail for France about June 20. Moore has developed a baseball team which is leading the Suburban league with five victories in its first round of play and promises to go through the schedule without a defeat if his star pitcher, Bielby, shows the same brand of ball he has displayed recently.

Winter Still with Us; Ice Races at the Arena

Winter surely must be with us yet! In three ice skating races the final of the 1916-17 season, at the Chicago Arena last night, Roy McWhirter of the Northwest Skating club won first honors in each contest. Brick Larsen of the Norwegian Turners was second in two events. A crowd of 4,000 saw the program. Summaries:

½ mile—Won by McWhirter, Northwest; Brick Larsen, Norwegians, second; W. O. Simonsen, I. A. C., third. Time, 1:30.

¾ mile—Won by McWhirter; Larsen, second; R. M. Reed, Riverview, third. Time, 2:23 2-5.

Mile race—Won by McWhirter; Reeds, second; Vic Gunderson, I. A. C., third. Time, 3:11.

RED CROSS TENNIS

A SERIES of tournaments, involving the coöperation of about 1,700 women in the metropolitan district, has been started at the West Side Tennis club, New York. The idea is credited to Miss Bessie Holden of New Rochelle, who saw in bridge parties arranged for the benefit of the Red Cross a plan that might be worked out for tennis.

Sixteen women representing New York clubs were asked to play, doubles being scheduled so that it might be finished in one day. Each of the sixteen women pledged herself to hold a tournament at her club, in which twelve would take part. Each of these twelve, in turn, will pledge to arrange another tournament, in which eight friends will play. If all the events are played this will involve 1,744 women.

An entry fee of $1 is charged for the various tournaments and the players provide balls, so there will be no expense. The money thus raised will be given to the Red Cross.

ELECTRIC TEAM VICTORS AT NET

Western Electric tennis players won every match from Commonwealth Edisons on the victors' courts yesterday in the first round of the Commercial league. Summaries:

BUCKETTS LEAD STATE BOWLERS IN FIRST PLACE

Their 2,916 Not Expected to Stand Onslaughts in Next Two Weeks.

At the end of the first week of the tournament of the Illinois Bowling association, the Bucketts of the Forty-seventh Street Business Men's league are the leading team in the main event with 2,916. The figures are sure to land them up among the topnotchers when they are paying off the prize money, but it is hardly expected that it is high enough to cash as state champions. The competition has two more weeks to run. The second highest team is the five from the National Union, nearly 100 pins behind the Bucketts.

Scripps-Booth

Transportation Plus

The union of luxury with light weight in the Scripps-Booth makes motoring a pleasure.

It takes Scripps-Booth out of the class of merely rapid-transit cars.

Scripps-Booth offers you the dignity, the comfort, that you usually associate with heavy cars.

In addition it gives you, at a reasonable price, those highly desirable characteristics of handiness and economy—possible only in light weight.

It will cost you only a little of your time to find out wherein Scripps-Booth is distinguished from other light cars.

Is this Bad Banking?

Day after day, year after year, a Million Dollars lies invested in idle tobacco in the big storerooms of the OWL Cigar factories.

As fast as one lot is taken out to make OWLS and WHITE OWLS, a new lot replaces it. The reserve supply of leaf never falls in value below a Million Dollars—far oftener exceeds it.

We could get 5% interest on this Million Dollars. Why do we literally throw it away?

The reason is—to make OWL Cigars and WHITE OWLS more than usually mellow. Eighteen months on an average are required to remove all the greenness of the natural leaf. OWL inspectors check every bale of leaf at exactly the right time to insure getting ripe, full-flavored tobacco for every OWL and WHITE OWL.

You gain the profits from this Million Dollar investment, in added mellowness, whether you smoke OWL Cigar at 5c or WHITE OWL at 6c.

BRIDGE INTAGLIO REQUIRES SKILL OF HIGH ORDER

Deal Shows Move Calls for More Cleverness than Grand Coup.

The grand coup is the most stylish though by no means the most difficult play in auction. It consists in trumping a trick already won by your partner in order to get rid of a superfluous trump and establish a tenace in trumps for the end play of the deal.

The reverse of the play, the intaglio, is more clever and requires skill of a higher order, as the next deal shows:

The hands:

N.: S—K, J, 9, 2. H—K. C—Q, 9, 7. D—Q, J, 7, 6, 3.

W.: S—8, 7, 4, 3. H—J,9,6,5,4,2. C—6, 3. D—8.

E.: S—A, 10. H—A, 7. C—A,K,J,5,4,2. D—9, 5, 4.

S.: S—Q, 6, 5. H—Q, 10, 8, 3. C—10, 8. D—A, K, 10, 2.

Score, 0-0. East dealt and bid one no-trump, west two hearts, and the bidding closed. North had the opening lead.

West secured eleven tricks.

South's Play Helps West.

Up to the fifth trick the only prospect for west was hard work to make his contract, but at trick five south made a play which was equivalent to the grand coup for west.

While it is usually good play to compel the declarer to ruff, in this deal west should have realized the importance of keeping an extra trump in the south hand, if possible, in order that he might be certain to make the ten of hearts.

After the sixth trick west was certain to take all the rest regardless of his adversaries' play.

South said after the deal that he might have lost a trick by leading spades at trick five unless north held both the king and knave of the suit. North replied mildly that it would be difficult to lose more than all the tricks, no matter what his combination was.

Deal Shows Common Error.

The next deal illustrates the most common error in auction:

THE HANDS.

N.: S—K, Q, 9, 6, 4, 3. H—J, 10, 4. C—3. D—A, K, 3.

W.: S—A, 10. H—Q, 7, 6, 5. C—A, K, 9, 2. D—Q, 10, 4.

E.: S—J, 7, 2. H—A, 8, 3. C—Q, J, 8, 7. D—9, 7, 5.

S.: S—8, 5. H—K, 9, 2. C—10, 6, 5, 4. D—J, 8, 6, 2.

Score, 10-10, rubber game. North dealt and bid two spades, west two no-trump, north three spades, east three no-trump, and the bidding closed.

North had the original lead.

West secured nine tricks.

The declarer should never lead a queen to finesse unless he hold the knave in one hand or the other. Failure to observe this rule has greatly increased the cost of living.

In the last play it was necessary for west to play the queen of hearts at trick seven because he could tell that north was keeping three hearts.

PREP CAPTAIN JOINS COLORS

Seeing prospects of action in the ranks, Capt. Paul Foster of the 1916 Marshall High school city lightweight basket champions enlisted in the coast artillery service and yesterday was ordered from Chicago to St. Louis barracks. Foster is 19 years old and one of Marshall's best all around athletes besides being popular in all school activities.

When he joined Uncle Sam's service the recruiting officer promised young Foster a furlough when his class's graduating time draws around next month, and the high school authorities did their bit by handing over his 1917 diploma a month and a half before he should get it. Young Foster lives at 958 North Hoyne avenue.

He will take special studies to fit him for examinations for an officer's army rank, as a result of his high school teachers' endorsement as a first rate scholar.

BUCKEYES BEAT INDIANA IN MEET

Bloomington, Ind., May 5.—[Special.]—Ohio State won a closely fought dual meet from Indiana today, the final score being 66½ to 59½. Because of the heavy condition of the track no exceptional records were made. Both teams were badly handicapped by the loss of men who have left school to join the colors, Weir, star dash man of the Hoosier squad, having departed this week. Heuring of Indiana won three firsts for his team. Indiana failed to get a place in the half mile because of the loss of its three best men.

Woods and Waters by LARRY ST. JOHN

IMPORTED TROUTS.

THE so-called German brown trout (Salmo fario) is more fortunate as regards a name than is the guinea pig. For while fario was not "made in Germany," and ordinarily is not brown, he is a trout; but the guinea pig is neither a pig nor comes from Guinea. This trout also is called the Von Behr trout by some eastern anglers, simply because the eggs first imported to this country in 1883 were the gift of a German fish culturist by that name.

The brown trout is the brook trout of England, the same fish mentioned by the good dame Juliana Berners, and nearly 200 years later by Cotton and Walton.

The young trout fisherman fishing the waters east of the Rockies is very likely to land one of these fish, and may wonder what it is. It differs from our brook trout, fontinalis, by having scales that can be seen with the naked eye and by not having the wormlike markings on the back that characterize fontinalis. It is not as beautiful a fish as our brook trout.

* *

Like a great many other imported citizens, the brown trout does better in this country than in his native land. In England about four ounces a year is supposed to be the normal annual rate of increase in weight; in this country they will average nearly a pound a year gain. Dr. Henshall tells of two of these fish that weighed six pounds each at four years of age. They have been taken in this country up to sixteen pounds.

Naturally, growth like this comes from gross feeding habits, and for this reason it is not advisable to plant these fish in small streams where our native trout are holding their own. On larger streams brooks, rainbows and browns appear to get along all right together, and we are inclined to doubt the stories we hear about the brown trout driving the brook trout from big rivers.

The chief value of the brown trout is that he will thrive in water that is warmer and not so highly aerated as is necessarily for the well-being of fontinalis.

* *

As to the gameness of "brownie," listen to the experts: "The brown trout is, without doubt, the least attractive of all the trouts in America," says Charles Southard, while William C. Harris says: "It has no angling qualities that render its presense desirable in our trout streams."

On the other hand, O. Warren Smith says: "There is no question in my mind that the introduced fish (brown and rainbow trouts) are in all game points the peer of the native brook trout." Samuel Camp opines that, "purely as a sporting proposition, the brown trout is a decided success; in other words, he puts up a good fight." You know all about it now!

Fario has one advantage, however, over the brook trout; he leaps freely on a slack line, which is something fontinalis seldom, if ever, does except on the covers of magazines. Another thing in his favor is his willingness to rise to flies. In this respect he is decidedly superior to most other trouts, and he is not so all-fired particulars as to patterns.

He rises better, though, at dusk, or even after nightfall, which is true in less degree of all game fishes. Also he has a pronounced preference for small flies, and in England they use those tied on Nos. 18 and 20 hooks—flies so tiny that a mosquito might take one for a twin brother. The green drake, stone, alder, and sand flies are good brown trout patterns.

* *

Another trout imported to this country is the Loch Leven [S. Levenensis], which is related to the brown trout, but to what extent is a debated question. Concerning this fish Harris says: "Loch Leven trout were introduced from Scotland in 1885 and have been widely distributed in the United States and are now propagated by many state fish commissions with success, the foreign fish spawning about the same time as the red spotted trout. It is about equal in fighting qualities to our eastern species, rising well to the artificial fly, with a peculiar qualification of this habit in its native habitat, where it seems that two trout of distinct colorations exist, one silver and the other yellow. These fish are said to rise to the fly on alternate days, neither encroaching upon the hours in which his brother or sister is feeding."

This latter statement seems to us to be nature faking, although we are not familiar with the habits of these fish and so do not speak from experience with this species. From what we know of fish in general—well, it sounds "fishy" to us.

Incidentally, since Harris wrote the above the enthusiasm for the Loch Leven trout has died down and more browns and rainbows are being planted where the brook trout no longer thrives.

MAROONS SURE TO STAGE H. S. MEET

The University of Chicago interscholastic meet will be held on June 2, as scheduled. Both Michigan and Illinois have canceled their spring high school tournaments, but the Midway officials will adhere to their plans. Coach Stagg takes the stand that athletics should be a feature of the preparedness movement.

A greater entry list of prep athletes is expected than last year's total, which passed the 500 mark. The Maroon director believes the enlistment of the oldest high school boys for army and farm duty will not materially reduce the field.

There is considerable agitation for limiting the field to high school athletes. Academy stars in the past have scored heavily in the point column, and the high school coaches have asked that the older academic athletes be put into a separate division or barred from entry. Director Stagg will go over the results of the last ten meets before ruling on the question.

The tennis tournament will be held as usual, and 150 entries are expected for the net meet.

CHESS TITLE TO CHICAGO CLUB IN ANNUAL TOURNEY

Coe of Kenwood Individual Winner—Czaikowski Earns Honor.

The Chess club championship of Chicago was won by the Chicago Chess and Checker club. The Northwest club, which got one leg of the cup last year, finished third. Two wins, not necessarily in succession, insures possession of the cup.

A. H. Coe of Kenwood was the individual prize winner with six straight wins. Final standing:

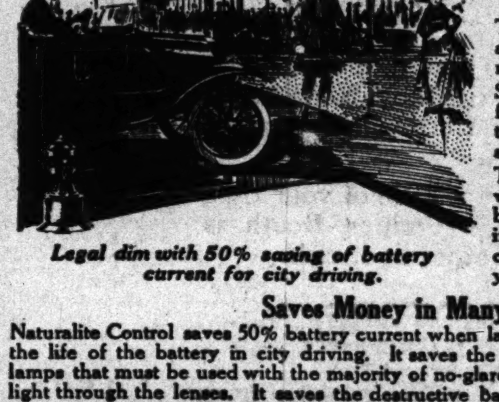
MOTOR PRODUCTS COMPANY UNIVERSAL INDIANAPOLIS

Safety First—Courtesy Always

Make night riding safe. Meet every requirement of city ordinances—have the full brilliancy of your lamps instantly available for emergency lighting and for driving on county roads—get the right side ditch light with left lamp dim (road courtesy) for passing approaching cars on the road, and get it with Naturalite Control and ordinary clear head light glasses. The only safe form of lighting. Don't accept diffused light or obstructed light from no glare lenses as a safety feature. A strong pair of head-lights on a car coming towards you will eat up all the diffused light your lamps can send out. Keep the glare out of the driver's eye in the approaching car, by dimming your left headlight. And yet give him a light that his eyes are accustomed to. This is road courtesy and safety at the same time. Get full brilliancy on the edge of the road from your right lamp.



Legal dim with 50% saving of battery current for city driving.

Legal Dim for City Driving

Naturalite Control cuts down current consumption from your battery in proportion to the volume of light, when dimmed for city driving or your car is standing at the curb. Use the simple switch on the dash board of your car to adjust degree of dim to suit conditions. When you want full brilliancy, simply push the button on the steering column and the full current from the battery comes into the lamp giving you the maximum lighting power of the lamp. Pushing button back gives same degree of dim as before.

Right Side Ditch Light for Country Roads

The full unobstructed brilliancy is available for country driving. It is not an ounce too much.

Same control button gives the change from the full brilliancy of both lights to left light dim and right or ditch side light bright.

This is safe lighting—lighting that will prevent accidents either from blinding the driver of the approaching car or darkening the road ahead of you so that you cannot see where you are going.

Full brilliancy of lamps for country driving or for emergency use in the city.

Saves Money in Many Ways

Naturalite Control saves 50% battery current when lamps are set for legal dim, doubling the life of the battery in city driving. It saves the expense of specially high powered lamps that must be used with the majority of no-glare lenses to force anything like a safe light through the lenses. It saves the destructive battery action these oversize bulbs—it saves necessity for two bulbs in one lamp—all this is money in your pocket And the right side full brilliancy ditch light prevents the blinding effect of switching from full glare to legal dim. You always have road light that your eyes are accustomed to.

Our Money-Back Guarantee Protects You

Our Money-Back Guarantee is your protection. If you are not convinced at the end of a thirty day trial that Naturalite Control is absolutely necessary for your safety—for your convenience—send it back. If it does not give you the best lighting you ever had, it costs you nothing. We will refund every penny of your purchase price. If it gives you all we claim for it, you would not part with it for many times the price charged. Send coupon todav

THE real estate market made a remarkably good showing again last week. In the number of deeds recorded there was a falling off as compared with the corresponding week a year ago, but there was an unusually good run of important transactions in which practically all classes of property were well represented. It was a surprisingly good showing considering the disturbed condition of the public mind as regards investments and the general business outlook, born of the new problems which have come to the front with the advent of war.

One of the most noteworthy transactions of the week involves another new building for Montgomery Ward & Co., making the third announcement of important additions to their plant at the Chicago avenue bridge within a few weeks. The Chicago Railways company has sold to David Shetnitz, Wil[illegible] Armour taking title, the property at [illegible] Kingsbury street, 135x155 feet, running from the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul tracks west to the river. The property, which comprises 20,000 square feet, formerly was occupied by the Kingsbury street power house of the railways company, and the consideration is said to have been $50,000. The sale was negotiated by Krause, Beak & Co.

Building for Montgomery Ward.

Paul C. Loeber & Co. have negotiated a deal whereby the owner will erect for the occupancy of Montgomery Ward & Co. a seven story building to cover the entire lot, to cost between $225,000 and $[illegible]. This has been leased by Loeber & Co. to Ward & Co. for ten years at an annual rent of $26,000, with option to extend for an additional ten years. In connection with the construction of the building Greenebaum Sons' Bank and Trust company have underwritten a bond issue loan of $150,000.

Another transaction, involving an important improvement in the south side automobile district, was the purchase by Robert M. Fair from Mary E. Webb et al., through Charles O. Goss of E. A. Cummings & Co., of 100x160 feet, west front on Michigan avenue, 100 feet south of Thirty-ninth street, for an expressed consideration of $25,000. Mr. Fair will improve it with a two story building, which he has leased to the Old Reliable Motor Truck company, which occupies the building, 100x160 feet, adjoining on the south. The new building will be similar to the present one, will cost about $60,000, and has been leased for [illegible] years, the rent being based on 7 per cent on the cost of the ground and building.

Purchase on Prairie Avenue.

Another transaction of a similar character was the purchase by William M. Derby from Albert H. Wetten of the property at 2239-43 Prairie avenue, lot [illegible] feet, with old improvements, for a reported consideration of $36,000. Mr. Derby will improve this piece, together with the 87x120 feet at the northwest corner of Twenty-third street, with a one story building to cost around $[illegible], which he has leased to the General Motors Truck company for their Chicago office, salesroom, and service station for ten years at a term rental of $75,000.

The sale and lease were negotiated by Albert H. Wetten & Co., who leased the present General Motors Truck company building at 2241-45 South Wabash avenue to the Chicago Marmon company, which, after proposed improvements, will use the building for a service station for their Marmon cars.

In connection with the Prairie avenue deal Chandler, Hildreth & Co. made a loan to Mr. Derby of $77,500, ten years, [illegible] per cent.

NEW THEATER ON SOUTHWEST SIDE

Building to Cost $225,000 to Be Erected at Twenty-second and Marshall.

The Marshall Square Theater building is the name of an attractive structure being erected at the southeast corner of Twenty-second street and Marshall boulevard. It will occupy a lot 165x145 feet and is expected to cost $225,000.

It will contain twelve stores on the ground floor, twenty offices on the upper floor, while the theater will have a seating capacity of 2,200, making it one of the largest in the city. The owners are L. L. Marks, J. Goodman, M. S. Marks, and L. H. Harrison.

It was designed by Architect A. L. Levy, while the negotiations in connection with the purchase of the land were conducted by R. L. Huszagh, who will have charge of the building.

Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company has underwritten a bond issue of $125,000 at 6 per cent in connection with its construction.

FLAT BUILDINGS FEATURE WEEK IN REAL ESTATE

Two South Side Transactions of Importance Recorded.

There was much doing of an important character again last week in apartment property, the week's business being featured by two large south side transactions, the most important of which was the sale by A. W. Harper to W. A. Bunting of the high grade thirty apartment building at the southwest corner of Dorchester avenue and Fifty-second street. The building, which was completed about two years ago, occupies a lot 150x187 feet and is said to have a gross annual rent of about $25,000. A nominal consideration is given in the deed, but the actual price is said to have been about $185,000.

Mr. Bunting conveyed in part payment the thirty-five court apartment building at 442-46 East Thirty-fourth street, which is said to have a gross annual rent of about $12,000, at a reported consideration of $80,000. Frank H. Lang represented both parties to the transaction.

Forty-eight Apartment Sold.

The other was the sale by Maurice M. Robinson of Detroit, Mich., to O. E. Hotle of Oakland, Cal., of the new forty-eight apartment building, court style, of two, three, and four rooms, at 821-27 East Forty-ninth street, lot 100x250 feet. The building is said to have a gross annual rent of $22,000, and while a nominal consideration is given the actual price is said to have been $165,000, subject to an incumbrance of $89,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment a 160 acre ranch in Stanislaus county, Cal. Krause, Beak & Co. were the brokers.

Sherman T. Cooper, the builder, has sold to William J. Sutherland the new high grade six flat building in Drexel boulevard, 167 feet north of Forty-eighth street, lot 51x122 feet, west front, consideration nominal, subject to $27,000 incumbrance.

The twelve flat building at the northeast corner of Ingleside avenue and Fifty-third street has been sold by H. G. Howard & Co. for Alice Siegfried to W. E. Massey of Louisville, Ky., for $40,000, subject to an incumbrance of $25,000, the purchaser conveying in part payment a farm of 120 acres near Elkhart, Ind.

The twelve apartment building of four rooms on a lot 72x115 feet at the northwest corner of Ingleside avenue and Fifty-sixth street, has been sold by William F. Woodruff to E. E. Tolman for an expressed consideration of $40,000, subject to an incumbrance of $17,000.

Six Apartment Sold.

Daniel S. Fling has purchased from Thomas E. Telfer et al. the six apartment building at 1522-24 Sherwin avenue, lot 52x150 feet, being 227 feet west of Sheridan road, for a reported consideration of $42,000, subject to $25,000, giving in part payment a frame dwelling on 50x128 feet in Bosworth avenue ninety-one feet north of Howard, valued at $15,750, and vacant in Sherwin avenue, 50x150 feet, 475 feet west of Sheridan road, at $6,750.

Thure N. Peterson sold to John F. Reiner the twelve apartment building at the southeast corner of Eightieth and May streets for a reported consideration of $42,000, subject to $26,000 incumbrance. The purchaser conveyed in part payment a two flat building at 1252 West Sixty-fourth street, 50x125 feet of vacant on Marquette road, opposite Marquette park, and 55x125 vacant at the northeast corner of Fifty-fourth and Throop streets. It is planned to improve the Sixty-fourth and Throop street corner with a twelve flat building to cost $40,000. James H. Ryan & Co. were the brokers.

Judge Pam Makes Him Support Both His Wives

Adam Brozdowski of 429 North Marshfield avenue became officially a man with two wives yesterday when he was ordered by Judge Hugo Pam to support Mmes. Marie Brozdowski of his own address and Lewandowski Brozdowski of 2013 Cortlandt street. The former has three small Brozdowskis and the latter two. In the courtroom they chatted in the most bland spirit of amity. Judge Pam sternly rebuked Brozdowski, but said he was forced to forego sending him to prison in the hope that the women and their children would be supported. This support he declared the defendant must provide on pain of punishment.

Real Estate Transfers.

Real estate transfers filed for record yesterday totaled 197, of which 142 were in the city and 55 outside, including 20 under the Torrens system. Transfers were as follows:

"TOWN MEETING" FRIDAY ON COURT EFFICIENCY

Changes in the procedure in the courts of Cook county are to be discussed in a "town meeting" of lawyers which has been called by Miles J. Devine at the Hotel Sherman next Friday night.

"Our purpose is to consider ways and means of increasing the efficiency of the courts and expediting the trial of cases," said Mr. Devine. "We welcome suggestions from any one."

Invitations have been extended to judges of both the county and the city courts to attend the meeting, as well as attorneys in the city law departments and the state's attorney's office.

Closed Purchase of Site for Augustana Hospital

The Deaconness institute of the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church has finally closed the purchase of the old plant of the United States Brewing company at the southwest corner of Garfield avenue and Sedgwick street, which is to become the site of the new Augustana hospital. The property is 379x268 feet and the consideration named in the deed, which was filed for record yesterday, is $100,000. It is expected work will begin on the first of several units in the early fall, the total of which is expected to amount to between $800,000 and $900,000.

$50,000 Building Sale in Downtown District

A downtown deal was the sale by the trustees of the Shea Smith estate to Scott Hanford of Boston of the eight story building and the leasehold estate at 322 Federal street. While the consideration is not disclosed, it is understood to have been valued in the neighborhood of $50,000.

In part payment Mr. Hanford conveyed three residences in Evanston of an aggregate value of about $50,000. Frederick T. Hoyt represented the Smith estate and Mason & Smart of Evanston Mr. Hanford.

New Secretary for Cook County Realty Board

C. T. A. Anderson has been elected secretary of the Cook county real estate board to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John P. Carney. R. C. Duncan has been elected a member of the board of directors. The Tuesday luncheon of the board will be a "jollification" one and will mark the last one before the summer vacation.

BUILDING PLANS ANNOUNCED FOR 7 STORY HOTEL

New Sheridan Road Structure Will Cost $150,000.

There were several important building projects announced during the week in addition to those mentioned elsewhere, one of them involving the erection of a seven story hotel and store building on Sheridan road to cost $150,000. It will occupy 50x143 feet at 4105 Sheridan road, now improved with a ten room stucco residence. The property was purchased by Eliza J. Holmes from David H. Wherrit for $25,000. The purchaser will improve in the fall with the hotel and store building, which will contain three stores and about 100 rooms. Mr. Hammer of Spelz & Walson was the broker.

A three story store, office, and flat building is to be erected by Charles O. Loucks, F. H. Atwood, and Emily A. Pease, to cost about $150,000, on a part of the vacant tract owned by them at the southwest corner of Avondale avenue and Irving Park boulevard. The tract comprises 421x66x174x83 feet.

W. D. Kerfoot & Co. have closed the sale of twenty-nine thirty foot lots in the block bounded by Fifty-fifth street, Fifty-sixth street, Washtenaw avenue, and Fairfield avenue, for the Chicago Title & Trust company, trustee, to Samuel Morowitz. The purchaser intends improving these lots with moderate priced bungalows costing to construct about $2,500 each.

Forest Park Sale at Madison and Desplaines

Jacob M. Schimberg has sold to Hattie E. Harris, wife of Abraham Harris of Harris Bros. company, southeast corner of Madison street and Desplaines avenue in Forest Park, 120 feet on Madison by 306 feet on Desplaines and 300 on Ferdinand avenue. The corner fifty feet are improved with a three story building containing stores, offices and lodge halls. The entire property is leased to the Pabst Brewing company of Milwaukee. A nominal consideration is given, subject to an incumbrance of $18,000, but the actual price was reported to be $41,000. Regelin, Jenson & Co. represented both parties.

John A. Carroll Sells More Boulevard Frontage

John A. Carroll has sold to Arden B. Lapham 100 feet of frontage on Hyde Park boulevard, running through to Madison park, about 400 feet east of Woodlawn avenue, for $25,000, which is at the rate of $250 a foot. It was a cash transaction, and is the second sale made by Mr. Carroll of the tract recently acquired by him from the heirs of John H. Dunham. Mr. Lapham plans to improve at once with a high grade elevator apartment building to contain seven rooms, three baths, sun parlors, and sleeping porches to cost about $60,000.

Bridges to Be Closed.

The Fullerton avenue and Madison street bridges will be closed today for a few hours for repairs.

Opportunity for Stock Broker

A large manufacturing company is considering an issue of several hundred thousand dollars preferred stock in order to take care of business that has increased rapidly during the last three years; also purchase additional factory site and facilities. Would like to hear from parties who are able to dispose of this class of security on favorable basis. The proposition is strictly first class, and applicants will require to have satisfactory record and banking references. Give full particulars in reply, which will be kept confidential.

ADDRESS K A 30, TRIBUNE

SNAPPY WEEK IN OUTSIDE REALTY FOR BUSINESS

Sizable Transactions in Many Sections of the City.

Other business property made a remarkably fine showing last week, both as regards the number and character of the many transactions reported.

An important west side transaction, made a matter of record, was the sale by Daniel R. Carmode to George B. Limbert & Co. of the property at the northeast corner of Jefferson and Fulton streets. The lot is 204x151 feet and is improved with three buildings, a machine shop, salesroom and office building, and shipping building now occupied by the company. A nominal consideration is given, but the actual price is said to be in the neighborhood of $200,000. The purchasing company handles steamfitters' supplies.

Meeker Purchase.

Arthur Meeker of Armour & Co. appeared as the purchaser in another important deal. He acquired from the Central Manufacturing District the property in Thirty-fifth street, 757 feet west of Morgan street, 69x125, south front, improved with a two story and basement mill constructed building under lease to the Central Manufacturing District bank for a term of twenty-five years.

The bank occupied the first floor and basement, while the Central Manufacturing District club occupies the second floor. The property was first conveyed by the Central Manufacturing District to Thomas A. Oakley for a nominal consideration, and then conveyed by Mr. Oakley to Mr. Meeker, also for a nominal consideration, subject to an incumbrance of $50,000. The actual price is understood to have been $75,000. The purchase is said to have been made as an investment.

U. of C. Sells Land.

In another interesting south side transaction the University of Chicago has sold to Israel Lanski the fee of the property at the southwest corner of Forty-seventh and Woodlawn avenue, 207x125 feet, for an expressed consideration of $50,000. The ground, 207x125 feet, was leased by Mr. Lanski for ninety-nine years about five years ago and improved by him with an attractive three story store and flat building on 118x69 feet of ground.

The property was acquired in the exercise of an option of purchase contained in the lease. The lease provides for an annual rent of $2,500. It is stated the Lanski plan is to improve the vacant part of the lot with a thirty flat building and a three flat building to cost about $115,000.

Another noteworthy transaction in south side business property was the sale by John S. Holmes to Frank R. Crane of the property at the northwest corner of Wentworth avenue and Sixty-ninth street, lot 50x170 feet, improved with a three story office, hall, and flat building. A nominal consideration was given, but reported to have been $60,000. Mr. Crane conveyed in part payment the business property at 1200-10 West Madison street at a reported consideration of $40,000. P. T. Johnson of the office of Frank H. Lang was the broker.

Plotke to Moorhead.

The property at 6712-20 Sheridan road, between North Shore and Columbia avenues, lot 100x120 feet, improved with a row of seven new stores and ten garages, has been sold by Milton S. Plotke to William H. Moorhead for a reported consideration of $60,000, subject to an incumbrance of $35,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment the six apartment building on 66x125 feet of ground at 1113-15 Loyola avenue at a reported valuation of $30,000, subject to an incumbrance of $13,500. Plotke & Grosby, in connection with I. Shapiro & Co., were the brokers.

There was filed for record the purchase by Isadore Goodman from Ben Rothouse of the property at the southeast corner of West Twelfth and Paulina streets, lot 48x125 feet, with store and flat improvements, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $25,000.

What is known as the Oakland building, a five story court store and apartment building on 106x198 feet of ground, east front, in Cottage Grove avenue, thirty-one feet south of Thirty-seventh street, has been conveyed by Eugene C. Howe to John E. Burchard of St. Paul, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $58,000.

The three story store and flat building at the northeast corner of Cottage Grove avenue and Thirty-sixth street, lot 22 feet back to Ellis avenue, has been purchased by George B. Seiter from Henry E. Olson, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $26,000.

Leases and Loans

SEVERAL leases in connection with the construction of new buildings were the most important feature of the week's market in this field, but there was a fair showing in the way of leases of store space in the downtown district. In the most important E. F. Keebler & Co. have leased for John R. Thompson to I. Lipcowitz the store at 206 South State street, just south of Adams street, for a term from May 1 at an annual rent of $12,000. The store will be occupied for the sale of men's furnishing goods and will give Mr. Lipcowitz three stores in the loop.

Keebler & Co. also have leased for John R. Thompson to Ben Roth the store at 210 South State street for a term from May 1 at an annual rent of $12,000, to be occupied as a salesroom for diamonds, jewelry, and optical goods. A new front will be installed.

The same brokers have leased for J. L. Kesner to the Security Drug company the top floor in the building at 529-31 South Wabash avenue, 40x175 feet, for a term rent of $15,000; also for the John R. Thompson company to Harry Rosen the store at 78 West Van Buren street for five years at a term rent of $15,000, to be occupied by men's furnishing goods.

Hool & Goodman have leased for Strauss Bros. to Curtis, Miller & Co. the main and fifth floors of the building at the southwest corner of Van Buren street and Loretta court containing about 20,000 square feet, for a term rent of $60,000, to be used by the lessee company in connection with its mail order business.

The same brokers leased for Judson F. Stone to Brink's Chicago City Express company the bank floor of the Bedford building at 203 South Dearborn street for a term rent of $18,000; also for the Sherwin-Williams company to the Chicago Furniture Distributing company 6,000 square feet of space on second floor of building northeast corner of Twenty-fourth and La Salle streets for a term rent of $12,000; also for J. B. Moos to a number of tenants in the Textile building at Adams street and Fifth avenue for aggregate term rentals of $39,000.

Robert Glendenning has leased through Hart & Whetston to the Brown Specialty Machine company a one story factory building to cost $28,000 to contain 10,000 square feet of floor space which he is to erect on a lot 150x160 feet on Maplewood avenue 160 feet south of Forty-eighth street. The property is served with switch track of the Indiana Harbor belt road and the lease is for a term rent of $30,000.

There was a good run of loans, most building, and for fairly large amounts, practically all of them being for 6 per cent. In the largest loan of the week the Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee, it being for $400,000 and to the Henneberry company, fifteen years at 6 per cent, and is secured by the new plant of the company and the leasehold interest in the land 290x65 feet at the southeast corner of Grove and Twenty-second streets. It is said to be partly refunding and partly for general business purposes.

Record was made of a loan of $55,000, twenty years at 6 per cent, under the Torrens system by the Chicago Title and Trust company to the Maywood Temple association in connection with the construction of the three story temple at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and Second street. It will be three stories high, will occupy a lot 50x100 feet, and will cost about $80,000. It will be occupied by Maywood lodge, Maywood chapter, R. A. M., and Maywood chapter, O. E. S. E. E. Roberts is the architect.

HOMES MOVE RAPIDLY ON ALL SIDES OF CITY

Residence at Rosemont and Kenmore Avenues Sold.

There were some interesting sales of residence property closed during the week, one of which was the purchase by August T. Johnson from the estate of Lightner Henderson of the property at the southeast corner of Kenmore and Rosemont avenues, lot 100x150 feet, improved with an attractive brick and stucco residence of about fourteen rooms. A stated consideration of $55,000 is given, and in part payment the purchaser conveyed the property in Winona avenue, 405 feet east of Sheridan road, 49x140 feet, with residence improvements, for an expressed consideration of $25,000.

Former City Prosecutor George H. White has purchased from Richard Curran the thirteen room brick dwelling on a lot 100x173 feet, east front, in University avenue, 87 feet north of Fifty-third street, consideration nominal, but said to have been about $40,000.

E. C. Mahaffey purchased from Anna M. West the three story granite residence containing eighteen rooms on a lot 50x174 feet at 3642 Michigan avenue for a reported consideration of $30,000. Frank H. Lang negotiated the deal.

The residence of the late Judge Henry V. Freeman at the northwest corner of Woodlawn avenue and Fifty-eighth street, lot 49x178 feet, has been acquired by the Chicago Theological seminary from Mary L. Freeman for $28,000. The purchase gives the seminary, now at the northeast corner of University avenue and Fifty-eighth street, the entire frontage on Fifty-eighth street between Woodlawn and University avenues, opposite the site of the proposed memorial chapel. The deal was negotiated by Baird & Warner and the property was acquired with a view to future expansion.

NORTH BRANCH DOCK PROPERTY CHANGES HANDS

A notable deal in North branch dock property was the sale by the Hanchett Paper company of the property at the northwest corner of North Branch and Haines streets. The sale was made through Hodge & Chandler, the Chicago Title and Trust company taking title as trustee, the name of the real purchaser not being disclosed.

The property, which extends west to the river, has a frontage thereon of 200 feet, with an irregular depth, and contains 44,145 square feet. It is improved with a heavy one story brick building with a floor area of 40,000 square feet and is served by a switch from the Milwaukee and St. Paul road. The price is withheld, and it is stated the Hanchett company will continue there as a tenant.

Buy Land NOW in Western Canada

Opportunities for Land Agents and Home-Seekers

THIS is the day of grain and live stock. Both products are setting new price records. The prosperity of Western Canada is growing daily, for every day sees higher prices and increasing demand for grain and live stock. Now is the time to buy land in the great Canadian West.

Values will mount with the increasing demand for Canadian wheat and live stock. The home seeker who wants to buy and locate on his own farm and the agent who is interested in large tracts for quick re-sale will both do well to investigate our offerings of Alberta and Saskatchewan lands.

Wheat prices moved up to substantially higher levels yesterday, with general interest in the market limited. Commission houses bought wheat on the breaks and the persistency with which the offerings were picked up attracted attention and the buying was generally credited to foreign government interests. Practically the only selling was done by shorts and they found the same scarcity of offerings when they tried to cover that has featured the trade for some time. Prices were strongest near the finish and closed 3¼@6c better than on Friday.

Quietness prevailed in export circles, according to seaboard reports, and there were no indications of business in wheat. Local shipping sales were 5,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 859,000 bu, against 1,224,000 bu a year ago. Primary receipts totaled 615,000 bu, against 926,000 bu a year ago. The Missouri report for May makes condition of wheat 69.9, against 59 a month ago and 62 a year ago. A decrease of 15 to 20 per cent in acreage is shown. Kansas City stocks decreased 480,000 bu for the week.

Corn Quiet but Firm.

Corn displayed little activity, but ruled firm and finished ⅝@1½c higher. Trading in May was especially light. Buying of the deferred futures by cash interests stood out prominently, particularly because of the general lack of interest in the market. Lamson and Van Ness bought September corn, while Jackson Bros. picked up the July. Buying by Armour was also noted. The weather was better over the corn belt, although temperatures are still too low for best results.

Cash corn was steady to 1c higher, with local shipping sales 5,000 bu. Clearances for the day were 62,000 bu. Primary receipts were 537,000 bu, against 942,000 bu a year ago. Missouri state report says 37 per cent of corn acreage has been planted against 19 per cent a year ago.

Good Buying of Oats.

Oats met with some fairly good buying and also drew strength from the other grain. Resting spots showed net gains of ⅛@⅝c for the day. Cash interests bought May oats, and this delivery was relatively stronger than deferred months. Latter met with considerable long selling on the advance. The seaboard reported further indications that efforts are being made to speed up shipments of about 2,500,000 bu oats to the coast for export. Cash oats were steady to 1c higher, with shipping sales 45,000 bu. Primary receipts were 555,000 bu, against 1,125,000 bu a year ago.

Provisions ruled weaker and closed unchanged for lard and lower for other product. There was free selling by Tietgens and Hately, while best buying was credited to Sawyer. Hog prices at the yards were lower. Receipts at western markets for the week were 553,400 head, against 500,000 last week and 543,000 a year ago.

Firm Market for Rye.

Rye was firm. Fancy No. 4 sold at $2.04 and No. 2 was quoted $2.05 nominally. Receipts, 5 cars.

Barley ruled unchanged. Malting was quoted $1.37@1.65 and sold $1.43@1.46; feed and mixing quotable, $1.25@1.35, and screenings, 80c@$1.10, with latter selling 67@90c. Skimmings were quoted 80@92c. Receipts were 9 cars.

Timothy seed was firm. September, $8.35 bid and $8.75 asked. Cash sold $6.50@6.75. Clover seed was easy. Cash quoted $12.00@17.00 and spot prime $17.75 nominal.

Flax seed closed 4c higher. Cash quoted $3.28@3.32 nominal. Duluth was 3c, Minneapolis 4c, and Winnipeg 2@3¾c higher respectively.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE

Local wheat sentiment continues bearish, but short sellers make little headway in depressing prices. Commission houses again bought wheat on the breaks and forced shorts to cover. The general news was without particular influence on the market, prices depending on pit conditions almost entirely. A few buying orders advance prices, while any selling pressure weakens the market. As cash prices continue firm, there is little if any actual hedging pressure, and while the export demand is slow millers continue to pay high premiums in order to satisfy the demand for flour. Jobbers in flour are said to have small stocks, due to recent buying by individual consumers.

Liverpool oats were reported easier, due to increased Argentine offerings, while consumption has been reduced. Canadian and American crop advices were favorable. Barley and rye markets in the United Kingdom are firm, with light arrivals. Continental markets continue to absorb flour offers at high prices.

Logan-Bryan will carry for each of their employés an amount in the new United States bonds equal to two months' salary, the employés to pay for the same at the rate of 5 per cent a month until paid for.

The allies have permitted the purchase of grain by Greece and, according to Broomhall, India will supply all the requirements.

Cash trade in all grains was light, with sales reported of 5,000 bu wheat, 5,000 bu corn, and 35,000 bu oats. The seaboard reports were to the effect that there was little business in wheat, but some intimations of business in oats, although no figures were given. As practically all the surplus wheat has been bought already for export little new business except changing is expected. Minneapolis quoted No. 1 northern 25@28c premium over the May.

A letter from Champaign county, Illinois, to Sincere & Co. said: "There are thousands of bushels of corn and oats in the elevators and on the farms. We did not receive enough cars to move the 1915 crop of corn and practically all of the 1916 crop of both corn and oats is still on hands."

May wheat was reported traded in at $2.80 at Winnipeg and July at $2.62, with only an occasional trade. McKenna-Rodgers had a Winnipeg message saying: "Trade light with crowd inclined to sell October; May and July offered yesterday at 15c difference."

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 41 cars; corn, 82 cars; oats, 105 cars; rye, 5 cars; barley, 9 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 41,000, and for all next week, 150,000 head.

Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 90,000 bu for one day. Flour shipments from Minneapolis yesterday were 68,000 brls.

With fresh receipts of only 9,500 head, hogs at Chicago yesterday opened at a decline of 5c from Friday's average and closed mostly 10c lower. Trade was stagnant, as packers had several loads direct and shippers took only about 500 head. Top sales were made at $15.85 and the bulk at $15.40@15.80.

Final prices made hogs 10@15c lower than a week ago, while pigs showed a decline of 25@50c. Most of the latter here this week sold at $12.00@13.00, with occasional sales of prime strong weights up to $13.75. The average price of all hogs here this week was placed at $15.70, or the same as last week's. Receipts for the week totaled around 162,000, showing a fair increase for the week and standing about the same as a year ago.

CATTLE.

Increased receipts and restricted buying because of high prices worked against the beef cattle market at Chicago this week and prices of steers finished at a net decline of 25@35c. Cows and heifers closed 25@50c lower, with most grades showing the big end of the slump. Trade was only moderately active and buyers appeared to be well provided for at the finish. Calves met with a broader outlet and sold on a strong basis, closing 50@75c higher than a week ago.

Cattle at seven western markets for the week, 154,700, against 128,800 the preceding week, 117,100 a year ago, and 129,200 two years ago. Total for 1917 to date, 2,879,000, against 2,482,000 the same period in 1916.

SHEEP.

New high record prices were made in sheep and lamb values at Chicago this week and the market closed in a strong position at the prices. Lambs sold up to $17.65 for Colorado woolskins, while wool sheep reached $13.50. Shorn lambs made a record of $14.65, while shorn wethers finished the week quoted up to $12.65 and yearlings up to $13.25.

Chance to Till Irrigated Lands.

If the many thousands of people who are holding defaulted bonds of irrigation projects will make the effort they may be able to profit by the present shortage of food and at the same time "do their bit" toward the successful prosecution of the war.

No statistics are available as to the amount of such bonds or the number of acres involved, but it is known that there are hundreds of irrigation projects, some small and some very large, in bankruptcy. Most of them were organized ten or fifteen years ago under the Carey act, and there is a pathetic similarity in their histories. The project was financed by the sale of bonds, the irrigation plant was built and some tracts sold to settlers. Perhaps interest was paid for a year or two, though only partly earned, the backers hoping that a later influx of settlers would save the situation. Their hopes were not realized. Few settlers came and interest could not be paid. Then the bondholders foreclosed. Some projects were reorganized, issuing stock to investors in exchange for their bonds, while others are still in the control of bondholders' committees.

There are now many thousands of these acres of rich land lying under irrigation ditches and capable of producing large crops, but waiting to be tilled. The primary difficulty in the past has been that the lands are so far from possible consumers of produce that there was nothing left for the farmer after the freight charges had been paid.

With the present high prices of food and the practical certainty that they will continue for a long time, there is no apparent reason why the land cannot now be tilled at a profit.

United States Public Service.

C. E.—The United States Public Service company owns subsidiaries which operate in about twenty-five towns having a total population of 101,690 and also in St. Louis. The company has a general franchise in St. Louis, but until recently has operated only in a small way there. Combined gross earnings in 1916 were $1,083,136, an increase of about 18 per cent; net after taxes, $461,831, an increase of 16 per cent. There is outstanding $2,025,000 of 6 per cent preferred stock and $4,555,000 of common, also $2,750,000 of ten year notes secured by deposit of bonds and stocks of subsidiaries. They are said to be subject to $305,000 of underlying bonds, also to some stock of subsidiaries. The underlying charges amount to $81,358 and note interest to $165,000, making a total of $246,358, which is little more than half the net earnings. Evidently the notes are entitled to a fair rating among collateral trust issues.

Wright-Martin.

A. M. D., Neenah, Wis.—The Wright-Martin Aircraft corporation was formed last August with $5,000,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock and 500,000 shares of common. It acquired control of the Simplex Automobile company in order to get the American rights to build the Hispano-Suiza motor. It then started to manufacture motors for the French government, but has been able to turn out few that can pass the tests. As a result it probably has made no profits thus far. Plans for refinancing are under discussion. The stock is purely a speculation at present.

Peerless Truck and Motor.

M. F. H., O'Neill, Neb.—The Peerless Truck and Motor company reported net profits of $1,358,810 in 1916. This figures out at 13.56 per cent on the $10,000,000 of capital stock. There was a loss of $550,637 on a munitions contract and this was charged off. President Gilbart reported that the company had not kept up with orders and was enlarging its capacity about 25 per cent. There is a funded debt of $5,290,000. The capital stock appears to be nearly half water.

Brief Answers.

R. T. N., Kewanee, Ill.—The stocks of the large automobile companies have declined severely in the market, partly because the high cost of materials has diminished profits, also because of fear that the entrance of the United States into the war will stop sales.

E. W. S.—Montana Power is one of the most prosperous of the large utility companies. It earned interest charges in 1916 three and one-half times. The balance after depreciation charges and preferred dividend amounted to 8.18 per cent on $29,407,500 of common stock.

O. C. H., Janesville, Wis.—The Clay Products company furnishes no statements of earnings or condition. There is no basis for an opinion on the merits of its bonds as an investment.

IF you have from $100 to $10,000 to invest and are interested in FACTS, NOT FIGURES, in what has been done and is being done every day;

Not prospects and promises;

If you want to invest your money in something that is paying dividends now and has been doing so for five years;

If you want your money to share equally with every other dollar invested in the corporation instead of taking only six or seven per cent while the common stockholder gets 15 or 20 per cent;

If you want to invest your money in a business that is doing in a wholesale way what the big mail order houses are doing in a retail way;

If you want to make an absolutely safe investment in guaranteed 6 per cent Full Participating stock that is sure to increase in value every year,

Then investigate one of the cleanest and safest business investments that has ever been offered to the public.

NEW YORK BANKS EXHIBIT DROP IN CASH AND LOANS

Decline in Excess Reserve Also Accompanied by Loss in Deposits.

The New York bank statement made an unfavorable exhibit with a loss in cash of $40,259,000. These reserve figures were offset in part by a decrease of nearly $13,000,000 in deposits. The net result was a decrease of $21,164,150 in the excess reserve. That item now stands at $90,478,070.

It had been expected that there would be shown a considerable cash loss due to operations in connection with the purchase of the last offering of $200,000,000 certificates of indebtedness.

A favorable feature of the weekly figures was a contraction in loans of $83,-596,000. This, however, led to some firming up in the call money market. Altogether the showing cannot be gauged in the ordinary way, since the conditions obtaining are extraordinary. The figures follow:

ACTUAL STATEMENT.

	May 5, 1917.	Decrease.
Loans	$3,583,468,000	$83,596,000

Of reserve in vaults $371,676,000 is specie.

*Increase.

Currency Shipments Heavy.

Currency shipments from Chicago during the month of April show an excess of $14,879,918 as compared with receipts, according to figures compiled by W. G. Sturges. This is the largest excess shown for any month of the present year. The figures follow:

RECEIPTS.

	*From east or subtreas.	Other receipts.	Shipments.
Jan.	None	$2,000,000	$9,188,045

Trading Limited on Chicago Curb.

The local unlisted securities market has been extremely dull, and actual trading has been very limited. Reo Motor Car has been the most active issue, declining from sales at 32¼ to 28½ and closing at 28½ bid, offered at 29¼. Paige-Detroit was rather quiet at 31 to 32½. Continental Motors changed hands at 7.

Sugar stocks were neglected. Holland-St. Louis selling at 16⅝ and Michigan Sugar at 97½. Columbia Sugar, which was recently known as German-American Sugar company, sold ex-stock dividend of 100 per cent at 14¼.

Little buying interest was displayed in Butler Brothers' stock, being offered as low as 256. Avery common continues steady at 90 to 91, preferred at 99 to 100. Consumers' preferred was wanted at 77. Deere & Co. preferred changed hands at 100. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company sold in small lots between 290 and 295, but closed offered at 292, with 285 bid.

Public Utilities Quiet.

The public utility group was also quiet. Cities Service common declined from 286 to 280, closing at 282. The preferred changed hands at 87½. Northern States Power common sold from 96 to 94½, the preferred was unchanged at 98½ to 100. Pacific Gas and Electric common advanced sharply from 57 to 62, but reacted to around 60.

Other sales were as follows: Standard Gas common, 11¾; preferred, 37; United Light common, 41¾; preferred, 71; American Light and Traction common, 227; Middle West Utilities common, 53; preferred, 72; Tri-City preferred, 93½.

Chicago Bank Clearings.

Chicago bank clearings for the last week set a new high mark for weekly clearings. Total clearings amounted to $578,807,459, as compared with $442,855,-178 for the corresponding week of last year, an increase of $135,952,281, or about 30.69 per cent. The following table shows the daily and total clearings and balances for the week:

Money and Exchange.

Money rates in Chicago firm at 4½ per cent on collateral, 4½@5 per cent on commercial paper, and 4½@5 per cent over the counter. New York exchange, 15@10c discount. Chicago bank clearings, $77,404,374.

Chicago Securities.

Business was rather dull on the local stock exchange and prices were easier. An exception to the latter was Booth Fisheries common, which showed an advance of 1 point over the opening.

Sears-Roebuck common was off 1½ points. Swift & Co. and Union Carbide were fractionally lower. There were no transactions in Cudahy or Wilson stocks.

NEWS OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD

E. E. Loomis, president of Lehigh valley, suggests that to meet the present crisis the work of railroad valuation be discontinued. He also says there are thousands of extra brakemen carried under the full crew law who could be sent to the front and that a large force of inspectors, all expert railroad men, are employed by the interstate commerce commission, most of whom could be spared.

Sales of copper metal on Friday are reported to have involved about 75,000,-000 pounds, at 29c a pound, for third quarter delivery. The entire amount is understood to be for domestic consumption. One of the largest copper producing interests says the sales of copper for the account of the allies and the United States government will exceed 1,251,000,000 pounds.

The Harris Trust and Savings bank has issued its 1917 edition of "Railroad Bonds." The booklet covers every railroad of importance in the country, giving a complete financial statement, the dividends declared for the last ten years, an analysis of the passenger and freight traffic, and of the territory served, and a detailed statement of the funded debt.

Wall street has reached the opinion that considerable hysteria, extending from Wall street to Washington, is obtaining. In consequence it is remarked that it will be wise to act with prudence. The present condition is regarded as temporary and due largely to moderate fright.

In the individual statements of the state banks in THE TRIBUNE the total deposits of Schiff & Co. State bank were reported at $2,796,051. The correct figures are $1,607,904, as compared with $1,914,373 at the time of the previous call.

Earnings of the Nevada Consolidated Copper company for the March quarter show available for dividends $3,021,000. This is an increase of $466,000, compared with the corresponding quarter last year.

The Russian disturbance has become an unsettling factor in the market. It assumes a serious phase because of the possible prolongation of the war and the increased necessity for money and men from the United States.

RAIL ISSUES WEAK.

New York, May 5.—Weakness of railroad shares, which were again in free supply at substantial concessions, featured today's highly professional market, some of these issues recording minimum quotations for many years. There was unceasing pressure upon these stocks, which included many of the minor western and southwestern groups.

Industrials were at first inclined to make up part of their recent losses, but the lack of support in rails proved too strong to overcome, the list closing with a heavy tone, except in metals and a few of the speculative specialties.

The relative strength of coppers was in response to trade reports of large additional sales of the refined product for home consumption at satisfactory prices. Industrial Alcohol and American Can also offered stubborn opposition to the short interest.

Specialties Are Heavy.

Some of the high priced specialties fell away with rails, notably American Snuff, Montana Power, Ohio Gas, and Texas Company. United States Steel withstood bearish activity, closing at a trifling net loss. Bethlehem Steel new stock was active, but forfeited more than its early one point gain.

Bonds were weak on restricted offerings. On call during the week United States government 3s of 1946 and Panama 3s were quoted at recessions of 4 per cent, other issues averaging declines of half of 1 per cent.

—make your accounts receivable discount your bills

33.4% of the number of customers on our books today have had their commercial ratings increased since they began business with us.

77.1% of our customers have first or second credit ratings.

Do you realize that your creditors will doubtless allow you more to discount your bills than you would have to pay us for providing the money through the purchase of sufficient of your open accounts? Also, that your credit would then be free to re-buy and re-sell, thereby increasing your profits?

The most successful men set aside precedent. They reason things out, and if they see an advantage they take it. If there were no distinct advantage in receiving money on accounts before they are due, concerns would not offer their customers from 14% to 90% per annum to discount, nor would you sell cheaper for spot cash than on time.

Why not pay us a small percentage to carry your customers' accounts for you, without disturbing them? You at once release this "loafing capital" and start it on a debt-paying journey to your creditors, and to their creditors, with profit to all, whereas it is now earning nothing for anyone.

We seek the patronage of progressive, wide-awake manufacturers and wholesalers worth $20,000 and over. Send for our detailed folder, or our nearest representative would appreciate a request to call.

DIVIDENDS OF { 1% REGULAR / 1% EXTRA
Are Being Paid Monthly by the CROWN OIL CO.

A Kentucky producing company holding 51,373 acres in and about the Irvine Field.

PRODUCTION — In excess of 500 barrels per day. Three wells now being drilled, while drilling operations contemplated should result in a 1,000 barrel daily output within the next sixty days. Oil produced grades as Somerset, now selling for $2.20 per barrel; production being taken by the Cumberland Pipe Line.

EARNINGS — Current earnings are sufficient to cover present dividend requirements almost four times over and are fast increasing.

DIVIDENDS — Dividends of 1% regular and 1% extra are now being paid on the 15th of each month, putting the stock on a 24% per annum basis, but as additional wells are brought in an even larger distribution to stockholders is expected.

MARKET — An active market will be made for Crown Oil shares on the New York Curb immediately upon completion of sale of our allotment of Treasury Stock.

We are offering for a limited time a small allotment of Treasury stock at $1.25 Per Share

Discriminating investors in large numbers are purchasing Crown Oil Shares for their safe, sound and substantial income yield—as well as the probability of a material enhancement in market value during the forthcoming months.

The subscription price of Crown Oil shares will positively be advanced to $1.50 per share commencing May 15th. Immediate purchase is advised. Allotments will be made in the order they are received.

ATTENTION, MR. INVESTOR!

What is a better investment today than good black corn land? With wheat at $3.00 and corn $1.50, with other farm products higher than was ever known, the one best business today is farming. The first foundation for a farm is good soil. I have for a very short time for a client the sale of one of the choicest tracts of reclaimed bottom land in one of the best drainage districts in the state. There are about 1,200 acres in the tract, lies all in one body, is intersected by highways, has five sets of farm improvements, has school on the land, near to churches, near to market, is well tiled, has good drainage, is on new proposed state hard road. Eight hundred acres being planted to corn, 200 acres of growing wheat. This land is worth as an investment $150.00 per acre; can be bought for less if handled in a short time. For further particulars address

The National Society of Fruitvalers Sends Important Message.

Reservations Now Being Made for Income Producing Farm Homes at Fruitvale

New Loan Plan Requires Practically No Capital

We, "the Fruitvalers," send this message to you city people who are weary of the crush of crowds, the narrow flat, the smoky air and everlasting toil for wages.

We want to tell you how you can secure a fertile, money making, income home and garden at beautiful Fruitvale, in the very heart of Michigan—away from the city's noise and grime—yet only five hours from Chicago. We will also tell you of a new loan plan which makes it possible for you to be the owner now of one of these choice, producing Farm Homes at Fruitvale—where life is worth living.

With practically no capital of your own now, you can prepare to leave the murk and grime of the busy streets and have a membership in this smiling, friendly community, where each man is an independent owner but enjoys the co-operation of a great company and of his neighbors.

Look at the picture below. Isn't this what you have always wanted? Isn't it what you want right now? A wonderful little farm—a life in the open—a place where you can enjoy sunshine and green trees and flowers and make more money—a safeguard against adversity, a protection for the family.

The Garden Spot
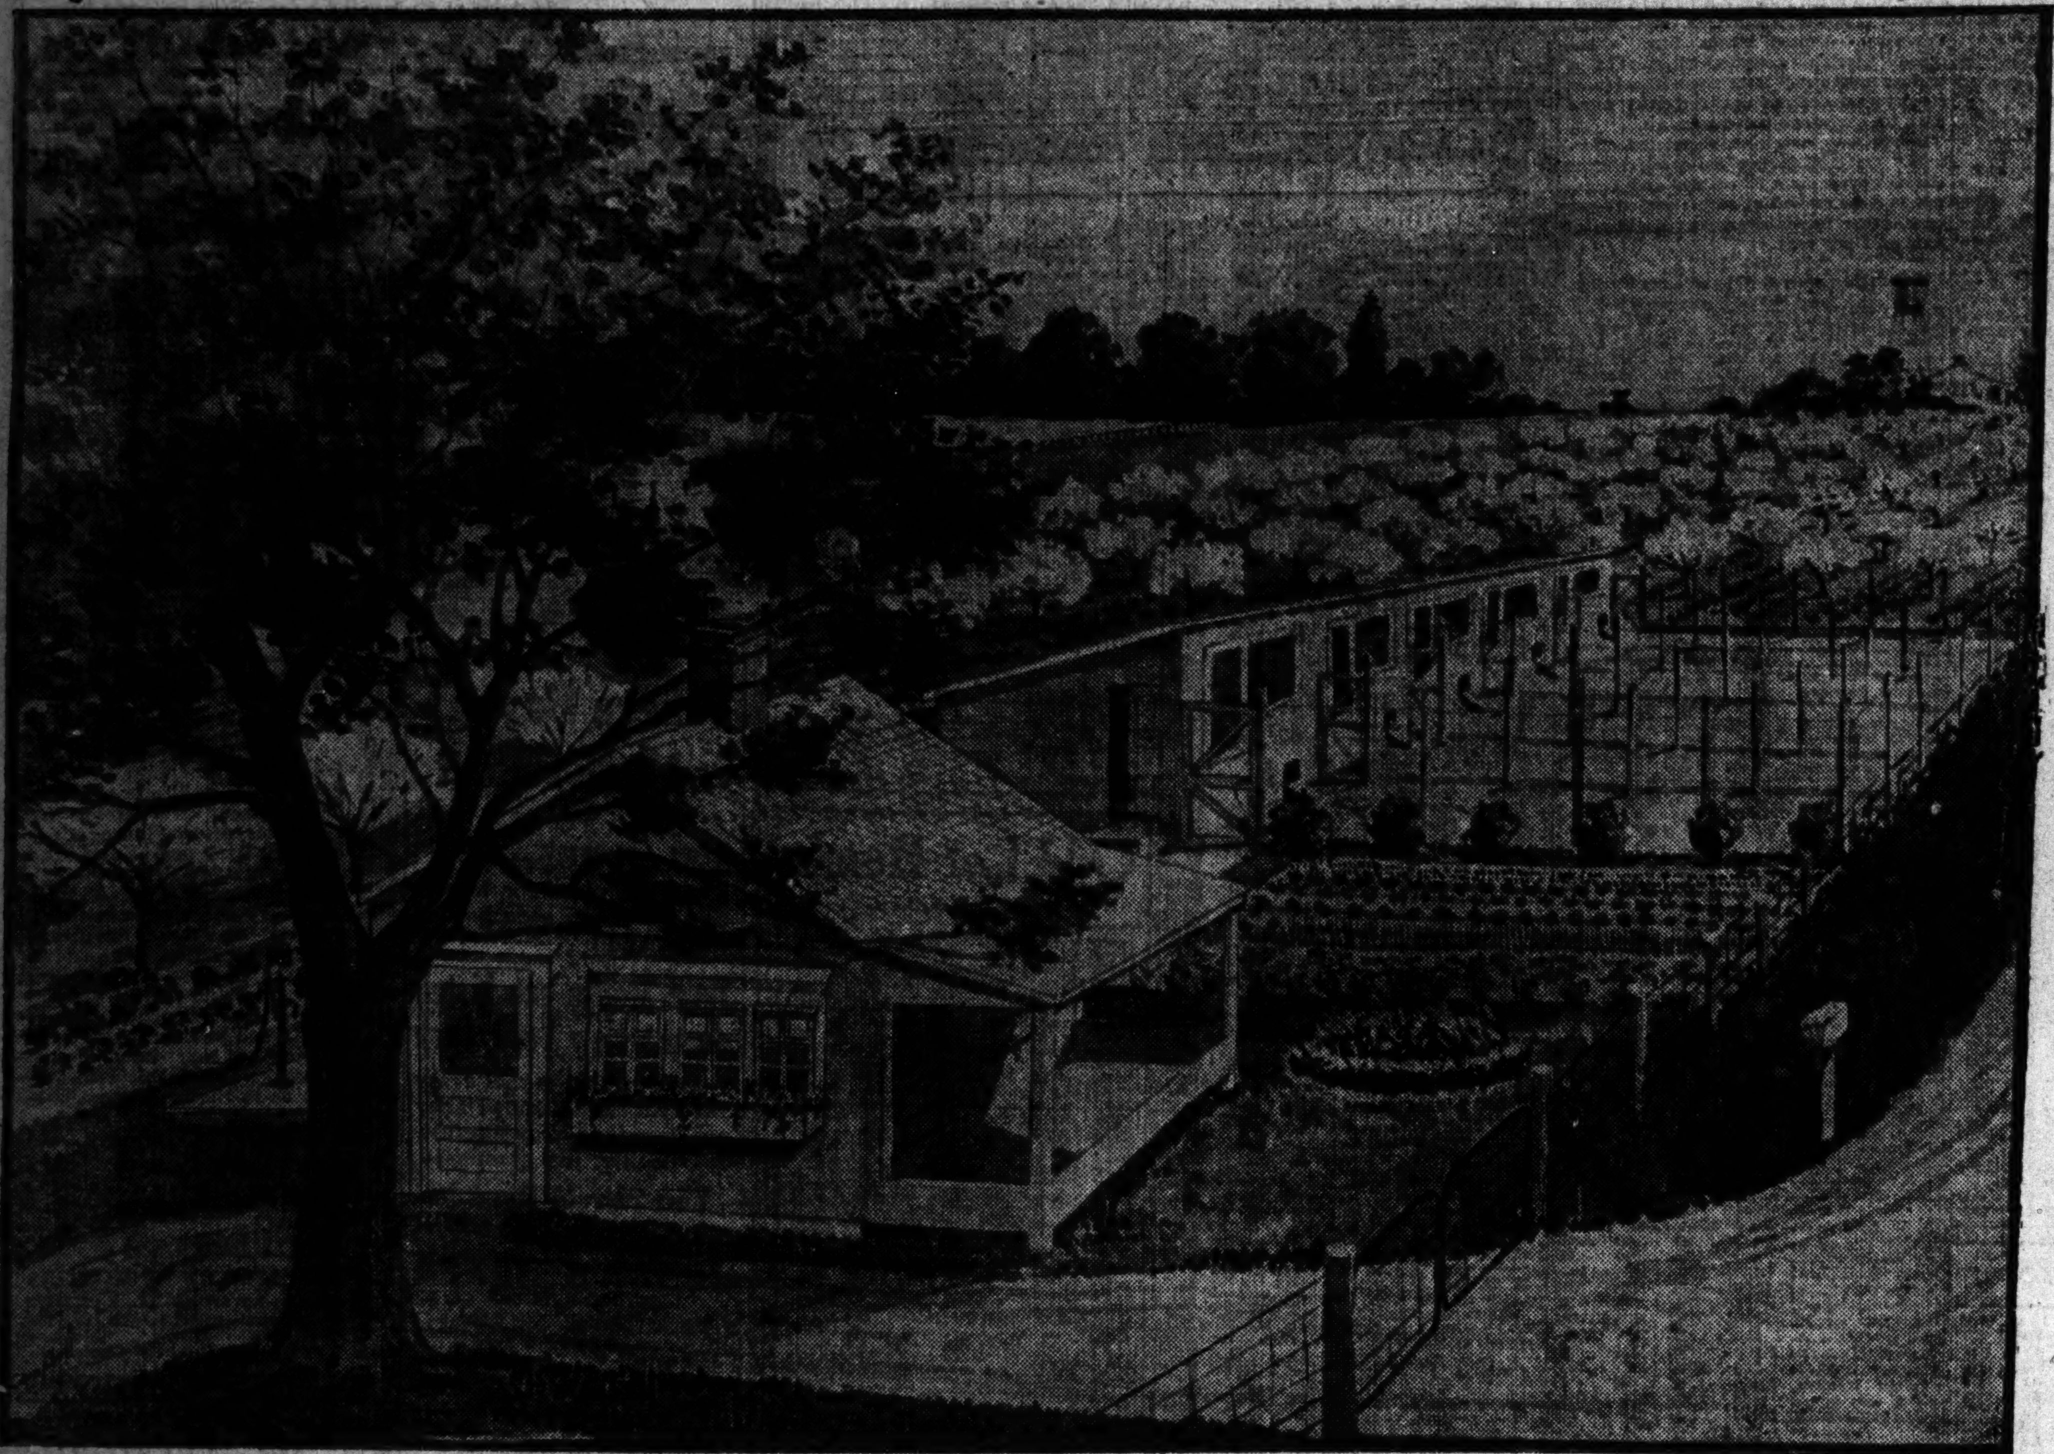
of Michigan
Only 5 Hours
From Chicago

All that—with INDEPENDENCE and MORE MONEY is offered to you. The opportunity to obtain this rich, producing farm home is so great, so wonderful that you should at least get the information we will gladly send.

We want more people like ourselves (we all came from the city; we were bookkeepers, office men and women, professional people and small shopkeepers) to join us as neighbors and farm owners in this clean, wholesome, prosperous settlement. If you have only $100, or $50, or $15—as little as that, we have something to tell you—something that will show the way to a future you have dreamed of but hardly hoped to enjoy. Grasp this opportunity right now. At least learn what it is. Your simple request brings all the facts. No obligation on you.

If you want to live in superb comfort—where you can hear the chirp of crickets and the songs of birds—where you can own land that produces in marvelous plenty—cash products 365 days a year—where your neighbors are your friends—where you can make more money—sign and mail the coupon, and get pictures of Fruitvale Farms and full information on this remarkable offer while it lasts.



A Typical Fruitvale Chicken and Cherry Farm—You Can Own One Like This

Everything Complete

The Farm—The Buildings—Seed—Chickens—Trees

Let us tell how a great organization with over $100,000 invested in buildings and ground alone, over $161,000 surplus, and $200,000 paid-up capital guarantees you a deed in fee simple to 5 acres of land. A dwelling house. A modern chicken house for 350 hens—with trap nests and all necessary equipment (wire netting, drinking fountains, brooder stoves, etc.). Also 750 baby chicks of a fancy breed (all you need for the first year). Feed to carry the chicks until they begin to lay. And besides all that—necessary outhouses, a well for drinking water, wood for your stove, and seed for your kitchen garden. Also the famous Montmorency cherries and other cash producing fruits for 4 acres of your orchard. Let us tell you also about the big community incubator available to you as a member of the Fruitvalers. We will tell you all about this—in every detail—if you ask.

City People Become Successful Farmers

This splendid co-operative idea goes even farther. You will not be left to work out your own salvation. No experience necessary. Experts are on the ground to show you how to make money from the very start. They will tell you just how to go about everything. They will oversee your work. They will point out the short cuts to success. Learn how we (all former city people) have made a booming success under this system. We tell all about it in the literature which is yours for the asking. Send for it—then decide.

Your Market Right at Your Door

Get information also on how you can sell all you raise—right from the farm—at your very door. No shipping to look after—no losses in transportation—no bother of any kind. Products sold at a big profit right on the spot. This is also a great idea in actual operation—an idea that brings you the money from your farm the very day you offer your eggs, your fruit, your vegetables, or anything else you produce. You will be interested in learning about this new way to merchandise farm products right on the farm itself.

Community Spirit and Community Co-Operation

We are all neighbors and friends. We have our clubhouse, where we meet for social enjoyment, and to exchange views and experiences on farming. While each is an independent owner, we have mutual interests. We co-operate with each other. And the big Fruitvale Company is back of us all—boosting us, opening markets for us, helping us to make more money than we ever made in the city—and besides all that we get more out of life here.

There is room for more of you tired city people. We will welcome you as Fruitvalers. The glad hand is ready for you. That Fruitvale farm is ready too. The big out of doors is here—the pure air which gives our children broad chests, bright eyes and pulsing health. We are all happy to be away from the merciless pressure of the city. We live our lives our way—we are prosperous—we are making money.

Don't put this off a single day! The time will come when you are too slow for the city pace. Prepare for it with a Fruitvale farm where you can snap your fingers at bosses and time clocks. We want more good, industrious, honest, friendly people to join us. We have much to tell you about this wonderful home making opportunity. Even if you have never thought of having such a home as this—write or call—we have an important message for you. No obligation upon you for asking us for it. If convenient to do so, call in person at our Chicago office.

Read What Fruitvalers Say!

Farming wasn't anything new to us when we cast our lot among the colony of Fruitvalers. Big fields of corn, oats, wheat, barley, rye and grass—horses, cattle, hogs and sheep—year after year grind of plowing, planting, sowing, cultivating, reaping, stock feeding and crop selling—such were our preconceived notions of farming. What a relief to find conditions so vastly different at Fruitvale! "On the farm" it was work, work, work day in and day out. And here—why it's almost a year-round picnic compared to what we were accustomed to. We always considered chickens as a sort of side issue. They were handy to have around, to eat scraps and furnish eggs to trade at the grocery for flour and sugar. Here our chickens are one of our chief sources of income. And what with our chickens, fruit and vegetables we are actually making more clear money on our ten acres than we did on our big farm.

It has been my observation that in most sections where fruit growing is a recognized industry, large acreage and a great deal of help are primary essentials for success. Much to my surprise, I found that just the opposite is true here at Fruitvale. Here a 10-acre tract will yield as large a net profit as ten times that large a tract will yield in many so-called fruit belts. For here quality is the key-note of success. And the wonderful fertility of the soil, together with the steady demand in nearby markets for quality products, insures success.

MR. AND MRS. CHAS. HURRELL, R. No. 4, Fruitvale, Montague Co., Michigan.

We can truthfully say that we have never really enjoyed life so much as since coming to Fruitvale and joining the happy, prosperous colony of chicken and fruit raisers here. Our ten-acre tract of land is productive beyond our highest expectations, and, since the selling arrangements are all looked after by The Fruitvale Company, we always make a good profit on our products. And thanks, too, to the sound advice and able assistance of the company's poultry expert, we have had wonderful success with our chickens. We're mighty glad we came—and here we intend to stay.

D. R. TONEY, R. No. 4, Fruitvale, Montague Co., Michigan.

THE MAN WHO SET OFF THE REVOLUTIONARY TORCH IN RUSSIA—Prince Felix Youssopoff, who is pictured in the national costume of his race, was chiefly responsible for the killing of Gregory Rasputin, which led to the quickest and probably the most significant revolution in history. The Youssopoffs were kings of the Tartars when Russia was amalgamated by Peter the Great. Prince Felix is the son of Count Soumarokoff-Elston, who by a special decree of Alexander III. assumed the title of Prince Youssopoff when he married the Princess Youssopoff. The older Prince Youssopoff was the governor of Petrograd and one of the most powerful men in Russia. The young prince, now 30 years old, married Grand Duchess Irene, daughter of Grand Duke Michael. He is a graduate of Oxford, a daring, adventurous, cultured man, whose blood and family traditions are among the oldest in the Russian empire. Rasputin, which literally translated means "dirty dog," an epithet applied to him because of his vicious habits, was a bogus monk who exercised the most powerful influence over Russian affairs through his sinister hold upon the superstitious czar and czarina, who believed Rasputin had cured the czarevitch by psychic means. The prince was present on that February morning at the close of a supper party when Rasputin was handed a revolver and told he must die. When Rasputin fired at the group he was shot down and his body thrown into the Neva. Shortly after, on March 11, a bloody riot broke out in Petrograd, in which the troops and imperial guards made common cause with the people against the police and a few units of the reactionary forces. Protopopoff, then minister of the interior, was believed to have provoked the riots deliberately by starving Petrograd that the dissatisfaction might be quelled in blood. On March 12 the Fortress of SS. Peter and Paul on the north bank of the Neva was taken by the revolutionists and the prisoners were released. The revolutionists met little opposition and on Tuesday morning, March 13, the admiralty building, held by a Finnish regiment, surrendered and the city was in the hands of the new democracy. Czar Nicholas, on a train from the front, heard the news and voluntarily signed his abdication and that of Czarevitch Alexis in favor of Grand Duke Michael Michaelovitch, who in turn refused to accept the crown unless a plebiscite, representing the whole Russian people under universal suffrage, should desire it. A provisional government is now set up, the corrupt ministers have been thrown out or imprisoned, and the former czar and his family are held captives in Tsarskoe Selo.

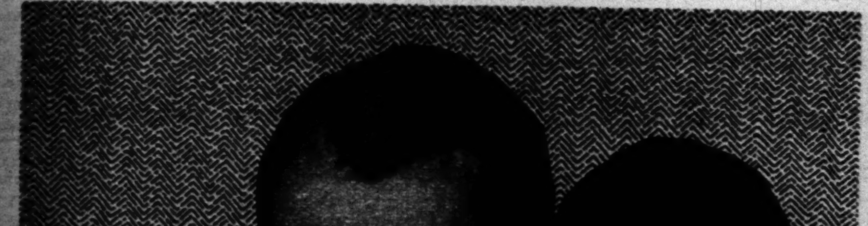
MAE MARSH has left Ince-Triangle for the Goldwyn Pictures corporation. Her work in " The Birth of a Nation " was listed by Mr. Percy Hammond, dramatic critic of " The Tribune," as one of the finest pieces of acting that he has ever seen.

MARGUERITE MARSH, sister of the famous Mae Marsh, began her work in the movies under the name, Marguerite Loveridge, which she has now dropped for her real name. She is with the Goldwyn Pictures.



GEORGE M. COHAN, whose debut in the movies is the filming of his stage success, " Broadway Jones." Mr. Cohan, like Miss Barrymore, once declared he would not go into movies under any consideration, and, like Miss Barrymore, changed his mind.

You can make your skin what you would love to have it

WHATEVER condition is keeping your skin from being attractive, it can be changed. Every day, as old skin dies, new skin forms in its place. This is your opportunity. Your complexion depends on how you take care of the new skin.

Is your skin sallow—colorless?

Then try this treatment tonight. Dip a cloth in warm water and hold it to the face until the skin is softened and damp. Now take a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap and go over your face with the cake itself just as a man does with a shaving stick. Then dip your hands in warm water and with the tips of your fingers work up a lather from the soap left on your face. Rub this cleansing, antiseptic lather thoroughly but gently into the pores of your skin, always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse thoroughly with warm water, then with cold. If possible, rub your face for a few minutes with a piece of ice.

The first time you use this treatment you will see the difference it is going to make in your skin. Use it regularly and your complexion cannot help taking on that permanent clearness, freshness and charm which the steady use of Woodbury's always brings. A 25c cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap is sufficient for a month or six weeks of this treatment.

Write today for a week's size cake

Send 4c and we will send you a miniature edition of the large Woodbury Book, "A Skin You Love to Touch," giving all of the Woodbury treatments, and a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap large enough for a week of any Woodbury treatment. For 10c, the booklet and Woodbury's Facial Soap, Facial Cream and Powder. Write today. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., 5011 Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

"Are you sure it will launder?"

How many times have you hesitated over a charming blouse, and finally decided not to buy it!

You were afraid it would turn yellower and yellower each time it was laundered—that the lace would become coarsened and heavy looking—that it would never look really lovely after its first rubbing.

Now—you buy the daintiest, filmiest blouses—with only one comfortable thought about cleansing them. You know Lux will launder them perfectly. Chiffon cloth! Georgette crepe! Crepe de Chine! Time after time you send them to the thick Lux suds, and they come back as white as when new.

How to wash silk waists

Whisk a handful of Lux into a thick lather in very hot water. Add cold water till lukewarm. Dip your waist through the foamy lather many times—work it about in the suds—do not rub. Rinse in three waters, the first lukewarm, the second cooler, the last cold. Squeeze the water out—do not wring. Dry in the shade. When nearly dry, press with a warm iron—never a hot one. Georgette crepe waists should be gently pulled into shape as they dry, and also should be shaped as you iron.

Two things that ruin silk blouses

Alkali and rubbing are the two things that cause more casualties in the silk blouse family than all other things put together. Alkali turns the silk yellow, rubbing coarsens and pulls it, and makes the lace heavy and rough.

Lux has absolutely no free Alkali. Use Lux for any fabric that can be washed in water.

Lux requires no rubbing, because the delicate flakes contain more real cleansing value than is possible in any other form of soap—they dissolve the dirt in a few minutes, and it drops out into the water, with a few dippings up and down.

Begin saving your waists now! All grocers and department stores have Lux. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

LUX 10¢ Won't turn silks yellow!

One home in seven

Three million sick-beds, according to a recent report of the Roosevelt Conservation Commission, are constantly filled in the United States.

This means that one home in seven always has a sick-bed.

One-half of these three million sick-beds, the report adds, could be kept empty by modern hygiene.

This means that modern cleanliness can guard the health of your family.

Keep your home free from disease

Protect your family with Sylpho-Nathol, the sure disinfectant for waste-pipes, garbage can and scrubbing.

Take no chances in choosing your disinfectant. U. S. Government Bulletins point out that many widely sold disinfectants have no more germ-killing value than water.

Use Sylpho-Nathol. It is a germ-killer three and a half times stronger than the U. S. Public Health Service standard. It is entirely safe. New England women have used it for thirty years.

Easy ways to guard health

Germ-killing solutions of Sylpho-Nathol keep your home really clean and healthful. In the course of your regular housework, with no extra trouble, you can remove every menace of disease with this powerful disinfectant. Use it in the waste-pipes, in the bathroom, kitchen and cellar. Keep the garbage can clean, odorless and free from germs. In your mopping and scrubbing always put a tablespoonful of Sylpho-Nathol in the pail.

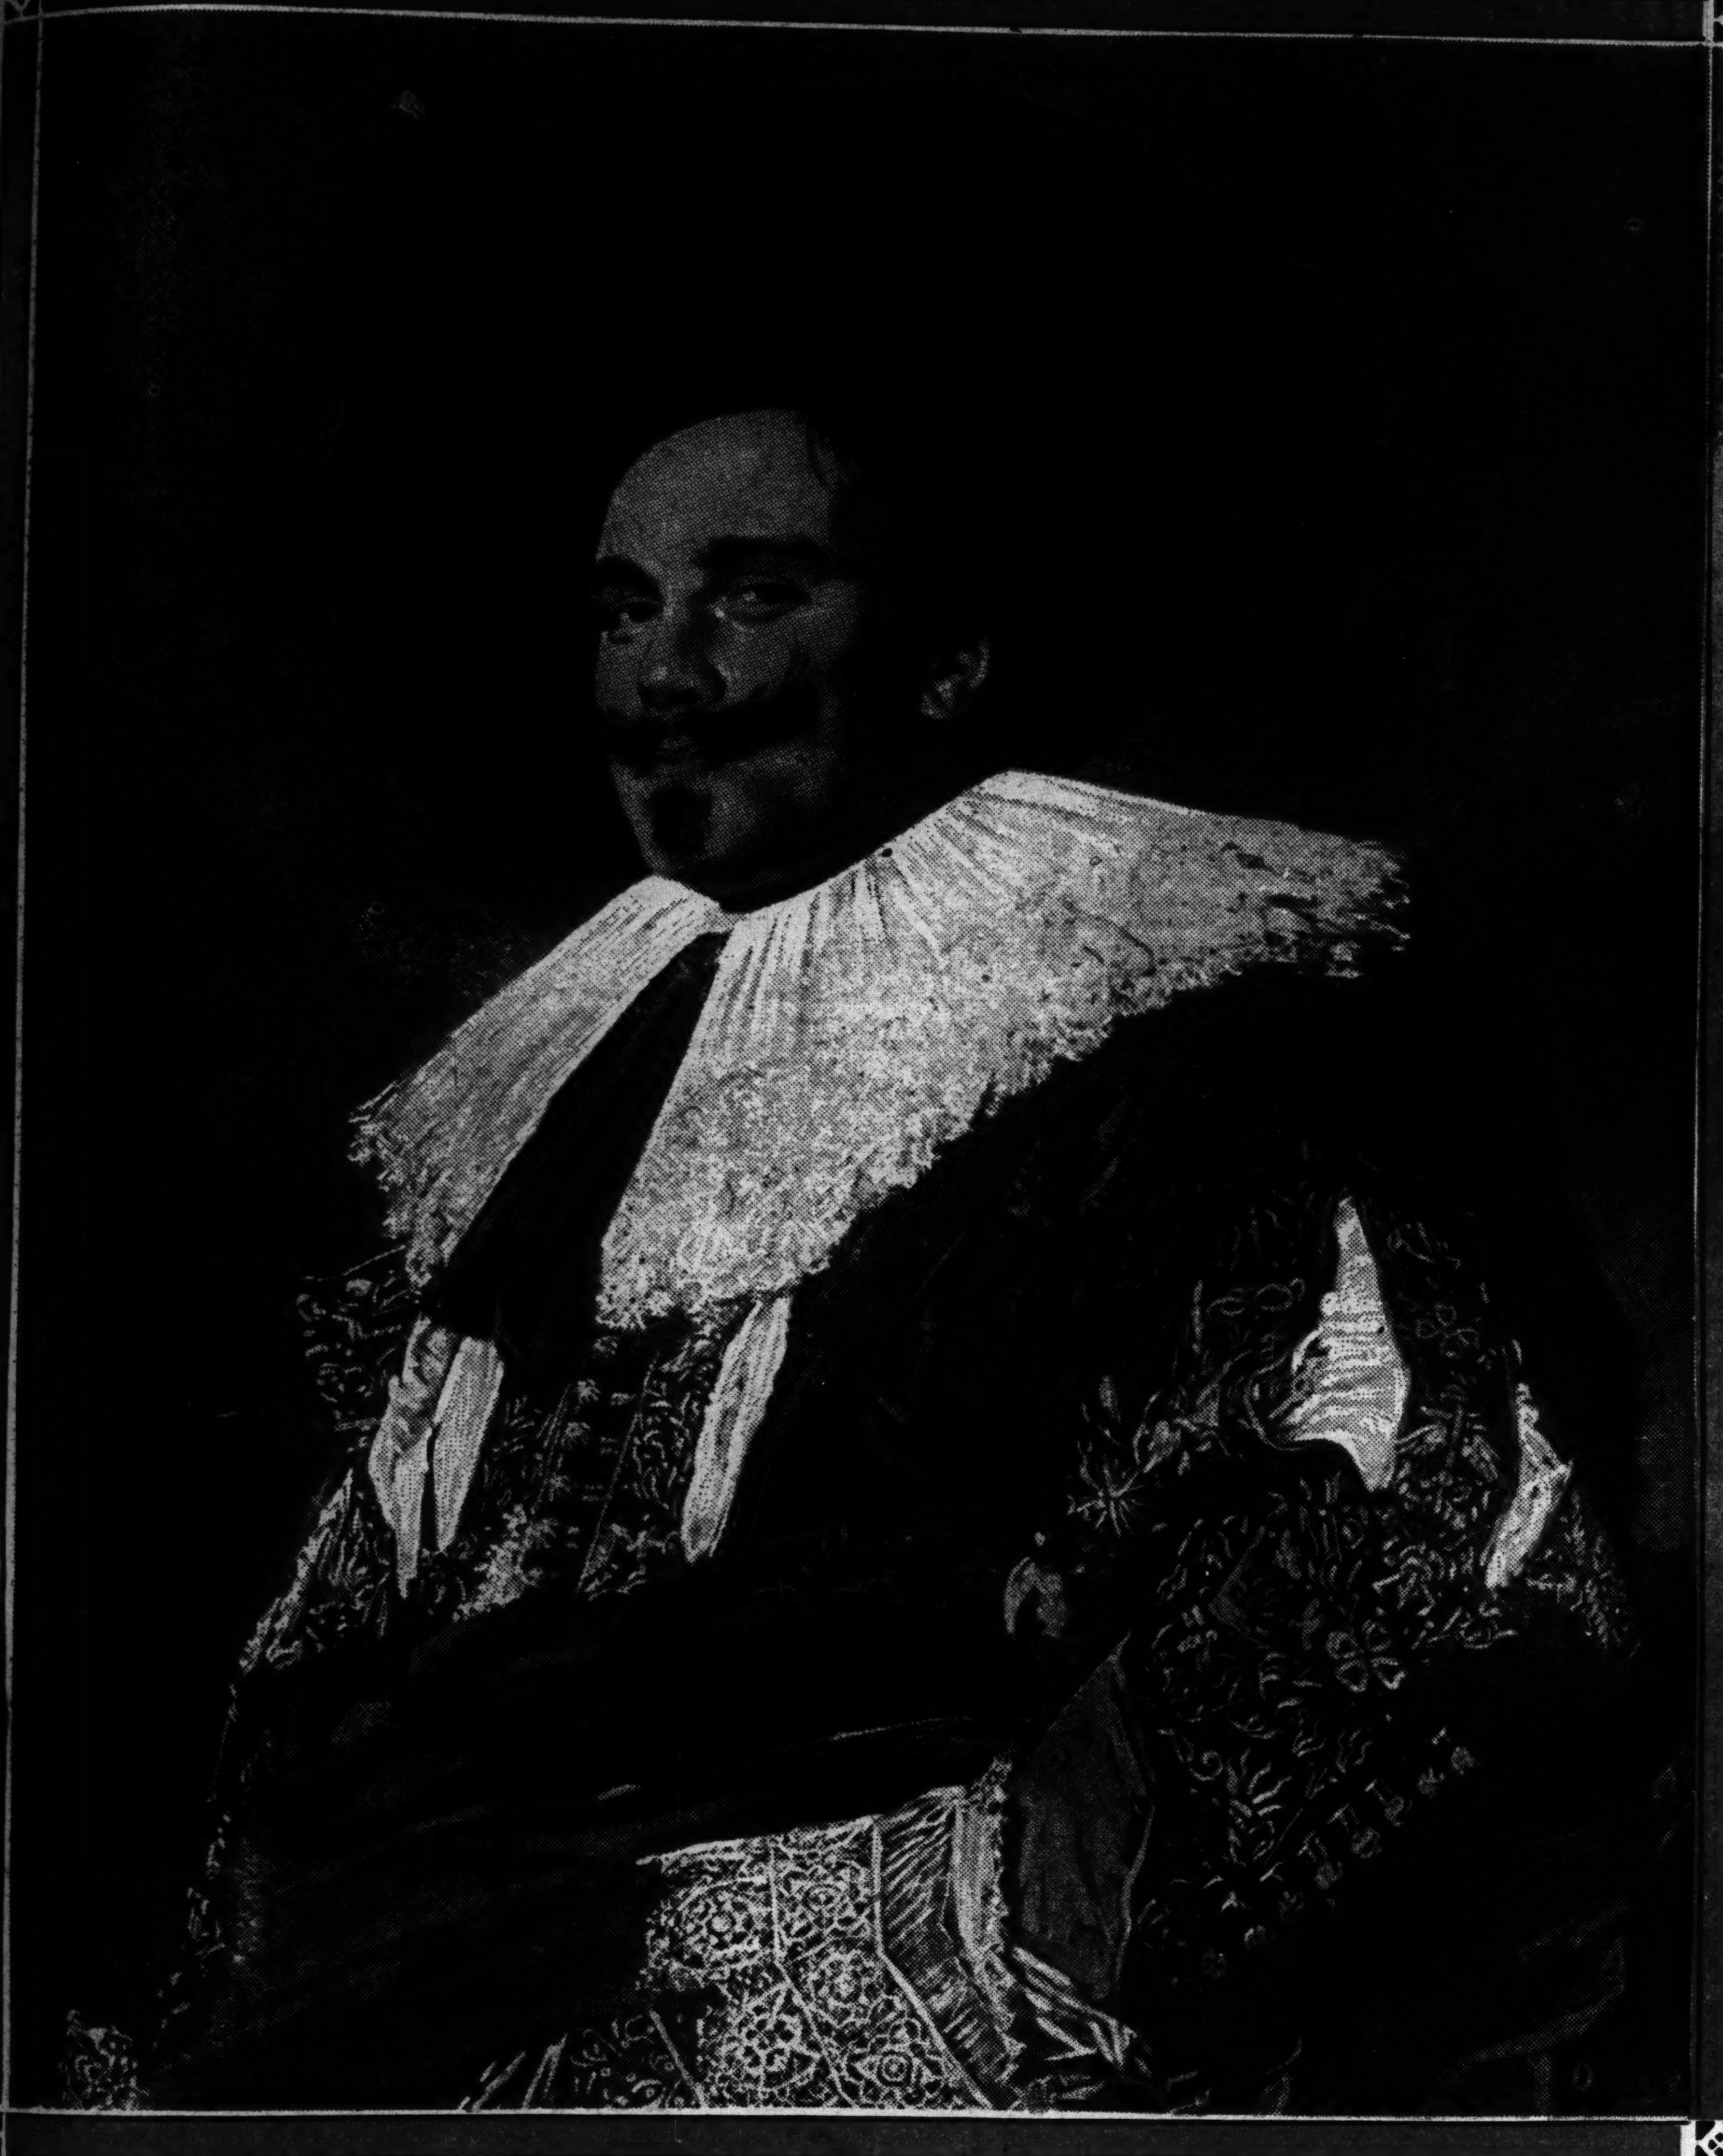
The LAUGHING CAVALIER by FRANS HALS



BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

"The Laughing Cavalier," by Franz Hals. In the Wallace collection, Hertford house, London. (1580?-1666.)

IN circles artistic and in histories thereof, Franz Hals is reputed to have been the prince of artist irresponsibles. The ordinary obligations of life in nowise troubled him. He depended on society for sustenance with such a gracious confidence of favors forthcoming that society assumed her obligations in his direction with all of the conscientiousness of real parenthood.

She paid his rent, furnished him food and fuel, and even went so far as to extricate him from prison when irate creditors' patience had been strained to the breaking point. By society here is meant the municipality of Haarlem, wherein most of the years of his haphazard life were spent.

But in return he royally entertained the people of his day with an abundance of pictures from his facile brush. Between periodical indulgences in drinking bouts of weeks' duration he devoted himself to the bent of his genius. And now Antwerp, the place of his birth, counts him among the master artists her country has yielded and boasts with just pride of the various works of this odd painter of the people.

This one of "The Laughing Cavalier" is considered the finest piece of his in England. From the man's evanescent expression the title of the painting seems a misnomer. If there was a smile in the beginning it was arrested before the paint had become dry on the canvas. Now the lurking look in the dark eyes and the grim twist about the wide mouth give rise to a variety of speculations as to the intent and purpose immediately behind them. There is less charity here than suspicion, and more malice than good will.

A marvel of workmanship and skill is displayed in the intricate working out of the costume worn. The lace of the collar and cuffs has been rendered with extraordinary deftness and application, and there is a rich sumptousness about the red brocade of the coat which combines well with the picturesque splash of black velvet in the hat.

This picture was originally known as the "Portrait of an Officer," but for some reason was changed at a later date. Franz Hals knew how to picture a real laugh when he wished. His "Laughing Woman" in the Louvre and the one of a laughing urchin in the Glasgow gallery are both examples of his ability.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

CAPTIVATING MARY CARSTAIRS

SYNOPSIS.

Elbert Carstairs, estranged from his wife and longing for the sight of his daughter, Mary, engages Larry Varney and Peter Maginnis to take the Carstairs yacht, the Cypriani, to Hunston-on-the-Hudson, there to kidnap Mary. On arrival in Hunston, Varney and Maginnis as a blind enlist with the reform element to throw out the political grafters who are running the town. By accident, Varney learns that Mary Carstairs is not a 12 year old girl, but a beautiful young woman. Varney's close resemblance to Ferris Stanhope, an author of pink tea literature, who has got himself into bad grace in Hunston through affairs with girls, makes Varney's presence in the town hazardous. The political gang, working under the direction of Boss Ryan and through Coligny Smith, editor of the Hunston Gazette, use the lever of Varney's resemblance to Stanhope to balk Varney's help in the reform movement. A scurrilous article about Stanhope and a picture finish Varney in the eyes of the townspeople. Hammerton, a local reporter who is correspondent for the New York Press, by a ruse learns that Varney's real mission to Hunston is to kidnap Mary. Maginnis buys out the Gazette and thus steals a march on Ryan, and he and Varney win Hammerton over by making him editor of the paper.

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT.

A Party on the Yacht.

THE gig came alongside and Miss Carstairs mounted the steps, the party gathered at the head of them to meet her. Peter, as it chanced, greeted her first. He had been introduced to her, in passing, the night of the meeting, but now he was dimly conscious that he had rather underestimated her appearance.

"I am dreadfully sorry to be late," she said. "We went for the shortest little drive, and all at once it was 2 o'clock and we were three miles away."

"You must have done something to the speed limit, madam," said Peter in his stiffest manner, "for you are in ample time."

"How do you do, Mr. Hare?"

"Excellently well, thank you, Mary. It is supererogatory to ask you."

"Pinky," said Mrs. Marne, "have that word and I met? I don't seem to recognize it."

"Good morning, Mr. Varney." Mary offered him her hand; but, greeting her, he had turned to pull a chair out of her way, and so missed seeing it.

"It is a great pleasure to welcome you aboard the yacht, Miss Carstairs."

"If I seem at all addicted to melancholia today," said Mary, "you won't be surprised, will you? My mother isn't well—really! When I left her an hour ago you might have supposed that we were parting for a year. And then, besides, I had an omen—a mysterious warning. . . ."

Varney's gaze became fixed. "A warning?"

She laughed. "A rather queer and scary one? I'll tell you presently."

"My dear," said Mrs. Marne, when Varney had turned to explain the working of the boat falls to Hare, "who is he? He is simply cunning!"

Mary laughed. Hare, who was listening to boat matters with one ear only, thought it was rather a conscious laugh.

"Only John Richards. He came up in his car yesterday to spend a day with us. How do you like my hat?"

"It's a love," said Mrs. Marne. "A great big love."

"I trimmed it myself. You recognize the feather, of course?"

They went down to luncheon. The ladies cried out with pleasure at the prettiness of the little saloon.

The room was darkened, through half drawn shades, to a pleasant dimness. The table was round, red, and bare. It was a splendid mass of flowers. In the center was a great blossoming thing in a silver basket frame, so large and high that when they were seated, Hare, who was neither, could just see Mary over the top of it. About it were four tall vases of cut roses, two of white, two of red. Buttonholes in white and red lay at three covers, gigantic American beauties, red, with flowing white ribbons, at two. And napery, silver, iridescent glass, all the materialities, were well worthy of so pretty a floral setting.

In short, it was a most alluring bait that Uncle Elbert's yacht had flung out for Uncle Elbert's daughter.

"These roses," said Mary, raising hers to her lips, "were never grown in Hunston."

"I want to explain a rule that Mr. Varney and I adopted just now, Mr. Maginnis," said Mrs. Marne. "Did you hear it? It concerns the two subjects of butter and politics."

Hare lifted a glass of the Cypriani's excellent sherry and caught his host's eye. "Mr. Varney! By a pleasant coincidence, we happen to be gathered here within a day or two of the birthday of one member of our charming party. The little discrepancy of date is immaterial—am I right? Why may I not propose the health and great happiness of Miss Carstairs?"

She turned and looked out over the water..

"Standing!" cried Mrs. Marne, pushing back her chair. "Bravo!"

They stood, glasses raised, turned toward Miss Carstairs, bowing, saluting her according to their several kinds; and she sat, looking up at them, laughing, flushed, prettily pleased by the little rite. For Varney, conscious of the mockery of his felicitations, there had been no escape. But Hare, who noticed everything, observed that he did not touch his glass to his lips.

The luncheon progressed merrily. It was evident from the beginning that it was to be a pronounced success. Only Peter was stiff and bored; and even he grew somewhat enlivened before the ceremonies ended. There was Scotch and soda for the gentlemen, and he did not spurn it when the decanters passed. Varney, whose want of appetite pained McTosh, was a conversational tower of strength. But his talk was false faced talk, his mirth was lying mirth, his smile a painted smile. Uncle Elbert's daughter sat at his left, as befitted a guest of honor. Her eyes, when she looked at him, were kind and friendly, but it early became his habit not to meet them; for he always saw behind that—saw them changed as he was destined to see them within the hour. . . .

"So you're quite alive and well today!" she said to him presently. "Will you believe that I picked up the Gazette this morning with fear and trembling?"

"Oh—thank you—yes! We eluded Mr. Hackley's well meant attentions with marvelous dexterity and success."

"Ah, you still don't take it seriously, I see. I'm going to make one more effort to frighten you today—but I'm afraid you are one of these terribly reckless people who think being safe is too tame to be interesting. What do you think of our poor little city, Mr. Varney?"

"I? I assure you," he said, turning a gay face toward her, "I think it positively the most exciting town I ever saw in my life. But then, of course, I've had unusual privileges. What is much more important—what do you think of it?"

"Of course, I love it. My mother went here to boarding school a great, great many years ago. No, not that—some years ago. She fell in love with the place on account of the scenery, and the air, which she says is fresher than you can get in other places. Personally, I believe that the same quality can be had elsewhere, but she says not at all. So when we—left New York, nothing would do for her but to come straight here."

"But don't you find it a little dull?"

"Dull! Why," she cried, after a moment, "you talk exactly the way she does."

"May I offer you an olive?"

She took it daintily in her fingers, bit it, and resumed:

"I suppose your metropolitan idea is that a person would be buried alive in Hunston?"

A sunny shaft broke in from without and became entangled with her hair, which was in some ways so curiously like it. McTosh, whose eye was everywhere, promptly lowered a shade two inches—the one blunder he made that day.

"Isn't it?"

"That would depend altogether on the person."

"Me."

"I do think so, decidedly."

"Really you and my mother would be very congenial."

"McTosh, the bread," said Peter's cool voice.

Mrs. Marne, who had been interested by Peter's taciturnity and fascinated by his waistcoat, had been leading that ordinarily masterful man something of a conversational dance. Detached for the moment by his demand for provender, she called across the table: "Mary, I herewith invite you to attend the Culture club meeting at 4 o'clock this afternoon, to lead the applause for my paper on Immanuel Kant. Pinky wrote it and——"

"Before any court in the land," said Hare, lifting his glance above squab en casserole, "I am prepared to establish my innocence of this charge."

"If he positively will not take no for an answer," continued Mrs. Marne, "you may bring John Richards along. No claret, thank you, Mr. Maginnis. Men, it is true, are not admitted to the sacred mysteries, but I will arrange to have him seated on the piazza where he may eavesdrop the whole thing through the long French window."

"Unfortunately," said Mary, "he has to go to Albany this afternoon, I believe."

"To resume our conversation, Mrs. Marne," said Peter.

"I shouldn't if I were you," Hare recommended. "If memory serves, it was hardly worth it. Why not, instead, permit me to tell the story of the seven fat men of Kilgore?"

McTosh, of the gum shoe tread, shuffled courses dexterously. An under steward assisted in the presentation of the viands, another manipulated dishes in the hidden precincts of the pantry. The service was swift and noiseless, but not more so than the passage of time. The hands of the little clock fastened against the forward bulkhead already stood at quarter after 3.

Mary's eyes, which had been resting on the candidate, turned back to Varney, and they were shining. "Seriously, Mr. Varney," she said in a lowered voice—"how could any one possibly be buried in a town where Mr. Hare is?"

"Mr. Hare?"

She nodded. "Because he is so alive! Why just to live in the same town with him is an inspiration. To be friends with him—well, that is all you ever need to keep from feeling buried alive! He isn't listening; is he?"

"No," said Varney, "he is, I believe, telling the story of the seven fat men of Kilgore."

"If you wish to hand bouquets to Pinky for a while," called Mrs. Marne, aside, "I will see that you are not disturbed, Mary."

"Thank you, Elsie, but it's your sisterly duty to listen to the story. Mr. Hare," she presently went on, to Varney, "had a great career ahead of him in New York—Judge Prentiss told me so—and he kicked it over without a quiver and came up here where there isn't any glitter or fireworks, but only plain hard work. Politics is only an incident with him. No one will ever understand all that he has done for Hunston, without any thought of return—working with all his heart and his head and his hands."

"Ha! Ha!" said Peter down the table. "That reminds me——"

"You have known him a long time, I suppose?" asked Varney.

"Yes," she laughed, "but he has known me longer—ever since I was a very little girl. That is why he calls me by my name, which gives him a great moral advantage. I call him Mister because I didn't know him when he was a very little boy. I have figured it all out, and I couldn't have, because he was 13 when I was born. Besides, you can't begin to know people till you have reached a certain age. Can you?"

"Not to say know, I should think."

"Say 6," said Miss Carstairs. "That's liberal, I think. Well, he was 19 then, and I never even saw him till seven years afterward, anyway. That made him 26, which was much too late. Now he says that I should call him by his name, but, of course, I'm not going to do it."

"O, I don't know the hardness of it. But who ever heard of calling a mayor by his first name? Call a mayor Pinky! The thought is ridiculous. Isn't it, Mr. Hare?"

But Hare was engrossed with a conversation of his own, now turned upon economic lines.

"Everything in the world that goes up must come down," he was saying didactically, "except prices. They alone defy the laws of gravity."

Peter challenged the aphorism, wordily. Mrs. Marne smiled at Mary across the flower sweet table.

"No," answered Hare presently. "Money isn't everything, but it is most. It makes the mare go; also the nightmare. It talks, it shouts, and in the only language that needs no interpreter. I may describe it, without fear of contradiction, as the Esperanto of commerce."

"Clever, Pinky!" called his sister, derisively. "Confess that you rehearsed this before a mirror."

The luncheon ended. If anything had been wanting to prove how agreeable it had been, it appeared now in the pretty reluctance with which the ladies rose. There was the customary pushing back of chairs, smoothing down of garments, recovering of handkerchiefs from beneath the board. The room and the table were the objects of new compliments, given in farewell.

"Who would have dreamed," said Mary, looking back from the door at her perfectly appointed room, "that yachts were as nice as this?"

"And to think," said Mrs. Marne, "that it was all done by a mere man."

They stepped up on deck into the shade of a great striped awning and loitered along the side, caught by the beauty of the late summer scene. Sky and water and green wood blended into practiced perfectness. The rippling water was blue as the heavens, which was very blue indeed. The sun kissed it like a lover.

"Will some one kindly tell me," demanded Hare, referring to his sister's remark, "how the superstition arose that men have no taste?"

"I have read," said Mary, idly, her back against the rail, "that it was invented by the authority who started the slander about women having no sense of humor."

"Why, they haven't, have they?"

"You're wrong there, Hare," said Peter, out of his fathomless ignorance. "For my part, I think that women are often more amusing than men."

"Of course, Maginnis, of course. The point is that it never dawns on them."

They were strung out along the after deck, a gay and friendly company, exactly by Henry Sydnor Harrison as Varney had pictured them in his thoughts. From the hatch emerged the stewards in stately processional bearing coffee and cigars, their paraphernalia and appurtenances. Twenty feet away, on the other side, was to be seen the sailing master's wife, sitting under orders, sedate, matronly, knitting a pale blue shawl and giving to the bright scene an air of indescribable domesticity.

"Women," said Mrs. Marne to Varney, "have a splendid sense of humor. I am a woman and I know. True, we keep a tight grip on our wit when we are with men, because whatever men may say in moments like these, they do loathe and despise a comical woman. But when we are alone together—ah, dearie me, what funny things we do say! Don't we, Mary?"

Varney, to show himself how cool he was, was lighting a cigaret and had just perceived with annoyance that his hand shook.

"At least," he answered easily, "no man will ever disprove that, since no man has ever had the pleasure of being present when women are alone together. I can recommend the Invincibles, Hare."

Peter, as one sensitive to the duties of host, now begged Mrs. Marne to let him show her something of the yacht. He mentioned the crew's quarters and the—er—butler's pantry as points which he particularly desired to bring to her attention.

"I'd love to see them! O—I must take just one peep before I fly."

The trio started forward in a whirl of her animated talk, Peter leading with a dutiful face, Hare strutting solemnly along in the rear. Mary glanced at Varney.

"Aren't you going to show me your butler's pantry, too?"

"Rather!" he said, starting with her up the deck. "But I want you to see the whole ship, you know, much more thoroughly than Mrs. Marne has time for—and to take a little spin——"

He was interrupted by an exaggerated cry from the lady just mentioned, who, happening to glance down at her watch, had stopped short at the cabin hatch in great dismay.

Now she turned back to Varney crying, "O! O! Mr. Varney, it's twenty minutes to 4! I must fly to my Culture this instant!"

At that, for Varney the little party lost the last traces of its false good fellowship and stood out for what it was. Mrs. Marne's hurried departure slightly dislocated his carefully laid plans; it was evident that her brother had no intention of going with her. Over her unconscious head his eye caught Peter's in a faint sweep which indicated the little candidate.

"O—must you, Mrs. Marne?" said Varney, with civil regret.

"I must! I wish—O, how I wish that culture had never been invented! The world lasted a long time without it, I'm sure. I detest to eat and run, yet what else can possibly be done by the author of 'Ideals of Immanuel Kant'?"

"It is too bad," said Varney, "but if duty really calls, I suppose there is nothing for it but to have your boat ready at once."

"I ought to go, too," said Mary.

A chorus of protests annihilated the thought. Mrs. Marne declared that she would never, no never forgive herself if she broke up so delightful a party. It was unanimously decided that the other guests were to remain long enough to be shown something of the yacht. Mention of a little spin down the river was once more casually thrown out.

Events moved swiftly. The gig was manned, waiting. Varney, under cover of issuing orders, found opportunity to say a hurried word to Peter. Mrs. Marne approached Mary, who was discussing yachts with Hare, to make adieu. Suddenly the large face of Maginnis loomed over her shoulder.

"Good-by, Miss Carstairs—you'll excuse me, won't you?" said he, briefly. "I—I thought perhaps I'd just walk in with Mrs. Marne."

Mary repressed an inclination to smile. "Certainly, Mr. Maginnis. Good-by. I've enjoyed it a great, great deal." And to Pinkney Hare she added: "You are going over the yacht with us, of course?"

Mrs. Marne embarked in a shower of farewells. Peter, however, loitered at the head of the stairs and the gig waited at the foot of them. Varney stood at Miss Carstairs' elbow, cool, smiling, controlling the situation with entire and easy mastery.

"It occurs to me, Miss Carstairs," he said, "that I should begin our tour by showing you our sailing master's wife, Mrs. Ferguson—decidedly the cultured member of the ship's household. She reads Shakespeare. She recites Browning. I dare say that she even sings a little Tennyson. You would enjoy meeting her, I am sure. Will you step around the other side for a moment?"

"How exceedingly interesting," murmured Hare, falling in beside them. "Years ago I used to read quite a bit of poetry myself."

The gig still waited at the foot of the stairs. Mrs. Marne, waving upward last adieus to Mary and Varney, called: "Do hurry, Mr. Maginnis. I'm outrageously late."

But Peter, who had more important matters than Kant on his mind at that moment, answered in a low, hurried voice: "Don't be alarmed, Mrs. Marne—but I must see your brother at once about—a critical matter. O, I say, Hare!"

The candidate, now some distance up the deck with the others, stopped and looked back.

"May I have a word with you, please?"

Hare turned, with only a polite show of reluctance to his host and Miss Carstairs, and drew near. Politics interested him far more than the staunchest ship that ever sailed.

Five minutes later when Varney, having launched Miss Carstairs and the sailing master's wife upon a strictly innocuous conversation, came around the deckhouse again, neither the candidate nor his sister was anywhere to be seen. Peter—he who had engaged to accompany the lady—stood alone on the sunny deck, staring off at the returning gig, his great hands clenched in his coat pockets. He met his friend with a calm face.

"It's all over but the shouting," he said. "They've just landed. I told Hare that there was a plot on against your life—which is very likely true, by the way—said he and I must have a conference at once without alarming Miss Carstairs. I had to draw it pretty strong, you can bet, to make him go without telling her good-by."

"You've got the letters," said Varney, hurriedly. "Go to see Mrs. Carstairs the first thing—make the explanations. Call up Uncle Elbert and tell him 6:30 for the carriage at the dock. Be sure to explain to Hare and Mrs. Marne at once—prearranged visit to her father, kept quiet for—any good reason."

"Of course," said Peter. "Well, I must hurry along. I promised to overtake them in the woods. O, the lies I've told in this ten minutes!"

He turned and picked up his hat and cane to go. To Varney the simple act drove home with great force the stark fact that he was face to face with his business at last. Peter, holding out his hand to say good-by, was struck to speculation by the look of that eye.

"Well, good luck, Larry!"

"In heaven's name—what does that mean?"

"Hanged if I know," said Peter, frankly. "I'll see you in New York—if not sooner." With which cryptic observation he clattered down the stairs to the gig.

"I am returning to New York, as I told you, Ferguson, with the young lady, Mr. Carstairs' daughter. Start as soon as possible."

Mrs. Ferguson's fondness for classical poetry was no part of any stage make-believe. Varney, having found her the day before sitting on a coil of rope with Mr. Pope's Odyssey from the ship's library, had conceived a veneration for her taste. Now, as she drew near them again, she was telling Mary that though Tennyson was fine for the purty language, it was really Browning who understood the human heart. And down in the engine room they had everything ready for the bell.

"Have you two settled the poets' hash yet?" asked Varney. "I hope you didn't make the mistake of preferring Tennyson to Browning, Miss Carstairs? Thank you very much for entertaining our guest so nicely, Mrs. Ferguson."

"What a wonder that woman is!" said Mary, looking back at her as they walked away. "I had thought that I was rather good at liking poetry, but she leaves me feeling like the dunce at the kindergartern."

She turned and looked out over the water, caught anew the shining landscape. They stood side by side in the shade of the wide, low awning. Half a mile to their left huddled the town, whither the others were already on their way; a few hundred yards behind them stood the big white Carstairs house, handsomely cresting the hill. From many miles to the northward a breeze danced down the river and played capriciously over their faces, and so whisked on about its business. All the world looked smiling and very good.

Suddenly a bell tinkled. There was a slight splash, a faint rumble and quiver.

Varney laughed. "The passion for poetry," said he, "is a curious and complex thing. Its origin is shrouded in the earliest dawn of civilization. It appears in man's first instinctive gropings toward written self-expression——"

"Why," said Mary, in sudden surprise, "we are going!"

. . . .

So Elbert Carstairs' dream had come true, and his daughter was going home to him as his desire. She stood on his yacht, as truly a prisoner as though she wore a ball and chain, and the beat of the engines, already gathering speed, was driving her straight toward that dock in Harlem whither he, within a very short time, would be driving down to meet her.

"Going? Of course we are," said Varney.

He leaned against the rail and, looking at Mary, almost laughed at the thought of how easy and simple it was.

"The point of being on a yacht, Miss Carstairs, is to see her go. Otherwise one might as well sit in the den at home and look at pictures of them in the encyclopedia."

"But I—didn't expect to go," she said, gazing at him doubtfully—"only to look around a little. I'm really afraid I haven't time for a sail."

"Well, you know," he said cheerfully, "as far as looking around is concerned, going doesn't necessarily take any longer than staying. In one case, you stay and look around; in the other you go and look around. That is really all the difference, isn't it?"

"Well, then, it must be a little go and a short look around. Where does one begin in looking around a yacht?"

It would have been plain to a far duller plotter that they should be fully clear of Hunston before he explained the situation to her more definitely.

"Suppose," said Varney, "we begin with a few general remarks of a descriptive nature. This vessel, Miss Carstairs, is what is known as a schooner rigged steam yacht. She stands a good bit under a hundred tons. She is ninety feet long, eighteen feet in the beam, and she draws ten feet—"

"I don't understand a word of that except ninety feet long, but it all has a perfectly splendid sound! But where can Mr. Hare be? Please send for him like a good host and begin back at the beginning again. He just told me that yachts interested him intensely."

"But, unfortunately, Mr. Hare is no longer with us."

"Not with us? Why—did he get off?"

"He certainly did. He and Maginnis are a great pair, aren't they? Not a minute to give to pleasure or anything of that sort. I believe they slipped off to Hare's house for another of their eternal private talks."

"But—" Mary stared astoundedly. "He said he was going around with us! I asked him and he accepted. And besides," she went on, rolling up the count against the unhappy candidate, "he got my parasol!"

"We detached that from him before he left. It's around on the other side. I'll send for it at once."

But her puzzled frown lingered. "I have known Mr. Hare well for six years," she said, "and this is the first time I ever knew him to do such an uncivil thing."

"It wasn't his fault, depend upon it. Maginnis called him back, you know, and no doubt hauled him off bodily, positively refusing to let him pause for good-bys. A man of ruthless determination is Maginnis."

She glanced up the deck with vague uneasiness, disquieted by the unexpected situation. Forty feet away sat the sailing master's wife still placidly knitting at her pale blue shawl, the perfect portrait of secure propriety. The sight of her there was somewhat reassuring.

"So is Mr. Hare, I always believed. But never mind. How fast we are going already!"

"Yes, the C—this yacht goes fast."

"What is considered fast for a yacht? How long would it take us to get to New York?"

"Three hours. Why not go?"

A white clad steward noiselessly approached with her parasol. She took it and smiled at Varney's idle pleasantry.

"Thank you, I have too many responsibilities this afternoon. First of all, we—have a guest at home. Then I simply must go to Mrs. Thurston's to see about some sewing at 5. Last obstacle of all—my mamma! What would she think had happened?"

"Don't you suppose that she would guess?"

"Do you think I'm the daughter of a clairvoyant, Mr. Varney? No, she would not guess. She would simply stand at the front window in a Sister Ann position all the afternoon crying her pretty eyes red. But—this is a schooner something steam yacht, ninety feet long, I believe you said. What comes after that?"

They had left the town dock behind and were scudding swiftly. There was no longer any reason, even any pretext, for waiting. Every pulse of the Cypriani's machinery was beating into his brain: "Tell her now! Tell her now!"

But all at once he found it very hard to speak.

"There is time enough for that. There is something that I must tell you first—in fairness to Hare. The fact is that I—I made Peter take him away because I wanted to be alone with you."

The crude speech plainly embarrassed her; she became suddenly engrossed in examining the carved handle of her parasol, as though never in her life had she seen it before.

"Last night," said he, "you may remember that you asked me a question. You asked me why I objected to accepting help from you."

"Yes, but that was last night," she interrupted, her instinct instantly warning her away from the topic—"and you didn't tell me, you know! Really—we must turn around in two minutes, and so I haven't time to talk about a thing but yachts."

"I fear that you must find time."

"Must, Mr. Varney?"

"Must. This is a matter in which you are directly concerned."

She faced him in frank wonderment. "Why, what on earth can you mean?"

"Now, you must! Now you must!" sang the Cypriani's stanch little engines.

But he made the mistake of looking at her, and this move betrayed him. There was no doubt of him in her upturned, perplexed face, no shadow of distrust to give him strength. His earlier dread of this moment, strangely faded for awhile, closed in on him once more with deadly force.

"Don't you see that I am trying to tell you and that I am finding it—hard?" he said quietly.

There was a moment's silence; then she said hurriedly: "Of course I am all in the dark as to what you—are talking about—but tell me another time, won't you? Not now, please. And O—meantime," she sped on, with the air of hailing a new topic with acclaim, "I have something to tell you, Mr. Varney!—mystery seems to be in the air today. You must hear the strange thing that happened to me this morning. I haven't had a chance to tell you before."

"Ah, yes! That mysterious warning."

He clutched at the respite like a drowning man at straws, though no drowning man would have felt his sudden rush of self-contempt.

"Who gave it to you, and what was it about?"

Free of his hidden restraints, she had quite thrown off the embarrassment which she had felt settling down upon her a moment before and laughed lightly and naturally.

"It was about coming to this beautiful luncheon today—about not coming, I mean—and it was given to me—don't be angry—by Mr. Higginson, the old man, you know, who helped you last night."

"Ah! . . . . Mr. Higginson."

"Tell me!" she said impulsively, her eyes upon his face—"I saw last night that you distrusted him—do you know anything about him?"

A Change of Venue

The Story of a Bored Young Wife and How She Was Cured of Ennui.

WHEN Camilla Greene (in certain of the states the final e spells all the difference between the classes and the masses) was 25 she married a man named Robert Harding, who built her a house not two blocks away from her mother's, gave her a machine with a neat brass ring around its nose, accounts at most of the shops on Main street, a membership in the Country club, and altogether did his well intentioned best to make a desirable citizen out of her.

Camilla, who was a pretty blonde thing with ardent, dark eyes and a mouth that should have known better—it was firmly curved and not too full—took the gifts the gods provided and for the first three years was happier than she had ever been during the somewhat skimpy days of her girlhood.

Robert was not the first of Camilla's suitors. She had been engaged in more or less significant sequence to a law student, a medical student, and a young man who worked in a bank. She could have been engaged as well to an Episcopalian minister, but he wore his collars too large, and to a clerk in a trust company, but he drank. Which, more or less, completes the emotional history of Camilla's premarital existence.

On the day that she married Robert she made the pictures of all these young men into a bundle, ignominiously wound about with a white cotton string, but when she had been married two years and thirteen months she took the pictures out, one at a time, and looked at them. Thirteen was in this case an unlucky number for Robert. In the course of considering the pictures with a chastened suggestion of regret, Camilla remembered that the law student had immensely admired her eyes; that the young man who worked in a bank had also sung in an appealing tenor, and that the medical student's roses had been almost perennial.

If Robert admired her eyes, he no longer found it necessary to say so. Robert had never sung—had, in fact, except for the brief occasion of his morning tub, no use for singing—and whereas during the period of courtship Robert's roses had also grown on bushes, when Robert now wished to bring Camilla a present he usually selected an electric toaster or something of the sort.

"I am only 28," she said to herself, "and life is like this—already." She shuddered quite honestly.

She had no baby, had Camilla, or life would likely not have had room for so much personal research. However, Robert remained, and Camilla's 28 years, and the barren future. Camilla brooded upon the thing until it became a vital question in her restless mind. She looked at Robert as you look at a picture, from a great many different angles, trying to get a good light on him, but she never managed to escape the flat glare of his deliberate realism. As for the 28 years, they did not dwindle. Camilla's grievance became articulate. She took it to the fountainhead.

"Did you notice," she inquired one night after a decently late return from the weekly dance at the Country club, "that I was bored tonight?"

* *

Robert, yawning above the luxurious exchange of patent leather pumps for Japanese sandals, lifted a pleasant face set with two shrewd gray eyes and looked at his wife without seeing her. "H'm!" he said kindly, "were you? I'm sort of sleepy myself."

He removed his tie and collar negligently, and the sight of his neck, bare and awkward, above his shirt band fired Camilla with an inexpressible irritation.

"In this town," she pursued, loosening her hair, which fell in a fairly respectable quantity straight and pale upon her shoulders—"in this town a woman had just as well be dead as married——" When Robert failed to respond, she added a trifle vindictively: "Better!"

"Better what?" said her husband amiably. He was seeking his pajamas in the conjugal closet by this time, and his voice came slightly muffled. "Better what, dearie? I wasn't listening."

"You never are," said Camilla bitterly.

A pair of gray trousers emerged from the closet propelled by a dexterous kick.

"I'd like these sent to the cleaner tomorrow, please, ma'am. Of course, I'm listening. I heard you distinctly. You said better something—— Go on!"

Camilla, who had drawn a green silk kimono over her nightgown, paused in the anticipation of applying cold cream to her face and laid the jar aside.

"How many men danced with me tonight?" she demanded.

"Why, I danced with you a lot myself!" Robert returned innocently.

"Exactly!" said Camilla. "You always do."

"Well, then, Martin and Billy Gaines and old Fester——"

"The husband, the son, and the father of different women I know. Just how interesting do you suppose that was for me?"

Robert, awakening for the first time to the seriousness of Camilla's inflection, looked vague.

"Well, a married woman, you know, dearie, doesn't usually have——"

"Why shouldn't she?" asked Camilla laconically.

"Well——"

"She's not dead——"

"Of course not, but——"

"Not stupid, or homely, or uninteresting, or a bad dancer. Am I?"

"No! Of course not."

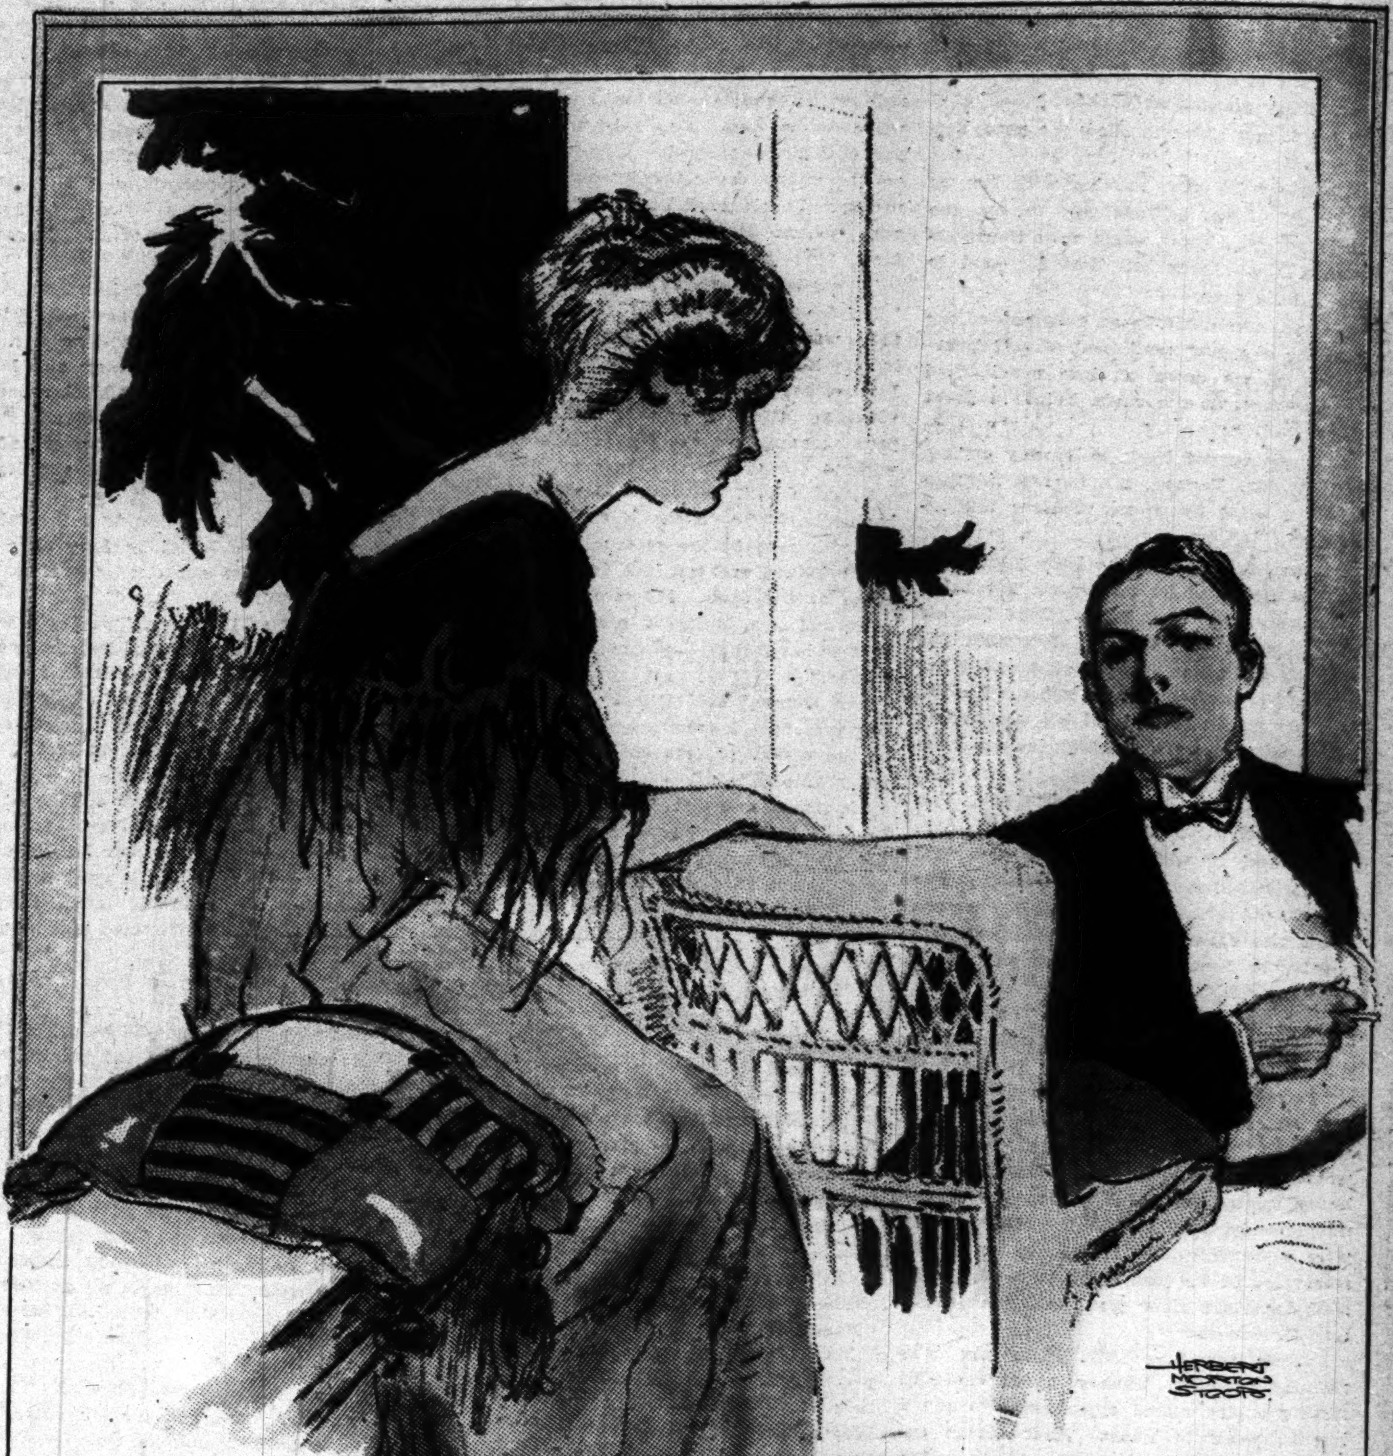
"Then why?" said Camilla fiercely.

She struck fire at last. The merest spark lit in Robert's nice gray eyes.

"A married woman who has too good a time," he said briefly—"you know the sort of talk it means."

"I don't care," said Camilla. She dusted a powder puff across her face and folded her arms. She was really rather alluring in the green silk kimono, and the lines of her arms and shoulders were delicately pretty. Robert laid a friendly hand over hers, but she shook it off again.

"Why, because I'm married to you, must I sit down while other women dance?" insisted Camilla, in deadly earnest. "Why do the few men who do come to talk to me treat me like a grandmother? I'm alive; I like to dance; I like to play. Life's not over for me—I'm not ready to sit by the fire and spin, just yet! I know the game, the game that's always going on between men and women—I played it enough, heaven knows, before I married you. But now I sit like an outsider—they talk to me about things that don't matter. It's not me; it's not Camilla Greene they're talking to; it's Mrs. Robert Harding, and it makes me sick!" said Camilla, gathering force as she went—"I tell you, it makes me sick. I'd never have married if I'd known——"



"I think I need a change," said Camilla.

"Camilla!" cried Robert, astounded.

"If I'd known," finished Camilla, "that it meant being buried alive—like this!" She switched off the light with trembling fingers and got into bed.

Ten minutes later Robert, beside her, slept heavily, if not peacefully, with the thoroughness of a man who has danced and knows the value of repose. He had been shocked by Camilla's outburst, but he fancied it merely some queer feminine streak of hysteria, and to his practical mind the fact that she allowed him to kiss her goodnight inferred that the episode was closed.

As for Camilla, she lay awake and scorned herself liberally. Having once put her impotent rebellion into words, she felt its lash the more. That Robert could sleep after the searing revelation of her state of mind marked him, in her somewhat arbitrary vocabulary of the moment, a brute. Poor Robert! He snored in his sleep and verified the category. Camilla eyed the comfortable bulk beside her and tried to feel degraded by its nearness.

"I should never have married him," she told herself miserably. "He's satisfied while I am stifling."

* *

Later in the week she confided a certain amount of her distress to her mother, to that lady's infinite perplexity and disapproval.

"What do you want?" said Mrs. Greene, above the ubiquitous bit of mending which in some guise or other was never out of her hands.

"I'm bored," said Camilla, sullenly. "I don't want anything but what's mine by right. I want to live like a human being—like a woman, not like a mummy. Robert thinks I'm safe on a nice high shelf, all covered with dust, and I'm not. There's no reason why I should be. I'm more alive than I ever was."

"When I was your age," Mrs. Greene observed with meaning, "you were 4 years old and your brother Minor was 18 months."

"And you felt a thousand, didn't you?" said Camilla, savagely. "Well, I don't."

Mrs. Greene threaded a needle with caustic efficiency.

"When a woman is married," she said definitely, "her playtime is over. Hand me the scissors, Camilla. Why your father's big toe has always got to go straight through his sock is a mystery to me. I've been mending this same sort of hole in the "Good God!" said Camilla.

"Why, Camilla!" said her mother severely.

Camilla's eyes grew big and black with horror.

"Thirty-nine years! I should have hated the sight of him. I should have seen a hole in the toe of a sock every time I looked at him. The most wonderful romance in the world wouldn't stand out against that."

Over her glasses Mrs. Greene regarded her daughter with something of the chilled speculation which a cat bestows upon a pudding.

"You must be crazy," she said gently. "Hate the sight of your father! I must say, Camilla! As for romance" (the good lady bit her thread and expelled the end from between her lips with a slight hissing sound) "you're supposed to be through with romance when you marry. I'm sorry for you if you're not."

"Through with romance—at 25?" suggested Camilla bitterly.

"I got through with it at 23."

"Then there must be a difference in generations," said Camilla wearily. "I'd just as soon be dead as live the sort of life you're leading."

A spot grew on either of Mrs. Greene's [illegible], pallid cheeks.

"There never was a difference—in idle women," she observed crisply. "They're the same the world over. The trouble with you, Camilla, you haven't got enough to do. Robert's too good to you."

"O—Robert!" said Camilla.

She was rather shocked when she said it. There was so much of impatience, almost disdain, in her tone. She looked at her mother out of the corners of her eyes, but Mrs. Greene had taken another sock out of the basket, which stood on the floor beside her, and was now thoughtfully stretching the hole in the toe upon a china darning egg. So Camilla twisted her rings and looked away.

"But I need a change," she said desperately.

"Nonsense!" she said cheerfully. "There's not a thing in the world the matter with you. You need a little more housework, maybe."

Camilla said good-by, not very effusively, and went home to Robert and dinner.

* *

Dinner was not what it might have been. The soup was scorched, the lamb chops were good but insufficient, and for dessert there was rice pudding—Robert's chief abomination.

And Robert was no more than human.

"Don't you think," he said irritably, "if you spent a little more time in the house we might once in a great while have something fit to eat on the table? Tucker wanted me to go out to the Country club for dinner with him and I wish now I had!"

Camilla got up from the table in frozen silence. She did not speak until Robert had held open the screen door for her and she had preceded him to the porch in the accustomed routine of their evenings at home. Then, instead of sitting down in the big wicker chair, she stood against the railing, with her blonde head outlined against the feathery masses of the clematis vine that they had planted together on the day before their wedding, and looked straight into Robert's eyes and spoke.

"We might as well have this out," said Camilla. Robert, lighting a cigaret and already relieved by his little outburst, only grinned.

"Fighting!" he said comfortably. "I wasn't scolding you, dearie, only I do hate rice pudding like the devil, and that's the second time in a week. If you can't get that girl in the kitchen to remember what you tell her, fire her! Get another one. How long do you think a man who forgot orders like that would last in our office? Not—"

"I'm not talking about rice pudding," said Camilla with a touch of scorn.

"The chops were good enough—what there was of 'em."

"I'm talking about myself," said Camilla.

Robert leaned against the railing beside her and inhaled luxuriously, expelling a [illegible] soothing cloud before he spoke. "Well, well. Still, you might jump your dark friend about the soup some time. There's no excuse for a meal like that."

"I am talking about myself," said Camilla mulishly. An angry color burned in her cheeks. When Robert put his arm around her she shivered and drew away.

"What is the matter?" said Robert. "Got a grouch this evening, Camilla?"

"I think I need a change," said Camilla. She experienced, when the words were out, something of the same suppressed alarm she had felt when she had said to her mother: "O—Robert!" For the second time she seemed not quite to know herself. Robert, leaning against the rail, smoked in silence for a while. Camilla set her teeth against retraction or explanation. When he spoke at last she jumped in every nerve before his frank acceptance of her meaning. "You mean a change—from me?"

"I mean——"

"That is what you meant?"

Camilla was stubbornly silent.

"Humph!" said Robert slowly. "If that's the way you feel about it, it might be a very good thing. There's something in it, too. We've been married over three years now and we've never been separated a night. Where do you want to go, dearie?"

In Camilla's mind ideas wheeled and scattered like fireflies. She had accumulated evidence to justify her demand and Robert had not even asked for it. She had collected arguments and he ignored the necessity of them. Before his friendly question she flushed and stammered, but her desire persisted.

"Like to go down to New Orleans for a couple of weeks?" Robert suggested, lighting a fresh cigaret.

"Yes," said Camilla, a sudden drumming in her pulses, "I think I should."

"Well, I think it might be fixed," said Robert. "See if you need any new duds. Where'd I put that Scientific Review last night? I was reading something in it." No faintest shading in his voice betrayed other than the friendliest interest.

* *

So Camilla went to New Orleans—alone—wearing a smart new coat and with $200 in her pocket. Which might not have spelled delirious excitement for some women, but Camilla's hundreds had mostly come singly. Robert paid for her ticket and wired ahead for her room at a pleasantly expensive hotel, but the two hundred was Camilla's own bank account, milked dry for the occasion. If Camilla were to eat forbidden fruit, she preferred, not without reasón, to pay for it herself. Upon the first night of her arrival occurred the coincidence which might to some skeptical minds cast the slur of fiction upon this true story. Camilla, having dressed for dinner in her third best frock—a simple crêpe of the color known to the female mind as battleship gray—walked down the corridor, entered the elevator, and collided pleasantly with a lean young man who carried a stick.

"I beg your pardon!" said Camilla distressfully. They were the only passengers in the elevator.

"Pardon!" said the lean young man briefly. He looked at Camilla. She looked at him. Her eyes widened and she flushed deeply. "It isn't Camilla Greene," said the lean young man.

"O, Jim!" said Camilla.

Before the tolerant interest of the elevator boy they clasped hands.

"I thought you had gone to South America to live," Camilla ventured.

"Up on my first vacation in six years," said the lean young man.

Then the elevator boy said coldly: "Main floor!" and they had to get out into a prosaic and disinterested world.

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?" the lean young man inquired with a sort of endearing impertinence that woke a hundred memories in Camilla's breast. His other name was Goddard and he had once worked in a bank.

Camilla said that she was going to dinner. "With me?" said Mr. Goddard.

Camilla smiled uncertainly. Little flames of excitement began to flicker in her eyes.

"Am I?"

"What do you think I came back to the states for?" suggested Mr. Goddard calmly.

In the grill—with an orchestra of which the snare drum was the most important feature, ripping out sparkling tunes; with a variety of softly colored lights; with mirrors, and stone faced servitors, and all the other paraphernalia of the animal at feeding time—Mr. Goddard leaned to Camilla across a little table lit by a rosy candle and touched her fingers with the tips of his own.

"So you're not married yet, Camilla?"

* *

Camilla looked down with a little start. She had left her rings quite safely locked away in her trunk upstairs, and her nice, soft little hands were bare. (I am neither excusing nor explaining this, but such was the fact.)

"Do you see anything there that looks like a wedding ring?" asked Camilla gaily. She had a superstitious objection to lies.

"What did I tell you?" Mr. Goddard reminded her.

"Quite a bit," said Camilla demurely, "at one time or another. Just which part of it do you mean?"

"I told you the last time I saw you," he said frankly, with an acknowledging grin for the thrust, "that you'd never marry."

Camilla caught her breath at this reflection on her ability as a female of the species. "That," she said a little sharply, "is what a man always thinks when a girl doesn't want to marry him."

The waiter gracefully occupied an ensuing pause. After Mr. Goddard had ordered a dinner which bore delicate testimony to his fondness for the fleshpots, he leaned his elbows on the table again and looked at Camilla. "Am I much changed?" she demanded.

"You look a little older—naturally. Let me see. You were only 19 when we were engaged, weren't you, Camilla? That's nine years ago. Good Lord, what a cub I was!"

"O, no—not a cub!" Camilla objected.

"You threw me over, all the same," said Mr. Goddard; "do you remember?"

They burrowed in the past like moles. When dinner was over and done with, Mr. Goddard took Camilla to the theater. It was a poor play, but the man's six years out of the states and the woman's sense of truancy spiced its dullness. When he brought her back to the hotel and left her at the elevator, Mr. Goddard crushed Camilla's hand.

"How long'll you be here?" he inquired. "You're down shopping, I suppose. We might see another show tomorrow night. Buenos noches!"

* *

Camilla let down her hair before the mirror that night in a daze of exultation. "I'm myself again," she told herself feverishly. "I haven't forgotten how to play the game. Jim Goddard doesn't see any difference in me! Being married is like being in a cage."

Nevertheless she missed Robert a little, unwilling but definitely, when the light was out and the darkness of a strange room closed in about her. How much of it was habit she hardly knew. She woke in the middle of the night, said Robert's name, and with a drowsy sense of nearness put out her arm to an empty pillow before she remembered and smiled herself to sleep again.

Next day she shopped and next night she went again to the theater with Mr. Goddard. She did not write to Robert. She had rather expected a night letter—Robert's courtship had dealt largely in night letters—but none came. On the third day she found herself growing tired of the shops and on the third night she dined alone and went stupidly to bed at 9 o'clock, having no one to go out with. But on the fourth day Mr. Goddard reappeared and on the fourth night Camilla sat once more across the little table from his narrow, sensuous blue eyes, while the drum rattled and the flames beneath the little copper chafing dishes burned blue and the feet of the dancers slid softly around. "Been having a good time?" asked Mr. Goddard above the last of the pompano and potatoes Parisienne.

"Gorgeous!" said Camilla, but she could not make it sound convincing.

"Then what's the hungry little look about?"

"Have I—a hungry little look?"

"There's one game," said Mr. Goddard while the waiter removed the plates, "that you've got to quit while the going is good, or it stops on you suddenly and you find yourself empty handed. Isn't that the truth, Camilla?"

He looked at her, smiling in a sort of impersonal friendliness.

"What do you mean?" asked Camilla.

"You ought to have married at least three years ago. Don't be insulted, my dear girl. We knew each other pretty well, didn't we, in our mutual past? Why shouldn't we say what we think?"

Camilla's eyes were on a crimson shaded light behind her companion's head. Her face looked a little tired.

"Why ought I to have married?" she asked at last.

"You don't want to miss anything, do you?" said Mr. Goddard kindly. "You've had your kid playtime; you've had your salad days; I can testify to that. You must have had your emotional fling, too. Well, now you ought to be married and building your house upon a rock, oughtn't you? That's the next stage."

* *

Camilla crumbled her bread on the tablecloth. Her hat brim hid her eyes, and Mr. Goddard, if it had not, was temporarily engaged with the wine list.

"A married woman's life—it isn't living at all."

"How much more interesting do you think it will be," Mr. Goddard inquired dispassionately, "unmarried at 28 or 30, when the suitors begin to drop off and the younger girls come on, and it's a fight to keep in the running—eh?"

"You always were a little brutal," said Camilla carefully.

"The ladies like it—God bless 'em!" said Mr. Goddard.

"You don't take your own advice about marrying, either.'

"The girl I'm going to marry gets here tomorrow, from New York, with her mother."

"How old is she?" asked Camilla recklessly.

"Twenty-one," said Mr. Goddard. "Be nice to me, Camilla—wish me luck! She's some girl!"

It was impossible to overlook or to deny the sudden warmth in the narrow, blue eyes. Camilla wished him luck.

Half an hour later she said good-by to him at the door of the elevator and went up to her room. She had never told him that she was married. She forced a wavering smile now at thought of his unnecessary didactics.

* *

"Hello, Camilla!" he said. It was Robert, and Camilla's eyes unconsciously observed that he wore a tie which when she was at home she never allowed him to wear.

"How are you?" said Robert, a queer husk in his voice.

Camilla opened her door without speaking. When they stood inside the room with the door closed, Robert dropped his hat on the table and put his hands on Camilla's shoulders.

"I've come for you, Camilla," he said quietly. "You've got to go back with me. You've got to behave—you're mine, and you're going to stay mine! I thought maybe a little fling would make you glad to get home again, but I find I don't want to take any chances. The house has been empty as hades without you——"

He stopped abruptly, and there were tears in his eyes: the cruel, painful, shamed tears of a real man.

All the motherhood that was in the soul of Camilla, who had no babies, woke at the sight of those tears into yearning life; all the woman of her answered to the lover's voice. It was the mother that fondled Robert's hands, in a passion of regret, against her breast, but it was the woman who put up her lips and it was the woman Robert kissed. "O, if you still care—like this," said poor Camilla brokenly, "it makes marriage worth while."

Robert shut her eyes with kisses. "Not unless you still care like this yourself," he said with unexpected grimness.

It was a moment that gave Camila back her self-respect. After all, she had only wanted to be wanted, but that is the real curse of Eve and the oldest famine in the world. "Take me home," she begged, sobbing with happiness. "You know I do—and I have a hundred and ten of my two hundred left. Take me home, Robert."

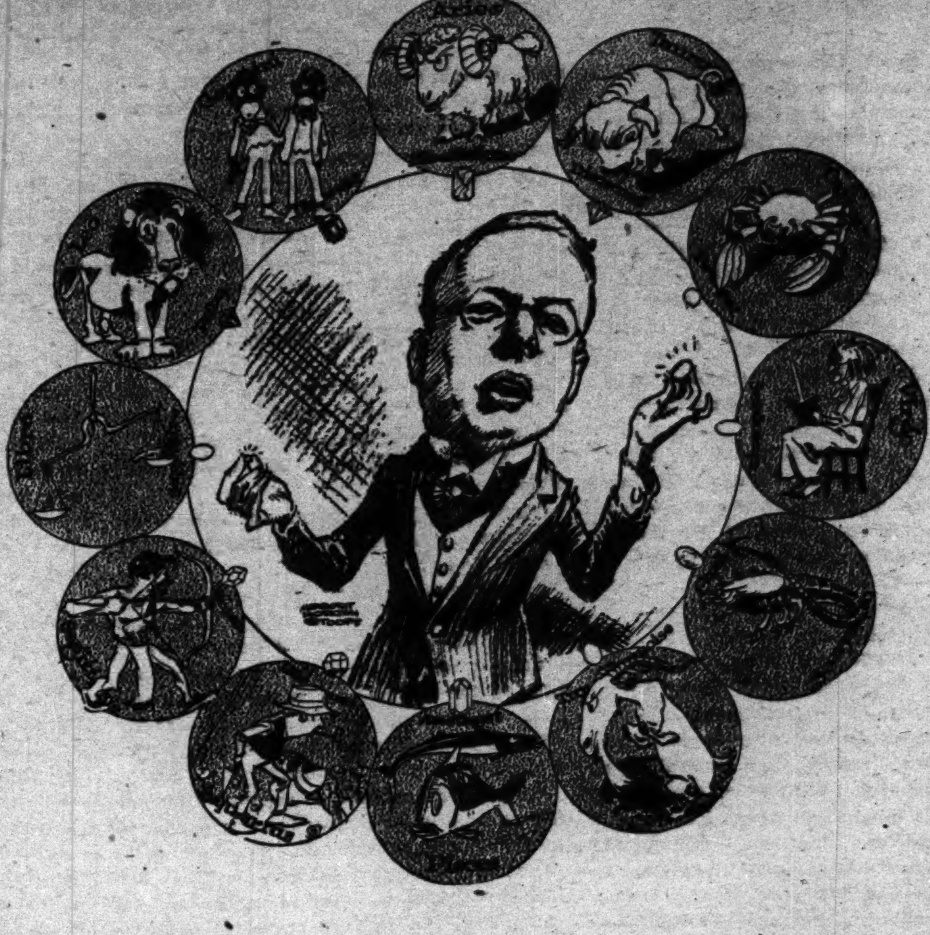
Next day he took her home.

"AND YET THERE ARE THOSE WHO CLAIM ALL A SALESMAN NEEDS IS A LINE OF TALK,"— sighs Oney Fred Sweet— WHO SPENDS AN AFTERNOON IN A SHOP OF PRECIOUS STONES



THE sunlight of the spring afternoon, mellowed after its penetration of the atmosphere that hung above the loop, sifted through a strip of plate glass exposed by the silken curtains, and fell in a narrow strip of gold across the showcase behind which I stood. My hair was brushed until it wore a purple shine, my chin had felt the razor's touch within the hour, and nestling in my necktie was a platinum mounted diamond pin that sent forth rainbow beams no matter how I turned. The pin was borrowed property. I wanted to neglect nothing that would help me make good my boast that I could sell precious jewels to the aristocracy like an ordinary clerk would dispose of bargains at a 5 and 10 cent store.

When my customer entered—the sort of a customer I had been laying for—she caught me arranging some of the goods in the showcase. It was the placing of a little old $35,000 diamond collar so that it would better reflect the light that caused her to pause and finally take the stool at the counter.

It had taken the workmen six months to make that collar. Two thousand diamonds gleamed among its platinum lace work.

"Of course you can look at it closely," I agreed, with a salesman smile, making up my mind that I would watch her closely, also, while she fingered the ornament that a queen would have gone in raptures over, and figuring quickly to myself how much overtime I would have to put in should anything happen to the article while I was responsible for it. "Just look at those brilliant flowers of the mineral world. April's gems—the jewels of innocence and purity. Among these 2,000 drops, in which 'beam all the light of long lost days,' you may not have the largest diamond in the world, because that belongs to the rajah of Maton and is alone worth $1,000,000, but you will have a nice little collar."

To be perfectly frank, this stuff I sprung wasn't my own. A day before I hadn't known any more about precious stones than the average American knows how to handle a rifle for purposes of national defense, but I put the cadence in my voice of an evangelist asking sinners to "hit the trail," and, along with the locomotive headlight I was wearing beneath my own Adam's apple, it "went over." I went back to Roman days, when the diamond was worn to baffle poison, keep off insanity, and dispel fears, and I laid special stress on the flexible platinum mounting.

You know every one wants platinum nowadays. They demand it because it's scarce. Only that morning I had been shown a little hunk in the safe—a hunk two inches wide and four inches long that cost the firm 3,000 bucks. Put a thing out of people's reach and they want it bad. There are going to be some terrible thirsts when the whole country goes prohibition. You take most of this platinum and it comes from Russia; they ought to have a great country over there when they get a little more stars and stripes stuff into their system.

In something I had read the night before I learned that the diamonds of the world were centering in this country fast. During last January alone $5,000,000 worth of jewels had been imported, and the people of the United States now own fully two-fifths of all the known diamonds of the world. Is it any wonder that none of the other countries really love us? And you can't manufacture a diamond as you can some precious stones. Forty years ago a French scientist succeeded in making a diamond—crystallized carbon—but in doing so the process cost him at least fifteen times what a diamond of the same quality and size was worth. It seems, also, that curious persons of various generations have had an idea that a diamond was so hard you couldn't break it with the blow of a hammer. Well, don't experiment. Diamonds have been hit with a hard hammer with the diamond losing out as a result. Of course, if you still want to be convinced personally try it yourself, but it is wise to experiment on some one else's rocks.

When I saw that the lady was stalling about ordering the diamond collar "sent out," I turned to the pearls.

"Now here," I explained, "is a little strand of pearls marked $20,000, and the next one to it is $34,000. There's one single pearl in this one worth $2,400. The beauty of these necklaces is in the way the colors and sizes of the pearls are matched. The pearl is getting more popular every day, and it is the only jewel that needs no assistance from man to add to its value. I would suggest that along with the purchase of one of these valuable strands you also procure an imitation strand, which, as a safeguard against robbery, you could substitute to and from the society event which you might be attending. Such, you know, is the custom.

"The pearl," I continued, "has always been the favorite with orientals, and no one knows when the first one was discovered. In Pliny's time they believed that pearls were formed from the dews of heaven falling into the open shells at breeding time. It took years and years to collect the pearls for the famous necklaces of Europe. You remember the story of Cleopatra's wager with Antony that at a single meal she could swallow the value of a province; it is said the twin pearl to the one she dissolved came into possession of the Roman emperor after her death. In all ages pearls have been significant of tears. You know, a few nights before the assassination of Henry IV. of France, his queen dreamed that all the jewels in her crown had changed to pearls."

"No, I didn't know," she ventured, admiringly.

"I didn't know it myself until I ran across it in a history of France last night," I said to myself, reaching in the ruby section of the showcase, determined to unload all my newly acquired information before I'd forget it.

"They are beautiful!" she sighed as I brought forth the rubies.

"And rare," I added. "A perfect ruby of five carats will bring at least five times the value of a diamond of the same quality and size. Solomon, you know, said that a 'virtuous woman was more valuable than rubies,' and Job declared 'the price of wisdom is above rubies,' and they made comparisons with the most valuable thing in existence. The king of Burmah has one of them that is as large as a hen's egg. The ancients believed that the wearer of the ruby would be warned of any misfortune pending, by the ruby changing to a darker color. But in spite of the genuine ruby's rareness and value, scientists have had better luck in manufacturing it than they have had with the diamond and pearl. Some twenty-five years ago a French chemist succeeded in crushing small rubies and fusing them together, forming a rough ruby which afterwards he cut and polished. Later on chemists constructed the synthetic stone by massing together the ruby's component parts of aluminum and chrome. A synthetic ruby can be produced for $2.50, where a genuine stone of the same size is worth $150, and it takes an expert to tell the difference. Even the synthetics are scarce now because of the war, because most of them were made in France and Germany. But science has failed to produce the emerald."

I reached in the case and with a pair of tweezers brought forth for closer inspection a $4,000 green stone.

"They valued the emerald in ancient times, not only because of its beauty, but because they believed in its power of healing all diseases of the eye," I explained, in the tone of one having a trunk full of them at home. "The ancients believed that if the eye of a serpent met the gleam of an emerald the serpent immediately went blind. Nero, you know, had an eyeglass formed of emeralds, through which he gazed at the arena sports. When Cortez returned from Peru he carried with him five of these magnificent stones and they were of such beauty and curious design that when he refused to sell them to the empress he lost favor at court. I guess she wanted to wear them to grand opera or the allied bazaar or something like that. Well, 'Cort' hung on to the stones and later they went down at sea with him when his ship was wrecked off the Barbary coast—submarined without warning.

"Now, we could mount this emerald for you any way you liked. I presume you know how to wear jewels. I don't think you are the sort of woman who would go down to breakfast loaded with gems. Of course, you can wear a wrist watch and your wedding and engagement rings at any time, providing you've ever deluded some hard working bird into bestowing the latter on you. And in the evening hang on all you've got."

"And what have you in opals?" she wished to know in a manner that made me pick up courage, for the afternoon was waning.

"I see," I nodded, "you want the gem of good luck. A lot of people think the opal is unlucky, but since early days the opal was looked upon as the embodiment of everything lucky and was, for this reason, prized above all other stones. I should have shown you some of them in the first place. The opal was a great favorite during the middle ages, and in the times of Elizabeth and Charles II. was held in high esteem. They used to believe that the opal had the power of making the wearer beloved of God and man, so long as he wore it in faith and confidence. Queen Victoria had a magnificent collection of them and the Austrian crown jewels contain the finest opals in the world. There are a lot of fine fire opals down in Mexico, but no one feels like going down after them these days.

"Or, perhaps," I went on, "you would like to select a turquoise—the gem most beloved by prima donnas. The turquoise brooch presented by the emperor of Russia to Mme. Titiens was so prized by her that she was never without it on the stage; and, providing her costume was not in harmony, she would attach it to some undergarment, so certain was she that it brought good fortune. Patti used to wear a baldric of turquoises that was worth $30,000. As for Mme. Rudersdorff, she wore a turquoise bracelet that never left her arm, night or day."

I looked up, my face registering inquiry.

"Which do you want to take along," I asked, with the tenseness of a book agent, holding forth a dripping fountain pen above a "sign here" blank, "the $25,000 pearl necklace or the one for $34,000? Or shall it be the diamond collar you looked at first at only thirty-five 'thou'?"

"O," she said, hedging toward the door, "I was just looking around."

ROMANCE, REGULAR LODGER No. 5

by BERTON BRALEY

The Ring-Around-Rosie and the Boomerang.

"CARMEN" seemed wonderful enough to O'Neill. He heard it all, but saw little of it, because his eyes were busy most of the time watching the profile of Miss Jordan in the dusk of the theater and following the swift changes of expression it showed under the spell of the music and the stage. At any rate, O'Neill thought it was the spell of the music and fondly imagined that he was concealing his scrutiny of Miss Jordan unnoticed. The fact is that she knew he was watching her and thrilled deliciously at the thought. Once or twice she turned and their eyes met—and they neither of them knew just what happened on the stage for a few minutes afterward. But O'Neill knew very well what was happening to him.

They had supper afterward at a place with soft lights and no noisy cabaret, and as he sat across the table from Miss Jordan O'Neill realized not only that he wanted this girl to sit across the table at his meals always but that the bare possibility of not having her share those meals was too horrible to contemplate. A little sick fear of what life would mean without her passed through him like a shudder.

And so it was Arthur O'Neill discovered—what he had never believed before, though he had read it enough, heaven knows—that love is an obsession that grips body and brain and soul, an inescapable enchantment woven of desire and longing and tenderness and hope, a thing of joy and despair, tears and laughter, sunshine and black gloom—a fire in the veins, a glory and a magic in the mind, a catch in the throat.

They rode back to the boarding house in a taxicab—final extravagance of O'Neill's evening, for which Miss Jordan reproached him. He liked that, too, but he also liked the opportunity it gave him for swinging masterfully into the vehicle and giving the address to the chauffeur. But the instant he was in the cab his masterfulness deserted him.

It was dark in the cab, the chauffeur was oblivious and well trained, Miss Jordan was very near, and the fragrance of her came maddeningly to his nostrils. But he sat properly beside her and talked of many things while his heart was pounding so he felt sure she could hear it, and his tongue was trying to run away with the words he actually wanted to say. He was afraid of being too impetuous—as if women ever disliked an impetuous lover.

Miss Jordan had been in taxicabs with men before and nearly always men had tried to kiss her. They hadn't succeeded. She quite expected O'Neill to try it too—with this difference, that he would have succeeded. But he didn't know that, poor lack heart. And so they drove up to the boarding house and he helped her out—with a distinct feeling of disappointment at himself. And Miss Jordan, too, was a little disappointed.

He bade her good night and went to his room, there to sit down at his desk and put on paper some of the things he'd meant to say in the taxicab. He didn't know what he would do with the letter when he'd written it, but he wanted to express what was burning within him, somehow.

A light knock on the door interrupted him.

"Hello, who is it?" he called, testily.

"It's I—Barton," came the reply; "can I see you for a minute—if you haven't gone to bed?"

"Sure thing, come in."

The floorwalker entered.

"Sit down, won't you?" O'Neill invited. "What's on your mind?"

Barton dropped into a chair, then jumped to his feet and began to pace the floor.

His usual attitude of suave serenity combined with calm lordliness was gone. His face was haggard and drawn and his eyes a little strained.

"I couldn't sleep, I couldn't sit still," he cried, pacing back and forth, "and I simply have got to talk to some one. You are a writer and a thinking man and perhaps you can help me out of this situation. Anyhow it will do me good to talk about it to you."

"Fire away," said O'Neill.

"I love Miss Parks," the floorwalker said, suddenly, "and I have loved her for ten years—ten years, sir. Ever since I first saw her in this boarding house I admired and respected her for her intellect and her education.

"But—" he paused a second—"but I was not earning much salary then and, while I desired to marry, I could not ask a woman who was getting greater emoluments than I to share my pay. I resolved to work very hard, however, and thus raise myself to her level—at least financially.

"And for ten years I've been trying to do that—but Miss Parks is a very capable teacher and whenever I got a raise in my position or salary she received one in hers—and for ten years she had been ahead of me.

"That sounds like a trivial thing to you, Mr. O'Neill," he said as O'Neill smiled, "but it isn't to me. Every man has his one particular form of pride—and mine takes this form: I feel that I cannot in honor ask a woman to marry me unless I am earning more money than she is.

"But tonight I began to ponder on the years I had known Miss Parks, and on the fact that we were both getting toward middle age. And I thought of the long years ahead—with no apparent prospect of ever being able to marry her—or even ask her, if I stuck to my pride and——

"Damn it, man," he cried, with a sharp change of tone and speech, "I've got to marry her! I don't know, even now, whether she'll have me or not, but I can't stand life without her any more, and I've been walking the floor trying to figure out a way to keep my pride and get her. And yet I know if I ask her to marry me now and she does so I'll feel all my life that she has made a sacrifice she shouldn't have made—and that I've caused her to give up more than I can give her. What shall I do?"

Barton was so evidently sincere in his little problem, so palpably a great problem to him, that O'Neill lost all desire or thought of laughter.

"I'll tell you what you can do," he said at last. "You can go to bed and let me worry over this thing for you. Possibly by tomorrow night I can dig up a plan that will work out satisfactorily. Maybe I'll hire you as my secretary, or give you a tip on stocks, or find a fairy godfather to leave you a million dollars. Don't think I'm flippant, Barton," he said, rising and putting his hand on the other man's shoulder. "I can see your point of view on this and maybe I can help you.

"This is like working out the plot of a story, you know; it takes a little time. The trouble is that, while in fiction you make a tangle yourself and then untangle it, in real life fate makes a tangle and you haven't any idea where the ends are for you to untangle. But go to bed and leave your troubles to old Dr. O'Neill, the healer of hearts."

He shook hands with Barton cordially, said "good night," and returned to his letter, forgetting Barton's problem immediately. And when he'd finished the letter and read it over he tore it up and went to bed.

Usually the luncheon table at Mrs. Harrison's was attended only by Mrs. Beacon and Miss Parks, whose school was so near by that she found it easy to get back. O'Neill himself ordinarily took his midday meal downtown somewhere, but on this particular day he lunched at the house, and, as Mrs. Beacon was downtown shopping, he and the school teacher were the only ones to sit down.

He noticed at once that Miss Parks looked very tired and worn.

"Aren't you glad it's near the end of the school year?" he ventured.

"Glad!" she exclaimed. "Every summer when the term ends I feel like giving a great yell and rushing out on the street crying, I'm free, I'm free!"

"Don't you like teaching?" queried the writer.

"I hate it," said Miss Parks. "I've always hated it. I hate it worse the older I grow. And I'm getting older every minute."

"You don't look——" politely began O'Neill.

"I'm 40 and I look every bit of it," snapped the teacher, "so don't say polite things to me." She stabbed viciously at a cutlet with her fork. "I'm tired of teaching and boarding, I want to keep house in a nice little flat or a cottage, and—and—" her lips trembled, "O, she said, "you're a lot younger than I am and you won't think this is a hint for a proposal—the honest truth is I want to be married. You can talk all the feminist stuff you want to—but a woman unmarried is a thing for laughter."

She stopped her tirade a moment and gazed at O'Neill with a quizzical look in her eyes. "I'm an awful fool, talking this way to you as if you were my dearest guardian uncle," she said, "but I've had all this boiling inside me for weeks—and you turned the valve and let it out when you asked me if I was tired. Please don't mind a sour old maid's snarls."

"Miss Parks," said O'Neill, very earnestly, "Mr. Barton came to me late last night and said he'd been pacing his room for hours and just had to talk to somebody. And he talked. He told me he'd been in love with you for ten years, but wouldn't ask you to marry him because, in spite of his hard work and his endeavors to rise, you always were making a little more salary than he was. And he said he couldn't stand it to live without you, but knew it was wrong to ask you to sacrifice a good position to share his. I promised him I'd think up some nice subtle plan to help him out, but the subtlest plan I can think of is to tell you what he said."

O'Neill had imagined that this bald and brutal way of putting the case might perhaps offend Miss Parks and was prepared to soothe her with apologies, and even to excuse himself for repeating Barton's story. But he needn't have worried. Her eyes grew radiant and her face pink as he talked, and when he had finished she said:

"You say he—loves me?"

O'Neill nodded gravely.

Miss Parks sighed and shook her head.

"Ten years," she said; "ten years spent on a hateful job—and the man I loved 'too proud' to ask me. Ten years teaching other people's children when I might have had—my own. What fools, what silly fools men are!"

She paused—then. "Tell Mr. Barton that I handed in my resignation to the school board this afternoon and I'll be out of a job at the close of school," she said.

"You've resigned, then?" said O'Neill.

"No," Miss Parks responded, "but I will. Ten years is enough to lose."

There was one vacant place at the landlady's table that evening at dinner. The place was Miss Wiggins'. A young man had called for her, Mrs. Musser said, in a taxicab, and Miss Wiggins had been very much excited when she went away. She didn't see the young man because he was inside the cab, but she knew Miss Wiggins was mighty glad to see him. She didn't know whether she approved of young women riding around in taxicabs with young men in New York. Miss Wiggins, though, was a nice girl, even if a little frivolous, and would probably come to no harm.

"Miss Wiggins went away in a taxicab this afternoon with the man she has loved for years—and they're married by now. And it's true love that has met the test and survived. We needn't wish them happiness, only long life."

As the guests rose under the spell of the excitement and held glasses aloft O'Neill whispered to Barton the news that Miss Parks had resigned, and, greatly to his astonishment, saw that repressed and impeccably correct young man kick back his chair, rush around to Miss Parks, and whisper something in her ear. She blushed, she nodded, whereupon Barton shouted, "Toast us, too, folks! Miss Parks and I are going to be married as soon as school closes."

By this time the people from the other tables had gathered about laughing, eager, and interested—but when the toast to Barton and Miss Parks had been drunk the excitement subsided; the boarders resumed their places and ate their dessert. Except Barton and Miss Parks, 42 and 40 respectively, who sat and gazed at each other as though they had never seen each other before. And it is possible they really hadn't.

Like guests at a banquet, the boarders at Mrs. Harrison's table rose in concert and sauntered out of the dining room, flustered and not a little thrilled with the sudden glamour of unheralded romance. Barton and Miss Parks disappeared in the parlor—and, as if by arrangement, everybody else veered away from there. It was obviously only fair. O'Neill and Miss Jordan made for the front steps, for the evening was hot. Old Graham followed O'Neill and his companion, Mr. and Mrs. Beacon went to their room, Nelson hung about undecidedly in the hall.

Sharply, imperiously, the telephone bell rang.

"That's for me," he said, and dived into the booth.

It was about a moment afterward that he rushed out again, grabbed his hat off the rack, and dashed out of the house.

As he half jumped over O'Neill on the steps he called back. "Mamie planted two fly cops at the other end of a dictograph and got Slinky McGrew to tell her he croaked that guy. And they're takin' him to the Tombs now. That phone ring was wedding bells for me. I'm beating it for Mamie."

Laughing, Nelson sped down the street and dove into the subway kiosk.

Graham, puzzled, looked to O'Neill for an explanation of the remark and the mad rush. O'Neill told him, briefly.

"Well," said the wanderer, "it comes to different men in different ways—what does it matter how, so long as it comes." He rose.

"Coming down to the weinstube for our little evenin's evenin'?" he asked O'Neill.

"N-not tonight, Mr. Graham," replied the writer, with an almost imperceptible movement closer to Miss Jordan. "I—I don't feel like it. But maybe Mr. Beacon—" he paused and glanced up at that worthy little man, who had just come out and stood at the top of the steps.

"Come and have a drink with me, Beacon," called Graham.

Mr. Beacon looked apprehensively back toward the house longingly at Mr. Graham. He poised undecidedly on the brink of the step. Then, with a sudden straightening of his shoulders and a new gleam in his eye, he marched down the steps and joined Graham on the sidewalk.

"Thanks, I don't care if I do," he declared, and the two old men walked away together. And no one would know that it was the first time in his life Beacon had said those words.

Up and down the asphalt street the autos purred, now and then a team clacked ahead of a delivery wagon. Lovers ambled along the walks, families—mother, father, and various offspring of different sizes—moved by. Young men, briskly walking toward their hearts' desire, added to the stream flowing by in two directions. On the steps of the long row of identical brown stone houses of which Mrs. Harrison's was one, sat groups of people enjoying the air. The groups were oddly similar, for this was a boarding house block and the mortals on such steps run to type. And, except for the difference in clothes that fashion decrees every few years, they will be the same a thousand years hence—unless we have abolished boarding houses.

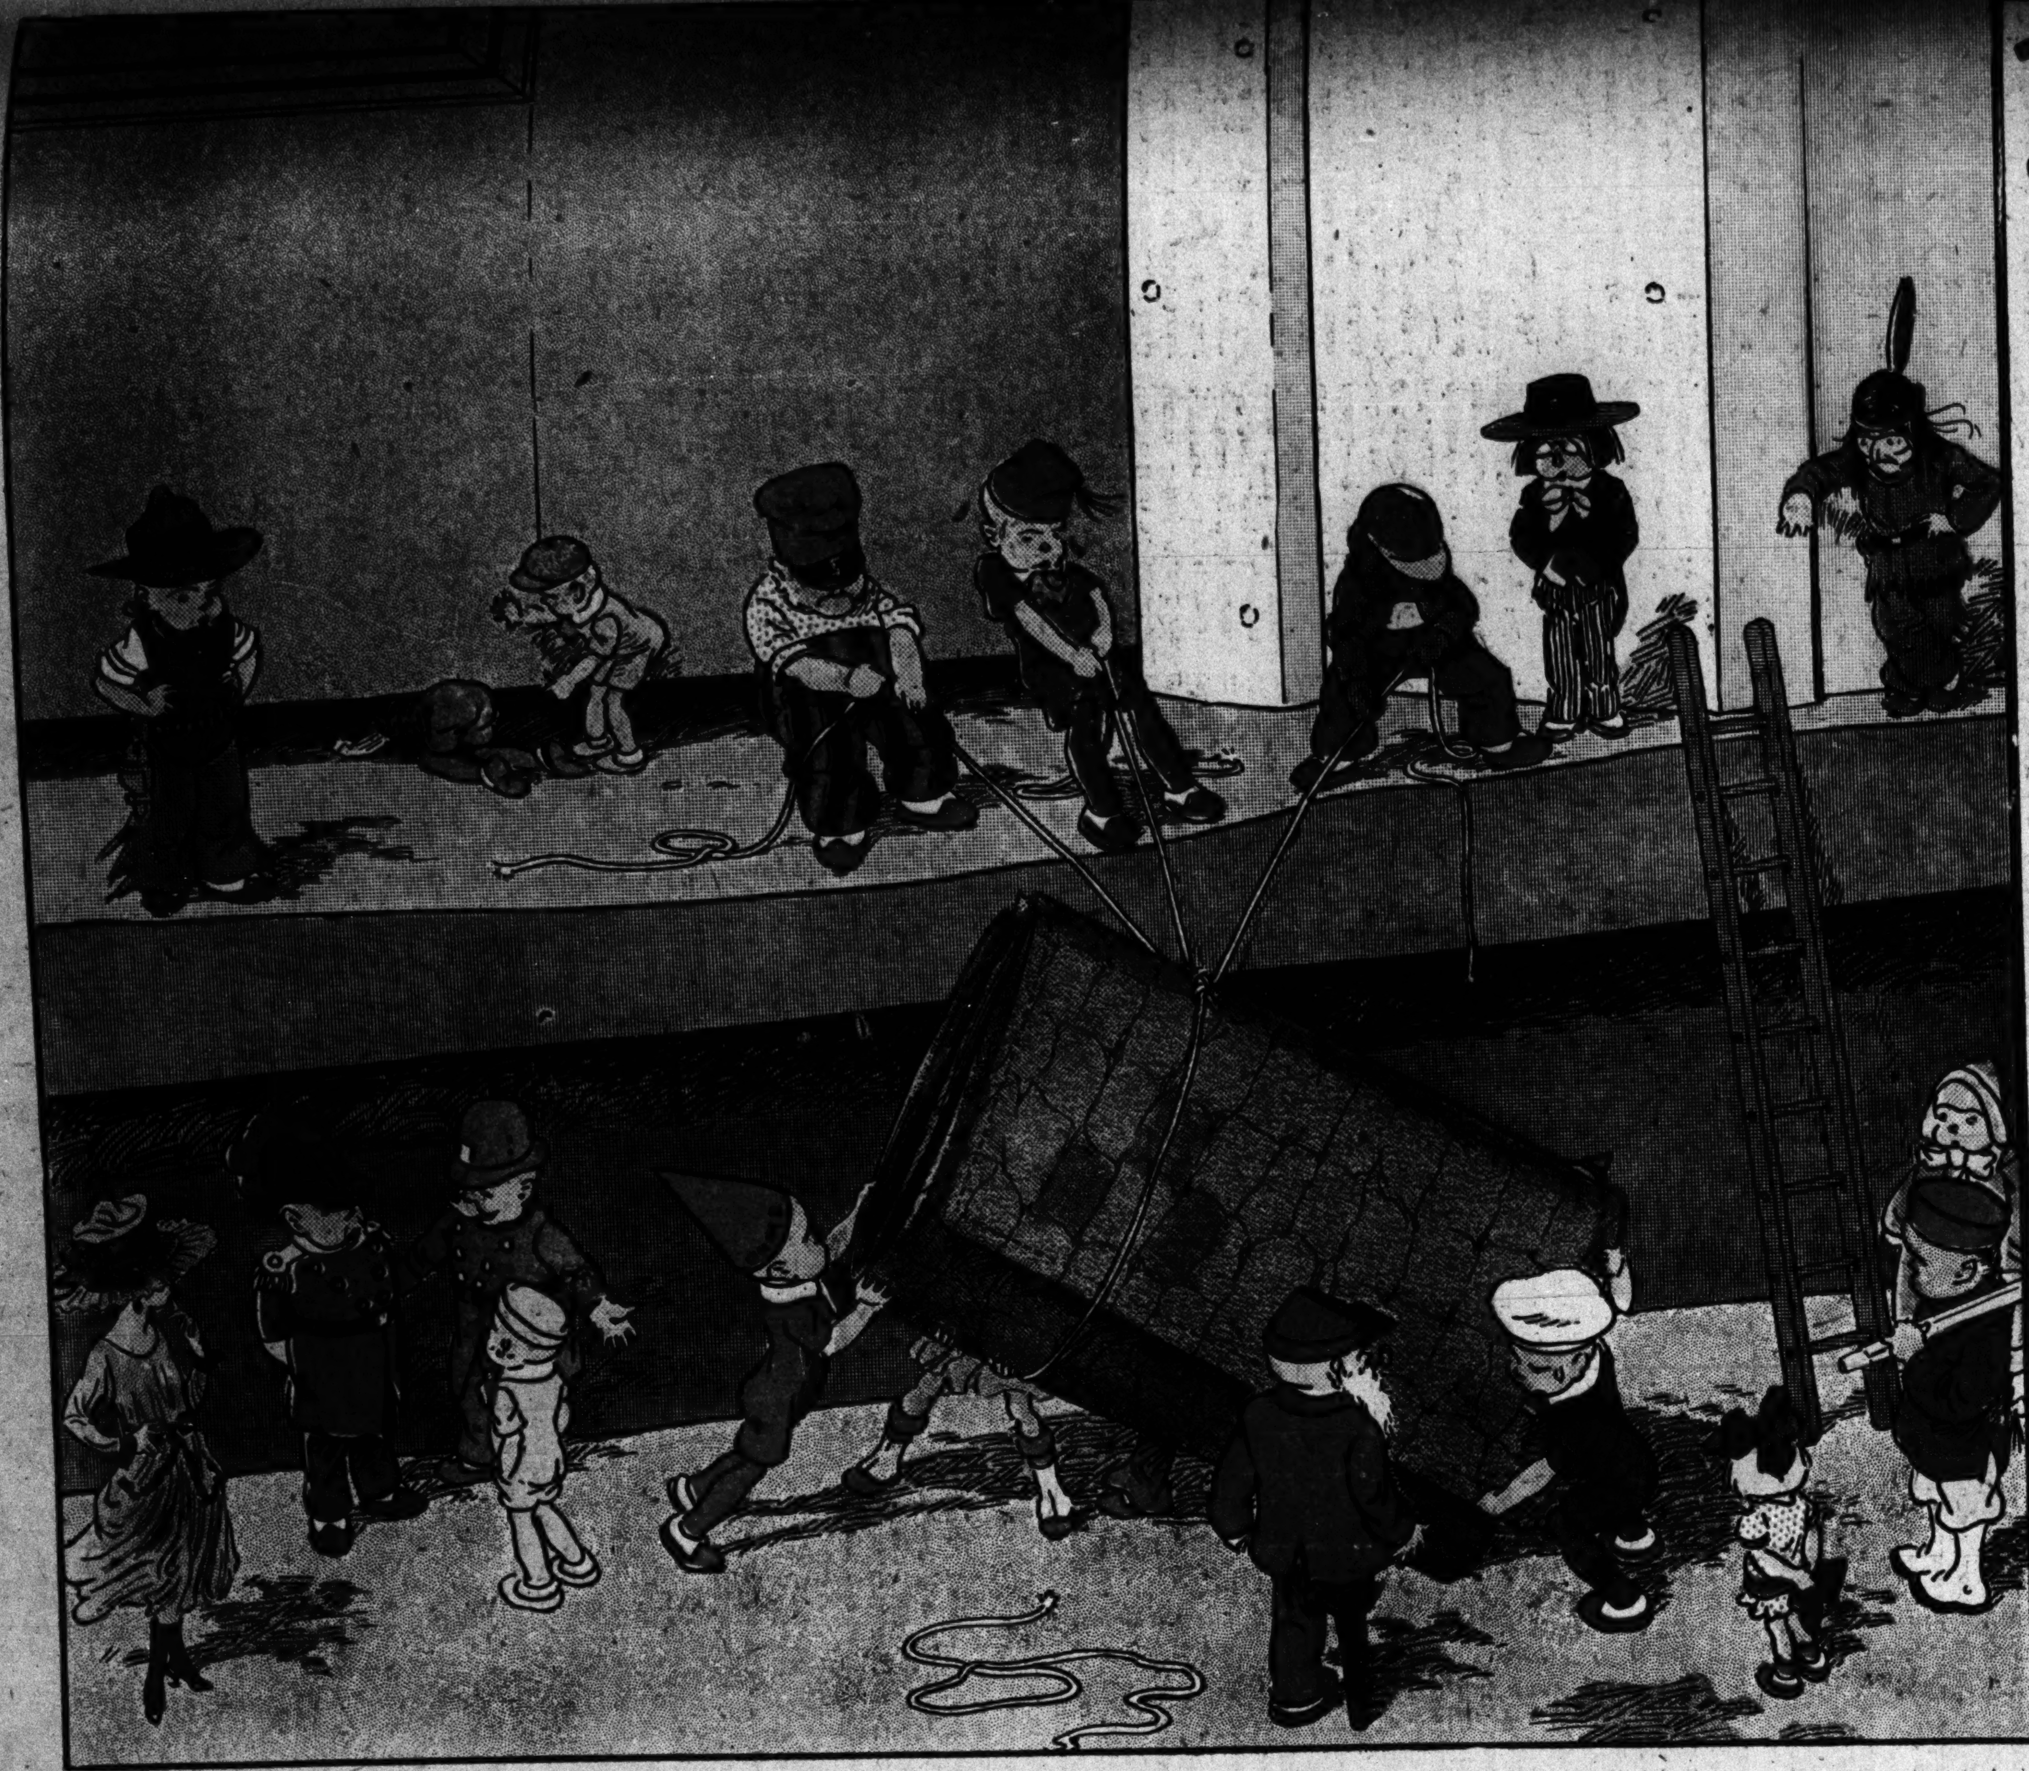
Dusk fell, the house windows began to gleam, the lamp lighter came on his round. Over the sky in the direction of Broadway the reflection of the lights turned the gray clouds gold. And as O'Neill sat beside Miss Jordan his hand sought hers and all his skies turned also to gold. For she did not take the hand away, she turned it upward and clasped his frankly.

"Let's—let's go into the park," suggested O'Neill, "I—I've got something I want to tell you."

"All right," said Miss Jordan. Her eyes glowed warmly in the dim twilight. "Help me up." He took her two hands in his and lifted her to her feet. Almost he kissed her—but not quite.

"But I will when we are in the park," he said.

She took his arm and they went down the street.



THE TEENIE WEENIES

FIND A POCKET-BOOK. BY WM DONAHEY.

"POLICEIE! POLICEIE!" shouted the Teenie Weenie Chinaman as he ran up the steps of the shoe house. "Klick, klick, me wantie see Policeieman muchie fast."

"Me flind plocket blook! Me flind plocket blook!" shouted the Chinaman, jumping up and down with excitement.

"A pocket-book! Where?" cried the Policeman.

"Over there," answered the Chinaman, pointing to the tall grass on the other side of the garden fence. "Oh, muchie big. Pretty muchie bligie as house. Me show. Follow me," and the Chinaman set off for the fence as fast as he could run.

Most of the Teenie Weenies had been attracted by the Chinaman's loud calls for the Policeman and they all followed the little fellow at top speed to the garden fence, where they found a brown leather pocket-book lying in the tall grass. After a lot of lifting, at which the Scotchman nearly strained his back, the little people discovered that the purse contained many bank notes of great value.

"Jimminie Christmas!" cried the Dunce as he saw the green end of a ten dollar note. "We can buy a lot of things with that, can't we?"

"I should say not," said the Policeman, glaring at the Dunce.

"Of course we found it, but that doesn't mean that it belongs to us, and if we didn't make some effort to find out who owned the pocket-book it would be just as bad as stealing it."

A man's name and address were printed on some cards which were found in the pocket-book, and the General ordered the Indian to go to the address and find out if such a person lived there. The Indian copied the man's name and street number on a tiny piece of paper and hurried away in search of the address. In a short time he returned and reported to the General that he had found the house and that he had seen the name, which the Teenie Weenies had found in the pocket-book, printed on a card over the door bell.

'Are you sure that it was the same name?" asked the General.

"Me heap sure," answered the Indian. "Me took along field glasses and me saw heap good it was same name."

The Teenie Weenies tied a stout string about the pocket-book and dragged it over to the owner's house, where they pulled it up the steps and left it safely on the door sill. A short time later the man found his pocket-book on the door step and to this day he hasn't the slightest idea that the Teenie Weenies left it there.

Gowns For Her Class Day

by Corinne Lowe

In Paris they don't dabble with flounces any more. For the American girl graduate, however, nothing is quite so expressive of the spirit of the great day as the national lingerie ballad of white net with picoted flounces, filet insertion, and blue ribbons. Such a frock is shown at the extreme left. The central frock is one that would be charming for class day exercises. Here an underfrock of blue organdy is partially veiled by white organdy embroidered in blue dots and held by a blue taffeta sash. The last model is one where sleeves and a slashed upper collar of yellow Georgette are cast in a frock of white Georgette embroidered in spiral dots of yellow.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—This is a year when the great foreign designers sowed almost every type of costume. The result was a harum-scarum crop of barrels, peg-tops, Directoire, Egyptian, apron panels, short dresses, long dresses, moyen age waists, and what not. Now we are witnessing a process of winnowing. We have separated the wheat of style from the chaff of strange fashions. And today what is there left to us of the original jungle?

Well, first of all, there is the barrel and the peg-top skirt. We have worn these for the past months. We shall perhaps continue to wear them for a few months more. But the fact cannot be concealed that already these inflamed and distorted "petties" are yellowing on the bough.

The skirt which is to be the mode for the summer months is the long straight one combined with the waist line which has consulted text books on anatomy. To break this austere line there is only one license. That is the flap of material, the ribbon bow, or any other trifle with which we may choose to fill out the hip line. Aside from that decking at the hips we shall have nothing except plaited skirts, slimpsy skirts, and apron skirts.

Of course, the reason for the failure of the barrel and peg-top is evident. There never was any real beauty in this ragtiming of the skirt. It made them grotesque. It made them look like camels setting out across the desert with canteens of water and cans of tomatoes packed under those bulging sides. Indeed, it is a notable fact that Callot, Cheruit, Paquin, and Jenny, four of the biggest of the Paris oligarchy, all discountenanced the style at their spring openings.

Another of the discards of the summer is the peplum blouse. All winter this extended barment raged at Monte Carlo and at our own southern resorts. We continue even now to see something of this mode, but the fact is undeniable that the pep has gone out of the peplum and the loveliest of blouses coming to us from Paris are sheer bits of organdy or bastite—either white or some delicate tint—trimmed with valenciennes or cluny and ending at the natural waist line!

Mannish shirtwaists, too, are having a great vogue this season and even if one be what David Graham Phillips called "a born woman" one is sure to be converted by these smart shirts of flesh colored satin or crepe de chine with their tucked or plaited bosoms and their turn-back cuffs with the inevitable links. Some of these new tailored blouses even go so far on the path of virility as to be of men's wear crepe or heavy Jap silk.

We are accused often of having a slavish fashion soul here in this country. Yet it is a fact that, much as we lean upon Paris in all the minutiae of costume—the tie of a bow, the cut of a sleeve, the arrangement of a collar—there are people who devote their entire time to taking the sting out of Paris styles, who adapt and adapt and adapt before those extreme foreign modes become appetizing to the American woman. Sometimes, too, we become absolutely mutinous. There, for example, is the lingerie frock with flounces. Paris has said that flounces are demode, that they belong to that period of life when dear old ladies thought it was not "nice" for girls to ride bicycles. Yet in spite of this the pretty airy frock with its skirt ruffles appears in the smartest shops. For girls it will always be in this country a uniform of freshness and youth and charm.

For her graduation day we submit, therefore, the frock of white net with the picoted flounces worn by the figure at the left. Trimmed with filet, sashed in blue ribbon, and with the same blue ribbon run through a casing at the neck, one would have to search far among advanced modes of the present for anything half so expressive of the spirit of that great day when all life trembles through a mist of pink roses and proud relatives and ringing phrases about "noble young womanhood."

Speaking of organdy, how we have unfurled this material to the breeze! At the Philadelphia Horse show several weeks ago—an event so fashionable that we may call it the "Clothes-Horse show"—this prejudice was well illustrated. Here on one side was a frock of navy silk jersey with vest and inner cuffs of lemon color organdy. On the other a plain roast beefy skirt of blue serge was topped off with the dessert of raspberry colored organdy beneath which showed a skirt yoke of navy satin. Most arresting, however, of all improvisations is the girdle of organdy worn with frock of serge, gabardine, jersey, or foulard. At the Philadelphia Horse show, for instance, one found in a certain box a beige gabardine model with a crushed girdle of cream colored organdy to repeat the theme of cuffs and collar. Having made such inroads on the heavy materials, it is not surprising that this sheer crisp lingerie is so constantly associated with the various oriental silks of this year.

This year sleeves are as independent as your rich relatives. It doesn't make any difference to them at all about the color of fabric of the frock. They just go on their own saucy way. Not only is this true, too, of the serges and jerseys and silks. Even lingerie sleeves get their own vote and here in the third frock for the sweet girl graduate we find sleeves and slashed collar of yellow crepe de chine completing the destiny of a white Georgette crepe with spiral spots of yellow.

We really feel a delicacy about mentioning it again, but the hat worn with this costume is of white organdy and only the tall gentleman can ever find out that the top of this hat crown is the yellow crepe de chine of which the sleeves are made.

This year the costume is like the boy right inside the revolving door of the hotel. It can't get too many checks. Everything bears witness to this, and one of the most startling novelties to appear on the fashion horizon is the suit of gingham. Shantungs, too, are plaided this year. For example, one smart frock worn at the Philadelphia Horse show was of shantung plaided in purple and rose. This frock was neutralized somewhat by a sleeveless overblouse of white gabardine which went on over the head and ended in an apron front. The belt, cuffs, and collar were of purple shantung and so, too, was a sailor hat trimmed in suede flowers of purple and red.

There is appearing every day some new and attractive accessory. Summer fans, for instance! These are now often of paper or chiffon, hand painted and mounted frequently on sticks of sandalwood. In shape they are as conventional as the eighties themselves. Then there is a new veil which is designed for the service of that woman who wants to keep her alabaster skin. This goes over the wide brimmed hat and hangs back and front in panels reaching clear to the waist line. On the whole, this veil is apt to make one feel as stuffy as a sleeping car and for general wear we shall be apt to select one of the new wide mesh veils with chenille or velvet dots. It is, bear in mind, a veil year and we must all make some kind of a choice.

All sorts of collar and cuff sets are offered to brighten up the tailored suit and afternoon frock. For morning wear sets of colored linen or organdy are invariably smart, and for more dressy occasions here is the sailor or round collar of ubiquitous organdy with perhaps an edge of white net. Inasmuch as silver slippers will go with any type of evening gown, they may always be regarded as one of the economic accessories of a toilette. This summer we find these adaptable accessories in a new and more fairy-like guise. The difference is made by flowers and foliage cut out of silver cloth and set in the place where the tiny rhinestone buckle used to appear.

Among the most frilly and intriguing of all the small things is the scarf or shaped collar of voile edged with marabout. Such have just arrived to us from the other side and one shaped collar of gray voile edged with marabout of the same shade may be trusted with the always puzzling task of filling in the chinks.

WHAT DRINK HAS COST ME

By Antoinette Donnelly

THE CURSE OF DRINK.

[Written by Barbara Jackson in the county jail.]

Sitting in my cell tonight
  I cannot help but think
Of other souls that are lost like mine—
  Lost on account of drink.

I think of friends of other days,
  When I was in my prime—
Of friends who loved and cherished me
  Till drink became my crime.

Bitter are my memories now
  Of the thing that men call "cheer"—
For every laugh from the brimming cup
  I've paid a million tears.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"EVERY time I am released from the house of correction or the jail I say to myself, 'Never again,' and I mean it. Then, when I stand outside with perhaps a dime between me and the long, hard road ahead of me, I ponder: 'What shall I do? Where shall I go?' And then I think: 'I'll go and get just one drink to brace me up.' And before I know it I am there getting the one drink, and, of course, there are always plenty of fellows who will buy you more after you've broken your good resolution to have one, and only one. They never offer to buy you a meal, though, when a good, wholesome meal would do more to help a woman just released from jail life and jail fare than anything else. But that's part of the price we female alcoholics pay."

These words came from the lips of the most pathetic of all the human derelicts that drink has cast up in my pathway. We'll call her Barbara Jackson, but that isn't her real name or anything like it.

In the county jail I first saw Barbara, although I had heard of her from the matrons of various institutions which have housed Barbara for indefinite terms during the last six or seven years. She is the pet of these matrons. They really love her. I cannot explain her power of appeal. It may be her diminutiveness, or more likely her eyes, like those of a gazelle—large, soft, and black. When she turns them upon you a pity fills your soul which blinds you to the sordid details Barbara has herself contributed to her present misfortune. She grips your heart like a baby does when it is suffering pain and you can do little or nothing to relieve it. It is not acting, either, on Barbara's part.

On the old square piano whose chords were dissipated, broken, sick, and hapless, and peculiarly consistent with the audience of "offenders" who listened with me to her, Barbara played. She played one of the lieder ohne wörte of Mendelssohn's.

"What other composers are you especialy fond of?" I asked her.

"Beethoven," she answered. "I love Beethoven. I love poetry, and Beethoven is poetry to me."

She recited a touching bit of verse to me in a voice soft, refined, and with that quality of unshed tears in it that "gets you."

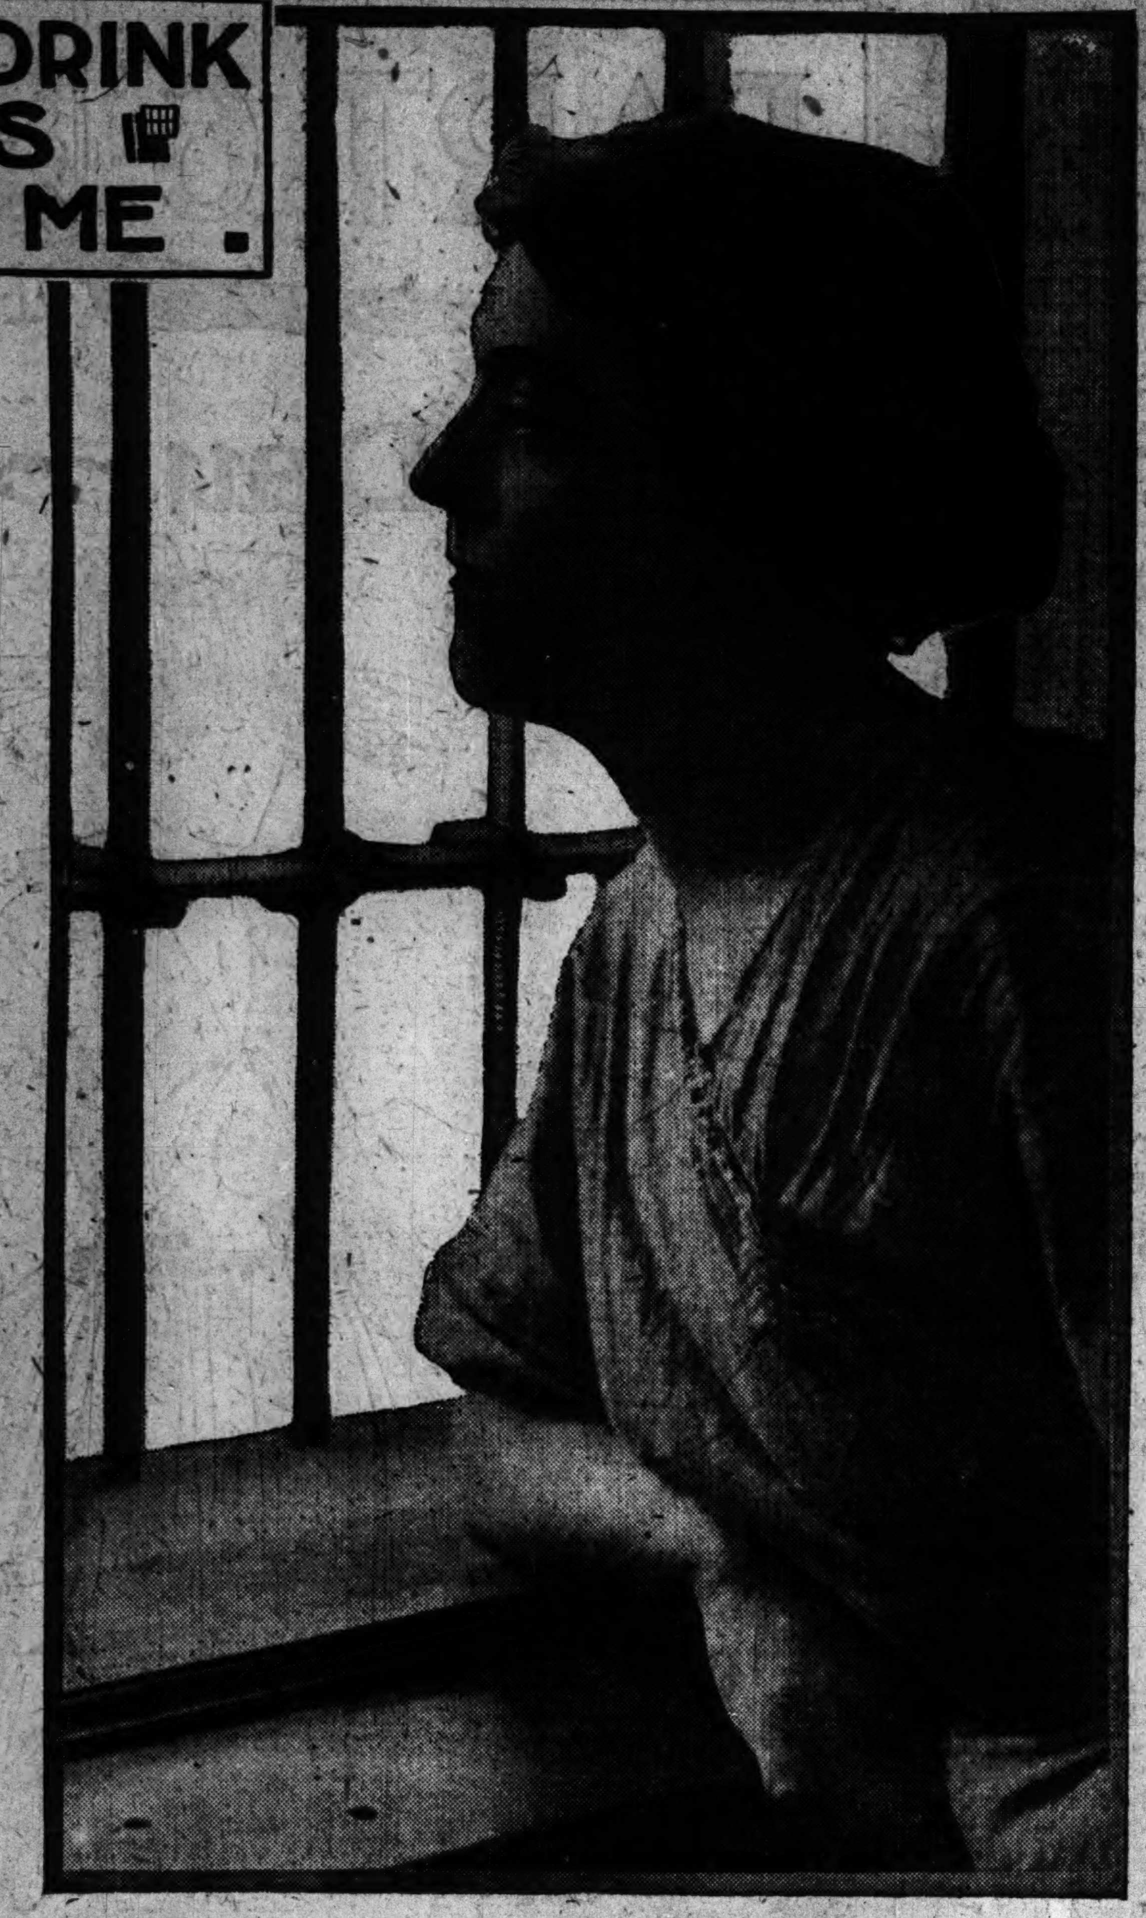
And Barbara plays the violin.

"I wish I could play for you," she said. "But wouldn't it look funny for me to be playing a violin in this dress [the speckled blue garb of the jail inmates]?"

Barbara knows German, French, and good English also. Her accomplishments are not so surprising when I tell you she was graduated from a fashionable young woman's school in Chicago. She was valedictorian of her class. She was a brilliant pupil all the way through her school work.

To get away back to the beginning, Barbara was an orphan. She was deserted by her mother when six weeks old. She was put in an orphanage, from which she was adopted at 1½ years of age. That the drink disease may be inherited is denied by many authorities, but none deny that the children of alcoholic parents are likely to be of impaired vitality at birth because of the lowered virility of their alcoholic progenitors. Perhaps this may be Barbara's excuse. I could not help but feel about her that some power shaping and misshaping her life and over which she had no control had brought her to these stone walls in which the affecting drama of real life and drink is being given continuous performance.

Drink has wrought much havoc in Barbara's life. At 31, which she is today, she looks out through the barred windows on a world that terrorizes her because she thinks she is too weak to fight the drug that has her in its grip.



Barbara Jackson, Graduate of Fashionable Boarding School.

"I can't be cured," she cried hopelessly. "Everything has been done for me that can be done. My mother, who adopted me when a baby, has lavished her love and her money on me all my life until I sank so low she finally gave me up in despair. She sent me to cures. She gave me the best treatment herself that any one could give another. And even yet I know if I could pull myself together and make a woman of myself she would take me back and forgive me.

"But I can't do it. My health is so far gone anyway I haven't the strength to put up the fight. If they'd close up the saloons, morally speaking I could be one of the finest women on earth, because when I'm not drinking I am good. But the minute the drink begins to act, gone are all my decent impulses. I've got to have it. Unless I'm fed upon it I haven't any power to run on.

"You know I realize what drink has cost me most when I meet the girls who went to school with me. They are all happily married now or successful in some chosen work, and I—O, look at what I am!" And she broke into hysterical sobs.

"Sometimes they pretend not to see me—because they all know about me and how I've gone down the road of destruction. And sometimes they do. But even then it is hard. It has happened to me a number of times when I would meet a school friend on the street, the first thing she would say after we had made the usual inquiries after each other's health: 'Come on somewhere and I will buy you a cocktail or a highball.' This makes me realize the opinion they have of me.

"Don't I know I've changed! I never was a beauty, but I took care of myself. I brushed my hair and massaged my face and manicured my nails frequently and attended to all such details. But now look at me! I haven't any nice clothes any way, so what's the use of fixing myself up?"

Barbara must have learned well her lessons of taking good care of herself in her younger days, for her skin is still without blemish and her hair is clean, her nails were clean, though not polished, and her clothing beneath was clean.

"You can see what a chance I have to make good again. Look at the associates I have here," said Barbara, with a glance around at the colored and degenerate looking white occupants of the chairs outside their respective cells.

Though the great common destroyer, Alcohol, had reduced them to the same level in the eyes of the law, Barbara somehow belonged in another sphere. Not that she felt superior, for she said:

"No, I'm worse than they are, for I had opportunity, education, love, and everything. I wish I could do something noble before I die. I wish I could be a Red Cross nurse so that I might get an opportunity to do it. Or, if I could be sent to a dry state where I couldn't get drink, maybe I could come back and help some one else. It's time for me to wake up and see the waste I've made of my life and to try to repair in a measure the grief I've caused my foster mother.

"And then there's my little daughter, too. Her father has her and I haven't seen her for two years now, but it's with her in mind and the hope that my story will save some other from the wayward steps I have taken and which I never would have taken if the drink curse hadn't broke out in me not long after my baby was born that I give it for publication.

"She's a beautiful child, my little girl. I wish you could see her," said Barbara.

"Are you divorced?" I asked her.

"No, just separated; but the courts declared me an unfit person to bring up a child."

MILDRED: WEAR A LONGER shoe, Mildred, and you will not suffer untold agonies from your bunions. Bunions are the result of great pressure and friction on the joint, most frequently the large one of the great toe. They come from an ill fitting and particularly from a too short shoe. The joint should be relieved of all pressure. If possible a loose slipper should be worn to allow the toes to spread, then take a piece of adhesive plaster and bandage the great toe, bringing it into its natural position. This will relieve the inflammation and the bunion will gradually disappear. You can also paint the bunion with a lotion of two drams each of carbolic acid, tincture of iodine, and glycerin. Walking pigeon toed helps relieve the flat foot tendency.

* *

RETTA: WASH YOUR HAIR OFTener than once a month if you want a clean, healthy scalp and healthy hair. The proper frequency of shampooing depends upon the condition of the scalp and the amount of dirt to which the hair is exposed. For the average person once in two or three weeks is often enough to shampoo, but if the hair is oily and full of dandruff it may be necessary to wash it twice a week. I shall be glad to send you my treatment for oily hair if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

Bright Sayings of Children

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

Harold was instructed in the duties and spirit of a host by his mother before she gave the birthday party. One guest, a boy of 8, feeling too old for baby games, was frankly bored and refused to join in the play. Several times Harold, in obedience to warning glances, offered the boy his own place, only to meet as many refusals. Finally he inquired in tones of sincere interest, "What did you come for—to eat?" Maarion, having had her bath and being cold, ran to the radiator and turned her back to it. A howl of pain went up, as it was hot enough to raise a blister. After the storm had subsided, she proceeded to be so naughty that mamma was at her wits' end. At night, on the arrival of papa, Marion met him, gayly saying, "O, daddy, I'se having such booful times, 'cause I'se got a blister and can't be spanked." L. R. M.

One afternoon as I sat in my old rocker doing some knitting my son came to me and asked, "Mamma, did the stork bring Mary?" He was referring to his 2 year old sister, whom he had by the hand.

"Why, yes indeed," I replied.

Slowly and meditatingly he said, "I thought maybe the robin bringed her, cause she's so small." B. P.

John was given two tickets for the annual Sunday school excursion, one for himself and one for his parents. He was much afraid he would have to miss the fun because his mother was ill. Thinking of his aunt, who was taking care of the family, John raised his hand and asked, "Teacher, if my mother can't go can my father bring another lady?" E. B.

A woman was speaking to a friend of another friend in the presence of a 3 year old daughter of the friend spoken of, and called her by her maiden name. The little girl spoke up and said: "She moved out of that name and now is Mrs. Palmer." G. H.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on the subject "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life Was When——." Address Embarrassing Moments Editor, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Write on only one side of the paper. No manuscripts will be returned.

Althea Imprisoned.

As I was walking up the main street the other day I had to pass a fellow who was washing windows on the outside of a building with one of those long handled brushes. Just as I got in back of him, and never realizing that I was so close to him, he came down with the brush, and before I knew what happened the stock got between my legs and caused me to stumble. Imagine my embarrassment when he turned around to see what he had struck. ALTHEA.

He Grabbed It.

The most embarrassing moment I ever had was when I was a young lad of 15 years. I had gone to the city and was sitting in a big grand stand eagerly watching the ball game.

All of a sudden I felt something push against my coat pocket as if some one were trying to rob me. Having been warned of the many pickpockets there were in the city I resolved to sit real still and just as it started away again to grab it.

I did so, and with one revengeful grab I took hold of a young girl's ankle.

Wanted It on Monday.

I thought I had the laundry on the telephone. "Please send the wagon around to 41 Hamilton place, this morning," I said.

"Very well," was the reply.

"And, say," I added, "you may as well send it around every Monday, to save me calling you every time."

A slight pause at the other end of the wire, then, "Well, madam, this is the undertaker." L. H.

Suitors' Mistakes Contest.

Did you make a mistake that cost you the one you wanted to win more than any other? Was it an unkind remark, a selfish deed, a mean or careless one, an error or tendency of your past come to light? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Mistake That Cost Me the One I Wanted Most to Win." Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Tribune."

Dining with Charles.

I had been keeping company with Charles for some time and wanted very much to some day become his wife. My father was a stern man and had warned me if ever he caught me taking an intoxicating drink he would punish me severely. I was 17 at the time this happened. One evening Charles took me to a restaurant and, not thinking father would see me, I let Charles order two bottles of beer. Just as our dinner and drinks were being served father stepped in and took me by the ear and marched me out of the restaurant and home. I missed my supper and lost the boy of my dreams as well. H. A. Sensitive About Her Feet.

A dear girl friend of mine was engaged to a promising young doctor and plans for the wedding were in preparation, when one evening at a dinner party, as she was lingering to talk to a friend, her fiancé laughingly exclaimed, "O, come on and get your feet under the table." She considered this an insulting remark and consequently broke the engagement. He is now married to another girl. F. G.

Small Brother Contest.

You've heard that story about two women discussing a wedding. "Who gave the bride away?" asked one. "Her young brother," answered her companion. "He yelled out, 'Susie, you landed him at last.'" Perhaps he was your young brother, or perhaps your young brother got in his demoniacal work before you got as far as the altar. Or maybe the young imp wasn't your brother, but a diabolical young sister who pretty nearly queered the game for you. Write and tell us about it, anyway. "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune.

He's After Brother Now.

We lived in an old fashioned house with a register leading from an upstairs room through the parlor ceiling. One evening while my beau was sitting directly under this opening my young brother slipped upstairs and poured a dipper of water down my friend's neck, much to his mortification and my anger. We are married now and my husband has been trying ever since to get even with him. J. H. E.

Gone for Good.

Well, what all have those three younger brothers of mine not done? But this is one of the worst.

I was making welsh rarebit one evening after a certain bashful youth and I had returned from the movies. We were just "sampling" it when the three came in and proceeded to devour all they wanted, after which Bill remarked, "Say, Edna, did you make this to kill him or to land him?"

Well, I neither killed him nor "landed" him, for he never came back. E. H.

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are Complex.

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

PERSISTENT, stubborn, audacious, shrewd, moody, and ofttimes hard to please, affectionate and pleasure loving, politic when it pays you to be so, social and generally versatile—that's what the stars claim for you if your birthday comes this week.

Your sign, like that of those whose birthday came last week, is Taurus (the bull). Your colors are azure, red, and lemon yellow. Your birthstones moss agate and emerald. Your profession or occupation actor, stage manager, decorator, artist, or scientist.

A more generous quantity of stubbornness seems to be associated with the birthdays of this week than of any other. You are credited with being able to shut yourself up in a shell of silent stubbornness which nothing can pierce. You have a good opinion of yourself, not without warrant, for you have some excellent traits, as you are perfectly aware. You are hard to please at times and again you will show much affection. You are capable and precise, but if the plans you lay go awry you are apt to take your defeat most gracelessly. You would make a poor gambler.

You have an eye for your own interests. When it pays you to be so you can be most affable, pleasant, and tactful, and you know how to play up your best trait and hide your worst. This applies to your personal appearance, too. You can be acrimonious and uncharitable to a marked degree when actions and words of others do not comport with yours.

You are a great reader and keen for wide information. You are a lover of music, poety, art, and drama. Though social, you are subject to spells when you grow most irritable and then it is better for every one to keep out of your way. In your home you show especial love of beauty. The decoration and furniture must be artistic and nice or you will not be happy. You want the color and form that charm the senses. For this reason you should be a good florist. Your worst fault is your bitterness in your dislikes. If you dislike anybody you can't find any good in them at all.

If you ever want to undertake a new enterprise, remember the two weeks beginning Sept. 5 and Jan. 11 are your luckiest weeks. Taurus being the sign that governs the neck, you are prone to throat troubles.

According to some authorities, Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22 inclusive) would be the most perfect mate for you, being your exact opposite in the zodiac. The chances of a Taurus person's happiness depends on himself. This, of course, is true of all signs and degrees, but with Taurus rests the making or marring of his own home. Should Taurus marry a Libra person (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23), an intellectual mating is promised. Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) is a negative sign and holds promise of a harmonious marriage with Taurus born.

Burt's a Bit Troubled.

"Dear Miss Blake: I had a girl friend who moved away from this town. She is a nice person, but her ways are just opposite to mine. I am quiet, while she prefers excitement. There are many ways in which we are different. If we did marry we perhaps could get along, but whether we would be happy would be hard to say. Any advice would be highly appreciated. B."

Sometimes extremes of temperament spell greater domestic happiness than like temperaments. There would, in the event of matrimony, have to be a certain amount of adjusting one to the other, but with love as the motive power this is quite a possible accomplishment, but why cross bridges, Burt? Have you asked her how she feels toward you?

* *

Walking with a Lady.

"Dear Miss Blake: Please inform me as to whether it is proper for a young gentleman to take a lady's arm, when walking, or should the lady always take the gentleman's arm? Also I should like to know if it is not correct for the gentleman always to walk at the lady's right? D. M. H."

The young man takes the lady's arm to guide her across street crossings, but under other walking circumstances it is considered provincial to go arm in arm. The man walks on the outside of the walk, whether that be at the lady's right or left.

* *

Gave Him Belt Buckle.

"Dear Miss Blake: I had sort of a foolish bet with a young lady friend of mine, in which she was the loser. Instead of giving the cigars, as the bet called for, she gave me a good looking belt buckle. Now, would it be proper for me to return a gift? O. C. R."

Send her a good looking corsage or a basket of flowers, or a box of candy done up in a fancy box, if you feel obligated to pay off the debt. I suppose the poor girl meant all right in not sending the cigars. It's a brave woman nowadays, in the face of all the vaudeville wit and otherwise, who would buy a man cigars even to settle a debt.

* *

Concerning Games to Play.

"Dear Miss Blake: I wonder if you could tell me any games that would be nice for high school boys and girls between the ages of 13 and 16. We have played all the games we know and are tired of them. L. J."

Do you know that there are good books of games to be bought at a comparatively low price in bookstores and book departments of the big stores? Also, you may get them at public libraries. I wish I had space to tell you some amusing forms of entertainment, but I haven't. For just a "drop in" crowd, why not sing and dance?

The Proper Care of the Complexion

By BLANCHE DEARING.

Never use a face powder that does not benefit your skin. Here, at last, is a new face powder guaranteed absolutely pure, and it really stays on better than any of the old-fashioned powders. Everybody knows white lead is a deadly poison; it causes blotches and irritations. To avoid white lead face powders many women have used rice powder. Today, specialists say rice powder is almost as bad as white lead. Rice powder is starchy, and, like bread flour, it is quickly turned into a gluey paste by the moisture of the skin. It clogs the cuticle, swells in the pores, causing enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. Prove this yourself. Ask a number of your friends who have enlarged pores, blackheads or pimples what face powder they use. Nine out of ten will say rice powder or they use "Poudre de Riz," which is French for rice flour. If you value the charm of a lovely complexion, stop rice powder. You can now use a pure face powder that really beautifies your complexion and cannot injure the most delicate baby skin. It is the only powder sold in America, at any price, guaranteed not to contain rice flour or talcum or bismuth or white lead. The specialist who makes this improved powder uses an ingredient that doctors prescribe to heal pimples. Every time you apply this new powder you give your complexion a real beauty treatment. It helps to prevent enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. It is also remarkably astringent; it tightens the skin, discouraging flabbiness, crows' feet and wrinkles. And it really stays on better than any other powder. You can also use this same powder as a liquid powder. Just sprinkle a little dry powder in a dry saucer and apply it with a damp sponge. No other dry powder can be used both ways. If you honestly want a perfect complexion powder, go to The Fair, Buck & Rayner or any Big Store and ask for La-may face powder (French, Poudre L'Amé). Dealers everywhere are now selling the 50c size at only 35c. When you use this delightful Powder La-may you will be surprised to see how wonderfully it beautifies your complexion. If you live out of town and your best dealer has not yet got it, you can order white, flesh or brunette for 35c by mail of the American agent, Herbert Roystone, 106 E. 19th St., N. Y.

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

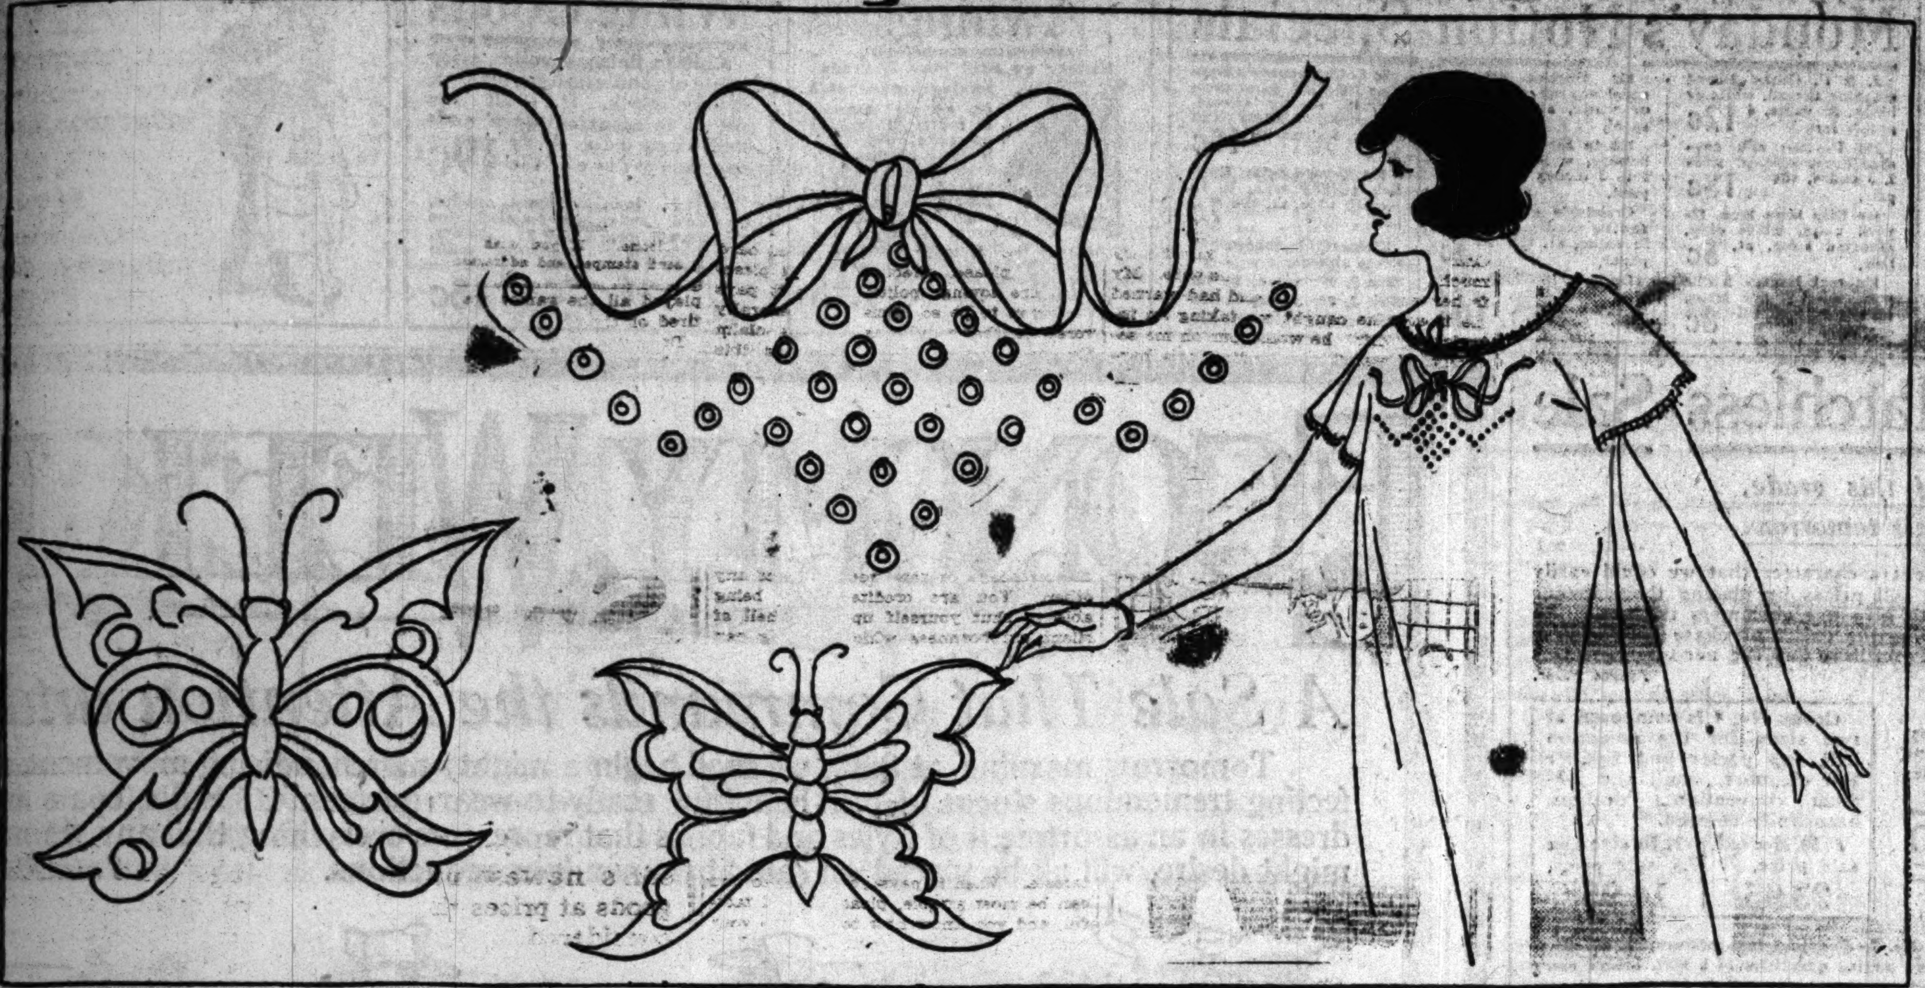
Practical and Fancy Needle Work

By CLOTILDE



Many requests have come for embroidery designs that are dainty and yet simple, and one will be printed each Sunday for a few weeks. This week a simple butterfly design is shown for a nightgown or combination. A satin stitch or a combination of satin, outline, and buttonhole gives excellent results.

In using the printed design from the paper the directions are as follows:

If the material is sheer, the easiest way is to lay it over the design, which will show through plainly, and draw over each line with a hard, sharp lead pencil. If the material is heavy, buy a piece of impression paper—the kind that does not rub off—lay it on your material, place the design over it, and trace with a hard pencil. You will find the design neatly and accurately reproduced.

Childhood Ambition Contest.

Did you ever have a childhood ambition—a humorous one? Of course you did. And what you did wasn't anything like what you dreamed. Tell us what your great ambition was—and then tell us how far short you fell. Do it in 250 words, on one side of the paper, and address manuscripts to Childhood Ambition Editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune. For each story printed $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned.

She Wanted Slenderness.

When a child—which, after all, isn't so long ago—I wanted to be a tall, slender actress of the "weeping" type and keep the audience in tears during the entire performance.

Today I stand 5 feet in my stockings, tip the scales at 170, and I'm studying art.

"Could any ambition be more "far-fetched"? Somehow it clings to me even yet. M.

A Forgotten Dream.

I am a most respectable member of society and belong to a high brow club in my home town. I drag home ponderous books from the library to gather information about the "stone age" and write heavy papers which equally respectable women of my club suffer through, and then try to ask alert and intelligent questions about. In our paper they call me "the most intelligent woman in"—we'll say—"Reedsville."

So no one would suspect for a minute that my childhood dream, persisted in till I was at least 16, was to be a circus bareback rider and to be dressed in pink tights and jump through a hoop while dashing madly around the ring on a white horse.

Today, as I mournfully survey my waist line—which is "something that never was," as my hated rivals at the club would say—I thrill all over when I think of that sylphlike figure in pink tights on that white horse.

It is something precious—that dream—that I've put away with my white feather fan with its odor of sandalwood, and my solid gold hairpins—they matched my hair once—and only to be taken out, out of my memory and out of the dresser drawer, when the south wind blows in April and sets hearts to dreaming that had long since forgotten to dream. ETIQUETTE

By ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

WHAT TO WEAR AND WHEN.

ONE of the most frequent questions that comes to me is that concerning men's and women's dress on different occasions, so here are a few rules as to what to wear and when. After 7 o'clock in the afternoon evening dress is correct for both men and women at formal affairs. With décolleté gowns women, in this country, don't wear hats, although in Paris they do—or used to before the war. Gloves are not so much worn nowadays as they used to be. Many fashionable women forego them for everything except grand opera and formal balls and dinners. At the latter two functions they are frequently dispensed with soon after entering the drawing room or ballroom and not put on again. At afternoon or noon entertainments it is correct for women to wear tailored suits or afternoon frocks, hats, gloves, and whatever wrap the season requires. It is customary, at social happenings at this time of day, for a man to wear a dark cutaway coat, gray striped trousers, gray socks, tie, and gloves, or, if the occasion be an informal event, men may wear business suits. Dinner coats are only suitable for informal home entertainments, such as a Sunday evening dinner or supper. In England, which sets men's fashions, they are worn only at "stag" dinners or when a man dines with his family.

HETTY: When a young man asks a girl if he can call upon her or take her to a dance or some other entertainment, she may tell him either that she will be most happy to see him or accept his invitation, or that she has a previous engagement and must therefore decline. In answer to a request made to a girl by a young man that he may take her home, she need only reply that she will be glad of his company, if that be the case. Upon bidding him "good evening," after being escorted to her home, she can quite properly thank him and say that she has enjoyed seeing him.

* *

MRS. R. D.: It is not only customary, but necessary to acknowledge flowers, letters, telegrams, and gifts sent on a wedding anniversary. It is the wife's place to write a personal note to the sender of each remembrance, expressing her husband's gratitude as well as her own for the thoughtfulness and kindness shown.

* *

MISS H. S.: When attempting to carry out a definite color scheme for a luncheon it is better to use the desired colors in the flowers, place cards, bonbons, and in the cake frosting. Candied violets would add a touch of violet or lavender to the ice cream served for dessert. It is usually a rather dangerous experiment to try to use some especial shade or color in the soup, meat, and salad courses. Rose, pink, yellow, or green could be employed in the decorations for a luncheon of older women just as well as violet or lavender. To tell the truth, however, one color luncheons or dinners are no longer à la mode.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

Admired an Athlete.

In my high school days I was athletic and strong. I played on the girls' basketball team and there were few girls who could beat me at any sport. When I became engaged my fiancé told me he was first attracted to me by my athletic figure and strength and health. We have been married over a year and I am beginning to see why my husband admired my strength. I do all the washing and scrubbing and bring in the coal. Of course, I am healthy and strong and can stand it. He, poor thing, is gaining weight from working so hard at the office. M. G.

* *

Still the Same.

Before we were married my husband was demonstrative and gave me many little attentions, gifts, and surprises. I wondered then if it would last—I had seen so many neglected wives. I am happy to say that after being wedded twenty-two years he is just the same, never forgets an anniversary or birthday; he even celebrates the 1st of April with a good joke on me. He is more lovable today than he was as a suitor. J. C.

THE SUCCESSFUL HOME GARDEN

J. F. H. HEIDE

ARTICLE NO. 62.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Annuals Recommended for Chicago and Vicinity

Copyrighted, 1917, by J. F. H. Heide.

(First Half—The Remainder to Appear Next Sunday.)

Though annuals are particularly adapted to the renter's garden and other temporary plantation, they are by no means out of place in the permanent homestead. They may be sown in separate beds, fill voids in the vegetable garden or perennial border, or used to mask unsightly objects and fences while the permanent plantation slowly attains its growth.

The list includes both hardy and tender annuals. The former are such as re-seed themselves or which may be sown in autumn to insure earlier blooming in spring. Many of those advised for sowing in April and May would ordinarily be sown in April only; but the backward season makes them quite timely the first week or two in May. No effort has been made to indicate those which may be sown, from time to time, to insure succession of bloom throughout the growing season. Usually the seed packet gives that information.

The last column refers to the "smoke zones" published March 5 and reprinted April 16. Following is the key to the letters found in the column headed "Remarks":

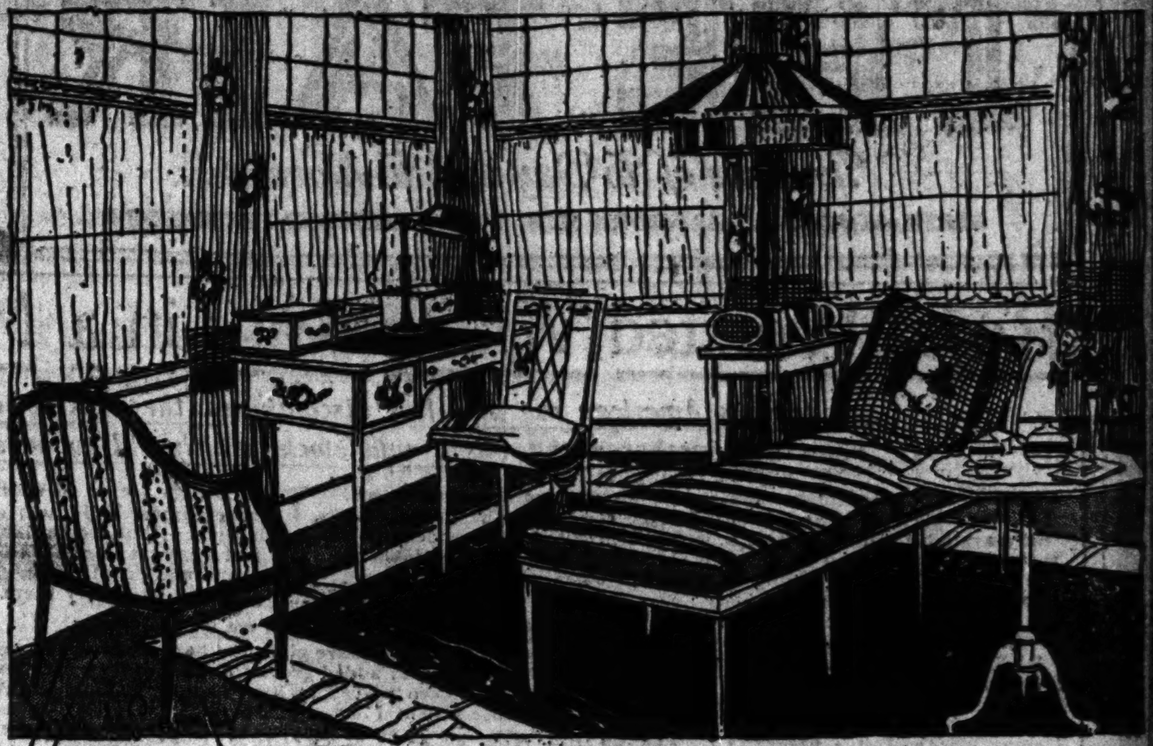
The HOME HARMONIOUS

By Anita de Campi



For the Writing Corner.

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

WHILE it is not always possible to have a whole room in the home reserved as a writing room, it is nearly always possible to plan a writing corner, and with the prerequisites for this purpose that the market now affords the writing corner can be made irresistibly attractive.

Convenient and coquettish, especially in a boudoir, is a little three-quarter screen so placed as to politely suggest that privacy is desirable. Louis XV. screens with glass inset at the tops of the panels and filled with silk brocade below are charming, but must, of course, be used with furniture to correspond. This is a mere detail, however. The real furnishing consists of a writing desk or table, properly lamped and fitted. On my own writing table I have a clock and lamp and have had a small bracket added on the side to hold the telephone. On the floor should be a little footstool or floor cushion. The writing chair must be armless and comfortably high, and a rack for reference books must be part of the furniture group.

As reading is almost an indispensable part of writing, a lounging place to read in is logical. A chaise longue or day bed drawn up near the writing paraphernalia lends an air of reality to the arrangement. Comfort, warmth, and richness or daintiness and grace or other desirable qualities are attained in the selection of colors and modes of decoration.

Where space is limited the drop leaf cross between a writing table and a writing desk is admirable. With the leaf dropped the desk is no wider than an ordinary shelf, but the leaf lifted provides ample writing space. These table desks are now manufactured in exquisite colored enamels, well ornamented, and with gate leg effect.

The black rug has a gray border. The woodwork is sand colored and the furniture is painted in a deeper shade of the same. The sand and hair line black striped draperies are printed with motifs in brick, white, black, and olive, and the design is repeated in the same colors on the furniture. The lamp is black and tan, with brick tassels. Several motifs have been cut out from the curtain material and appliqued under a heavy black soutache on the checked silk sofa pillow. The sofa pad is of sand and black sun fast. The little tea set is in the palest lemon color, banded with olive. The walnut chair at the left is upholstered in ivory silk, brocaded with a tiny vine in olive and threaded with a narrow stripe in lighter green. The loosely filled chair pillow is in light green, banded with bronze. The table lamp has a Tiffany green shade.

Quite different in character is a corner of a living room dedicated to a man's use. The walls of the room are tobacco brown and, contrary to the usual rôle, the floor is covered with a fawn colored carpet, lighter in tone than the side wall. This, however, is in turn partially covered with oriental rugs. The portieres are in taffeta, the color of blue plums, traced with a brocade pattern in blue a shade lighter. On the wall are some excellent etchings.

The window seat is painted a light full turquoise green. On this seat, which is more like a built-in day bed than an ordinary bench, is a boxed cushion and a pair of pillows, of olive and turquoise brocatelle. The window has three pairs of curtains—old ivory net next to the glass, then a pair of dull turquoise green voile, and then a pair of blue plum colored sun fast.

The writing desk is nothing more nor less than a drop leaf table in brown mahogany. On this is an adjustable trough for stationery. It is further fitted with a desk set, blotting pad, etc. The straight chair is of brown mahogany. The head and foot of the day bed are built up into narrow book shelves. A pair of smoking standards gives to the whole the masculine touch.

Hemp color, pea green, and deep violet blue are effectively used in a restful country bedroom. The floor and woodwork and furniture are all painted hemp color. The wall is in dull violet gray, with a little checkered stencil at the top in deep violet blue.

The craftsman's bed has four posts and a roof lined with violet blue and with a valance of pea green sun fast dotted with violet. The bed is made up with white spread and pillow slips, but has a breadth of pea green sun fast laid crosswise over the middle. This breadth, which is allowed to hang over the side, is lined with violet blue satin and embroidered with a band of interlaced ovals done simply in heavy chain stitch. On the woodwork of the bed some squares are outlined in brown paint, and the centers of the squares are ornamented with little painted motifs in pea green and dark violet blue. Two narrow side curtains inclose the bed head, and a cream colored lamp on the somno stand has a violet blue silk shade, lined with cream color.

The windows are small and high and the writing corner table is simply a drop leaf shelf, hinged to the window sill. In width it reaches to the floor, so that when raised the writer sits at it, not facing the window, but sideways to the window. It is adjusted by means of two brackets on hinges that fold under, and when dropped it looks like part of the woodwork.

The floor is uncarpeted excepting for two small pea green rugs, one at either side of the bed. The chair is a high, ladder backed one, painted hemp color, with touches of violet on the rungs. The seat is made of rushes.

Never have there been so many types of desks offered to the buying public as there are this year. A peculiarity of the output is that they are fairly suggestiv of gender. One sees at a glance that thi is a woman's desk, that a man's. Me prefer the squarely built, substantia sort, many of which are highly decora tive, particularly the medieval one decked in deep polychrome. The table of the Italian renaissance are als manny looking, while those made fo women are more fragile in form an lighter in color scale.

The only desks that are somewhat i disfavor are those with the slantin fronts, that drop forward and cover th drawers below them so awkwardly as t make the drawers entirely inaccessibl while the desk is open. Any type of des is preferable to this.

It is not too much to say that a writ ing desk shelf or table should be allowe in every room—this is even presumin that the front hall is to be called a room. The bathroom is really the one room tha might be excepted without inconve ience.

COOK: Either have your kitchen do in flat tone paint or select a good wash able paper. Buff is the best color if th kitchen is not light. Paint your wood work several shades darker than th color of your side walls.

Girls! Use Lemon Juice on Skin! Make a Good Complexion Lotion

Any girl or woman can easily prepare a quarter pint of lemon massage lotion cheaply. It is splendid!

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener, beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of Orchard White at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is truly marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

Genuine Orchard White bears the name, Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Royal Worsted Wilton Rugs in a Matchless Sale

A famous American rug mill has discontinued the making of this grade, and we purchased the entire mill stock, which will go on sale tomorrow.

WHEN this noted maker decided to discontinue this quality and to dispose of his stock on hand, he turned to The Fair as the "only available outlet" at this time for such an immense stock. We took every rug he had of this grade, from the 11.3x15.0 size down to the 18x36 inch mat, including all travelers' samples—and we secured important price concessions.

THESE rugs are of so excellent a character that we could easily have disposed of them at full prices by placing them in our regular stock; but we prefer to give our customers the benefit of this fortunate transaction, turning the entire purchase over quickly on a small margin of profit. If you have any rug needs, attend this sale prepared to satisfy them. Fourth Floor.

Group No. 3 embraces popular 8.3x10.6 size, for use in the chamber or parlor. In this group are to be found beautiful Persian color combinations that will give universal satisfaction. 52.50, size 8.3x10.6, sale price, Monday, 36.75

9x12 Royal Worsted Wilton Rugs are in Two Groups.

For many years these rugs have given the best of service in many homes, and always have they added greatly to the beauty of the room in which they have been placed. Their texture is most durable. Nearly all reproduce Oriental colors and designs.

Group No. 1—57.50, size 9x12, sale price, 38.75

Group No. 2—57.50, size 9x12, sale price, 41.75

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for "The Chicago Sunday Tribune" and may be obtained through no other service. A Chicago distribution office has been opened, and following this announcement orders will be filled on the day of receipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and will thereby hasten delivery. Patrons are requested to send stamps instead of dimes, as money is frequently lost in the mails.

CANNING EVERYTHING.

In solving the present food problems it is the height of wisdom to utilize all organizations and all the records of the experiences of those organizations. Experience is always won expensively at first hand. It is folly not to take advantage of the mass of experience now in print on every one of the food problems that face us today.

A great many people with great good will are "starting things" which are bound to be wasteful if not abortive because they do not know what resources are at their command. Some of them think they have an absolutely new idea when their subconscious mind has really been noting items of progress or development along this line while their conscious memory does not serve them.

It is not a new thing to be up and doing in the canning business, as some people seem to think. Half a dozen different agencies at least have been promoting the utilization of all the formerly wasted foods of the farm by canning them, and hundreds of thousands of people have learned to can. Manufacturers of canning outfits have sprung up in great numbers and have been active in promoting this form of industry by providing helpful guidance of all sorts. Little has been done to prevent market waste in cities in this way, but for two years at least this has been urged.

The specific work of the government along this line has been in charge of O. H. Benson. He has gone hither and yon with his canning outfits giving actual demonstrations of the whole business of canning. Canning the so-called "weeds," beginning with the dandelion, has been one of his hobbies. Able assistants have been added to his equipment, and while he lectures they put up greens or carrots and corn and beans and apples or tomatoes—often every fruit and vegetable that they can command. Moreover, they bring along for exhibition products that have been canned by their methods and have stood the test of several seasons.

One of the largest of the farm implement manufacturers has coöperated with Mr. Benson at times, and the manufacturer's own canning squad, with a great deal of literature on canning, beginning back with the planting and care of the things to be canned, has been sent in every direction.

There are thousands of boys and girls in the schools of the United States who could give almost as good a demonstration of canning as Mr. Benson himself. His title is included in the statement after his name, "in charge of boys and girls' club work in the north and west." His recipes and directions are sent out under the head "Coöperative work in agriculture and home economics, states relation service, north and west, Washington, D. C."

"The U. S. department of agriculture and state agricultural colleges coöperating" is another statement at the head of these bulletins, which include "Canning Windfall and Cull Apples and Use of By-Products," "Home Canning Club Instructions to Save Fruit and Vegetable Waste," "Additional Recipes, Tested and Determined, for Use in the Boys and Girls' Canning Club Work," "Canning of Soups," "Tinning, Capping, and Soldering," etc.

Lists of all the companies manufacturing canning utensils and outfits have been prepared by Mr. Benson and specific outlines of the most economical of all canning methods, the "cold pack," with time tables for the cooking by the pressure, hot water, water seal, and other methods.

The state work in New York has been accompanied by a great many publications, helping to fill the can all the way along from seed to kettle. In the south the work has perhaps been the most extensive. Not only boys and girls but men and women have entered into the movement and one of the governmental services has been to find markets for the goods canned.

We are facing a different problem this year. The food container is harder to get and more expensive than formerly. We may have to revive the older method of our grandmothers. In fact, some manufacturers with quite wonderful equipment are already imitating some of the German and Chinese methods of drying fruits, vegetables, and even meats. In the meantime, if we are really in earnest, let us get all the literature put out by the government and read it before we act. It is easy reading.

By scalding, blanching, and cold dipping, vegetables which are more solid than fruits can be thoroughly sterilized. Sterile and then inclosed in an air tight container, cooked and sealed, they will keep indefinitely. The scalding and cold dipping makes it necessary to use the intermittent or fractional sterilization method. Mr. Benson says:

"When a food product has been blanched in boiling hot water or live steam, remove quickly from this and plunge immediately into cold water. The influence of this method upon bacteria, spores, and molds is effectual. When this is followed by a single period of sterilization, we contend that the success of canning is just as sure as though three periods for three successive days were used, and the interesting part of it is that the product by this method is much better and not overcooked. It is more true to nature in color, flavor, and texture, and more natural in appearance."

Mr. Benson explains why scalding is different from blanching, both of which are first heatings of the product preliminary to the canning. Scalding, for one thing, is to remove skins and hasten processes. "Blanching is a term used to indicate a much longer period of preliminary cooking," he says, "and its objects are chiefly to eliminate excessive and objectionable acids and acrid flavors, to make it unnecessary to use the exhaust period or practice the intermittent method of canning, and to reduce the bulk of vegetables, such as greens, cabbage, and other products of great bulk." The immediate dipping of the blanched products in cold water is such a violent change of temperature that all living spores are rendered forever harmless.

The reasons Mr. Benson gives for cold dipping are: "To harden the pulp under the skin and thus permit the removal of the skin without injury to the pulp; to coagulate the coloring matter and make it harder to dissolve during the sterilization period; to make it easier to handle the products in packing."

A great square of cheese cloth, not mentioned in this description, is what Mr. Benson uses when he has no wire or other basket. In this the products are instantly lifted from the blanching water and dipped in the cold.

The list of edible weeds for canning given by Mr. Benson are "Pepper cress, lamb's quarter, sour dock, smartweed sprouts, purslane, or 'pusley,' pokeweed, dandelion, marsh marigold, wild mustard, tender sprouts, and young leaves of milkweed."

Purslane is extensively canned in Holland, where it is called "postelin." This member of the portulacca family grows readily in freshly worked earth. It is acid like the sorrel and pleasant to taste. The Dutch cook books say that the best time to can it is when it is about to blossom, if I remember rightly, or just when it blossoms. Dutch is a mean language to read, so I do not spend time here to look the matter up.

Charles Dudley Warner, who wrote "My Summer in a Garden," says: "The sort of a weed I most hate is the 'pusley'—a fat, ground-clinging, spreading, greasy thing, and the most propagacious plant I know. I saw a Chinaman, who came over with a returned missionary and pretended to be converted, boil a lot of it in a pot, stir in eggs, mix, and eat it with relish, and say, 'Me likee he.'"

As for Jane Eddington, she is a Chinaman or a Dutchman when it comes to enjoying purslane greens. And are we not all looking for propagacious plants in these days? Not only dandelion greens but mustard, chickweed, sorrel, dock, and mullein may and ought to be served on our tables as greens, and if we have a surplus, put in cans. And there are others, including wild or "volunteer" lettuce, which I am told is extensively eaten in California, as the pokeweed is in the south. Young red clover is eaten as well by people intelligent on this subject as it is fairly gobbled by the cows. And chickory, succory, or blue sailors, wild or domesticated, is an aesthetic salad source as well as green, and so on and so on.

Mr. Benson's list of edible cultivated greens is: "Swiss chard, kale, Chinese cabbage leaves, upland cress, French endive, cabbage sprouts, turnip tops, New Zealand spinach, asparagus, spinach, cultivated dandelion, dasheen sprouts, native mustard, Russian mustard, collards, rape.

Letters for Boys.

"It seems to me that I am a most selfish wretch and have never done anything to help the Corner, and even now I am not offering much—just a few hours of my time to write to some boys about my own age—18—who are lonesome.

"JACK D."

A nice, boyish letter from a nice boy! I hope there will be other lads who will care to hear from him, and I shall be glad to send his address to any such who will write to me. Is it necessary to say that I ask girls to refrain from writing to me for this address? Once I would have thought so, but the printing of requests for correspondents by young men has led to such floods of letters asking for their address, and sent by young women and girls, that it seems perhaps desirable to make the above statement.

* *

Wants Some Chickens.

"I read the Corner carefully, but I have never asked for anything before. Now I would like to make an exchange. I decorated china for a good while until I fell into ill health and I have some hand painted china. I should like to exchange for a few bantam chickens and two or three hens. I want the bantams for eggs and I should enjoy a chicken or two to eat, as I cannot afford to buy chickens or eggs. Or I would give instructions in china painting through the mail in exchange for the chickens. I have a few quilt pieces I should be glad to mail to some one. R. H. H."

Is there any one who would like to make this exchange? Before it can be done it would be desirable for Mrs. R. H. H. to get into communication with the person with chickens to give and state what kind of china she has to give away, the number and style of the pieces, etc. I hope she may be able to arrange the exchange.

* *

Wants Books for Blind.

"Will you please tell me the man to whom to write to send children's stories? Will you also ask the Cornerites if any of them have books in the Moon type for the blind and that they would pass along? You got some for me once before. I will gladly pay postage. I can send some reading matter to the correspondents whose applications I inclose when you give me the addresses.

The addresses asked for have been sent, but I am sorry to say that I cannot identify the person referred to in the first paragraph of the letter. I do not even have a gleam of understanding as to what is meant. I shall hope to get further information. As to the books in Moon type for the blind, I hope that some one may see this who can grant it.

Orphan Crippled and Poor.

"I appeal to the Helping Hand on behalf of a poor orphan girl, 11 years old, who suffered with a terrible disease for nearly a year and at last, to save her life, her leg was amputated above the knee. The little girl is alone in the world, with no one to care for her but her aged grandmother, who is suffering from rheumatism. They are worthy poor people and will be most grateful for anything you may be able to send the suffering child. There are many things that would please a child of that age and help to drive away the dark clouds that have surrounded her during the last year. She is doing her best to get a wheel chair, which she much needs. Dear readers of the Helping Hand, do not pass this appeal by, but send in your mite to aid this unfortunate child. Our Savior says: 'Inasmuch as you have done it unto one of the least of these little ones ye have done it unto me.' If you cannot help get the chair, there are many other things which would cheer the poor girl—a doll, story books for children, a box of writing paper, games, etc. The child's initials are M. A. L. E. S."

This is a forcible appeal and one that I am sure will touch other hearts as it has mine. To me it is unspeakably painful to think of a mere child being crippled for life and after so much suffering. All we can do to lighten her burden or to brighten her lot we should gladly undertake, and I know the hearts of the Cornerites well enough to be sure that there will be a generous response to this appeal. In writing for her address be sure to give the initials M. A. instead of those that are signed to the letter itself.

Lift Corns Off With Fingers. Try It!

A few drops of Freezone loosens any corn or callus so it lifts right off. Seems magic!

Doesn't hurt a bit! Instantly takes pain and soreness from any corn. Try Freezone just once!

Sounds unbelievable, but try freezone and see. Millions of men and women who were tortured with corns and calluses describe freezone in one word—"Magic." You will say magic too! Yes, you will!

A noted Cincinnati authority discovered a new ether compound and called it freezone and it now can be had in little bottles for a few cents from any drug store.

You simply apply a few drops of freezone upon a tender corn or painful callus and instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can just lift it off with the fingers.

No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applying freezone or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened calluses just shrivel up and lift off so easily. It is wonderful! Works like a charm.

Few drops stop corn-pain

Takes soreness from any corn

Women should keep freezone on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice. If a corn starts hurting just apply a drop. The pain stops instantly, corn loosens and falls off.

Tiny bottles of Freezone packed in round wood cases are sold by all druggists for a few cents. Look for the name Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, O

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

Mary King.

AN UNFAIR "STRAW BOSS."

In this week's mail is a letter from a business girl whose complaint against the "straw boss" will probably be echoed by many workers in the rank and file of large business organizations or corporations. The writer, however, loses sight of the fact that any plant, in order to carry on the work with as great facility and efficiency as possible, must necessarily be divided into departments and the departments into sections; and these divisions must be managed by men who can be held responsible by their superiors for the quality and quantity of the work of the individual employés.

Amy Lee's complaint is probably justified in this particular case, but I am sure that if all division heads and superintendents were eliminated from any large industrial organization the result would be chaos.

The story of her experience is an interesting one, and I will give it to you in her own words:

"There are probably many workers in the same situation I was a year ago, when by right of superior service I should have been advancing steadily with the firm, but because I was corralled by a stupid and selfish man I was kept in a subordinate position on a small salary. Mr. Page was the section head to whom we were responsible for our work, and through whom all suggestions for the betterment of the service were made and all our grievances settled. It was 'lese majesty' to go to the manager with a question or a suggestion. This was a ruling of the firm, and if we felt we were not being fairly represented by our section head, we had no recourse but to leave the employ of the firm.

"For two years I struggled and suffered under the tyranny of a sub-boss until, by a lucky chance, he was exposed in his abuse of power and the whole system was changed.

"Besides myself, there was a young man in our department who also seemed especially adapted to the work, and we lost no time in learning the details of the business and missed no opportunity in making practical suggestions toward bettering the service and simplifying the work of the department. Our suggestions and ideas were always received in a discouraging manner by our superior. He would listen with pretended politeness, but always dismissed us with the remark that the suggestion was not workable. He never failed to thank us, but we were always led to feel that our suggestions were useless to the firm. It happened in almost every instance, however, that after the lapse of a short time we had the questionable satisfaction of realizing that our ideas and suggestions were being incorporated into the workings of the business. Neither the young man nor myself ever received any notice from the members of the firm, and the changes which came from our suggestions were never alluded to by Mr. Page.

"We submitted to this without a sign until one day I heard the vice president say to Mr. Page, 'That was a great line you gave us yesterday for our advertising copy,' and the vice president repeated the catchy phrase with great satisfaction. Mr. Page colored slightly, but thanked his superior when that personage remarked that he would receive substantial recognition on the monthly pay roll from then on.

"I recognized the phrase as one my co-worker had submitted to Mr. Page to be turned over to the advertising manager. From that time we never made a suggestion or submitted an idea except in writing and with the date plainly marked. We filed copies of these memoranda, which helped us both to better positions and larger salaries later on.

"About six months after my confirmation of Mr. Page's duplicity, in a moment of low spirits, I told my troubles to a man from another department. He had no connection with our department, but had always been friendly to me, and as he seemed sympathetic I could not resist complaining of the unfair treatment of our section head.

"I did not know at the time that my sympathizer had access to the ear of our employer, but I learned later to my satisfaction that although this man was ostensibly overseeing a small section of a department he was really doing some confidential work for the 'big boss.' As a result of my unburdening my troubles Mr. Page was transferred to another department and the authority of all the section and department heads was limited, and any employé can reach the highest authority with a reasonable suggestion or grievance. The young man who struggled along unrecognized with me is now a department head, and I am his assistant."

REAL LOVE STORIES

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

AN EASTER EGG ESCAPADE.

TWENTY-FIVE years ago I lived with my parents on a large farm in the middle west. Although I was brought up to work, when I was old enough I was sent to college.

While at home one Easter vacation I packed eggs for market. One nice, large white egg tempted me to write my name and address on it, and some weeks later I received a letter from an eastern city. The writer said he was a senior in the college of law in a university, and as it was vacation he was helping in his father's wholesale house. While sorting eggs he came across the one with the address on it and decided to write.

I answered his letter, but felt rather guilty, as I knew my precise mother would not approve of such a procedure. However, he wrote such bright, witty, interesting letters and it was such fun to get them it put me on my mettle to keep up with him.

There followed several months of the most animated correspondence. Then his letters began to take on an intimate tone. He sent me his photograph and asked for mine in return. The picture he sent to me was of a young man about 25 years of age, with a strong, bright, good natured face. But I was rather dubious about it being his own photo. Anyway, I was worried about the turn the correspondence had taken.

I had a friend who worked in a photograph gallery. I asked him if he could find a picture of a real nice literary old maid for me. He said he would try, but he was curious to know why I wanted it. I would not tell. A day or so later he brought me a card size picture of the plainest, primest, oldmaidish literary person imaginable.

I wrote rather a sweet, primly affectionate letter telling him how glad I was to get his likeness and how pleased I was that he wanted mine. I inclosed the old maid's picture with a sort of fiendish glee and thought as I did so that it would probably settle matters, so I would not have to tell my parents, after all, and in the future I would be careful not to get into another such a situation.

I was right. His letters did change. I guess he was scared, too. The correspondence languished, then stopped altogether, and while I missed his letters much, I congratulated myself that I was well out of the escapade.

Some weeks later I was home for a vacation in November. While playing a romping game with my younger brothers, sisters, and some of the neighbors' children I nearly ran into a stalwart young man as he came into the hedge fenced yard. He looked strangely familiar. He said he was buying poultry and asked to see my father. When he was through talking with my father it was nearly supper time. We lived five miles from the village, so the young man asked my father if it would be convenient for him to stay all night with us.

After supper I was alone in the kitchen washing the supper dishes, while the maid was washing the milk cans in the dairy house. As I was working away I heard some one say: "Want some help? I am a master hand at drying dishes."

Without waiting for an answer, the young man stepped into the kitchen, took a dish towel from the rack, and began to prove his words. We worked in silence for some time. I could feel him looking intently at me. I knew that I was blushing. Finally he said: "I just felt sure it wasn't your own picture you sent to me. The letters and the picture wouldn't go together. So I came half way across the United States to see for myself."

I liked him as well as he liked me, so just after the next Easter we were married and "lived happy ever after."

Corns Loosen Off With Magic "Gets-It"

2 Drops Do the Work, Painlessly

"I tell you, before I heard of 'Gets-It' I used to try one thing after another for corns. I still had them. I used bandages and they made my toe so big it was murder to put on my shoe. I used salves and other things that ate off more of the toe than they did the corn. I'd cut and dig with knives and scissors, but now no more fooling for me. Two drops of 'Gets-It' did all the work. It makes the corn shrivel and get so loose that you can just pick it right off with your fingers!"

There has been nothing new discovered for corns since "Gets-It" was born. It's the new way—the common-sense, simple, sure way.

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

News and Views of the Theater

By Percy Hammond.

LIKE the philosopher in the Russian proverb, we were pleased last week to Sit on the shore and wait for a wind, such doldrums were hereabouts in the theaters. Nothing disturbed the mausoleous inertia, save the automatic shifting of burlesque and vaudeville, which ebbed and flowed as hope does, meaning little in the sad vicissitudes of things theatrical. But now we stand alert; a stirring breeze impends, and on its breath is the prophylactic fragrance of Mr. Shaw, who desires to fill our sails with airy odors relating to the institution of marriage.

Grave authors have said that honest wedlock is a glorious thing, but Mr. Shaw in "Getting Married" regards it as one of civilization's lively cadavers, capable of cold dissection in the clinic of the drama. Metaphor is mixed; but so is Mr. Shaw when he discourses on this intricate institution. He starts upon it like Billy Sunday, with hypnotic and unanswerable outcries, and he ends like Eddie Foy, with a ring in his nose. Since nothing is so different from a play read as a play played, I refrain from further threshold discussion of "Getting Married," though I saw it acted years and years ago when a child in London. Mr. Faversham, who stands alone in ambition, in daring, in admirable vanity, and in unselfish determination to act in literate drama, whether we like it or not, is coming to the Princess theater tomorrow night in this Shaw debate. He has with him such audacious support as Miss Crosman, Miss Spong, and Mr. Cherry. If we do not attend him and them during their scant fortnight at the Princess, I insist that women's clubs and the University of Chicago will cease from troubling me with notes inferring that the theater is an intelligent art.

However, if the Shaw-Faversham outlay does not lure you it is my duty to tell you that Julian Eltinge is at hand, tonight at the Blackstone, in a composition by Charles Klein, who sank bravely with the Lusitania. It is referred to as "Cousin Lucy," and in it, of course, Mr. Eltinge, at heart a masculine man, is in impersonation a masculine woman—hairy, muscular, and suggestive of biceps and the toehold. I know of no male who is so much like a woman, unless it is Frank Gotch. Once, in my brilliant youth, I referred to Mr. Eltinge as "ambisextrous," which, as a pun, and as a report, was not so bad. At least he will do the best he can to entertain you; and he comes from the Pacific coast, covered with medals for broken records in that fastidious terrain.

Receiving two dollars in return for one is an adventure infrequently experienced by the Chicagoan in New York, especially by him who migrates thither on pleasure bent. Frugality in that capital, as in this, is a despised emotion when felt by its guests, and, though the metropolitans are by no means mercenary they regard the tourist's passion for expenditure as an admirable and a necessary attribute. They little reck to find the way to heaven by doing deeds of unremunerated hospitality.

It is pleasant, then, to be able to introduce Mr. Joe Le Blang, a beneficent fellow whose office it is to minister to the thrifty playgoer, the playgoer whose joy in the drama may be mitigated by the size of the indemnity he is forced to disgorge at the hotel ticket offices. As almoner for the more philanthropic of the New York theatrical managers Mr. Le Blang is provided with large numbers of tickets which he is permitted to distribute at rates one-half those charged at the theaters. Thus, desiring to attend "Up Stairs and Down" or "Lilac Time" or Robert B. Mantell, you give Mr. Le Blang $1 and get therefor a $2 seat.

Access to Mr. Le Blang hitherto has been confined to the resident New Yorker, but a circular which has just reached THE TRIBUNE shows that his benevolence is now available to aliens. Besides the attraction mentioned above the discount privilege applies to William Collier in "Nothing but the Truth," Emily Stevens in "The Fugitive," John Barrymore in "Peter Ibbetson," Lew Fields in "Bosom Friends," Chrystal Herne in "Our Betters," Mary Boland in "The Case of Lady Camber," Clifton Crawford in "Her Soldier Boy," Messrs. Courtney and Wise in "Pals First," the Washington Square Players, "The Brat," "Eileen," "Canary Cottage," "Love o' Mike," "The Man Who Came Back," "The Willow Tree," and others equally popular.

As a souvenir of the two hundredth performance of "Turn to the Right" June 16, a jar of Ma Bascom's peach jam will be given to each holder of a preserved seat.

"Lombardi, Ltd.," is a new comedy by Mr. and Mrs. Hatton soon to be played by Leo Carrillo, a star who, no doubt, is more famed in other centers than in this.

"Dainty Marie," who wears fewer clothes in vaudeville than any other lady, has been employed by Oliver Morosco to act in "What Next?" She is a trapeze performer. Miss Blanche Ring and her husband, Charles Winninger, are also to be in the company. Mr. Morosco is soon to produce a play, called "The Skeleton," by Frederick Truesdell, the actor.

Bernard Shaw was asked to explain why Enlish soldiers on furlough in London attend the musical revues in such large numbers. "The principal effect of musical revues," said Mr. Shaw, "is to reconcile one to death."

Miss Julia Arthur, whose summer home in Boston Harbor, has been seized by the war department, is preparing to act in vaudeville in a patriotic play called "Liberty Aflame." "Seremonda," the implement of her recent appearance at the Blackstone, is said to be in demand by John McCormack, the tenor, who believes it would make a good grand opera with him as the hero in it.

Raymond Hitchcock in his patriotic curtain speech in "Betty," regarded congress with the chill and fishy eye of a cynic. "We'll wake some morning," said he, "to find that our $7,000,000,000 is all spent, and the army won't even have an undershirt."

Mr. Hitchcock's impending revue entitled "Hitchie-Koo" will have Miss Grace La Rue as its prima donna. It is a revision of a London show called "Some."

E. H. Sothern, according to Variety, was almost booked for a tour in vaudeville recently. He asked $5,000 as his weekly wage and was refused.

There is to be a drama called "Mary's Ankle" this spring, with A. H. Woods as producer and May Tully, a variety actress, as author.

The Drama League of America, convening in Pittsburgh with President Percival Chubb in the chair, passed resolutions strongly emphasizing the necessity of art, particularly dramatic art, to the national life in time of war. The league might form a dart-throwers' unit with "The Cinderella Man," one of its recommendations, as a nucleus.

Sir Herbert Tree, treating of Woman in a discourse at Vassar, spoke, in part, as follows:

"I have always thought that as tyrants women are sometimes ridiculous; as ministering angels there is no limit to their power. Their instrument is the harp. In the great orchestra of life, woman should never play the trombone. Their sway is through womanliness—that is what makes men look up to them and maintains their chivalry. The greatest women in history have been those who calmed men; who by their nobility have encouraged men to do great deeds and have rewarded them with their loves. So it is with you, young women of America, to do today."

Orthography in the moving pitchers:

To the dramatic editor: You will I doubt not permit one of those who read your views with exceeding interest to point out an error in Sunday's dramatic critique wherein you misspell film. You write it fillum which it is not but film, one sylable and not two as you wrote it. It seems perhaps I need not say finicky to lay stress on what is at worst only a trifling lapse. In the hurly and burly of newspaper writing especially when done as is no doubt yours long about midnight and under too the urgency of high pressure it is not to be wondered at that a slip now and then mars what might otherwise be an really admirable critique. Thanking you in advance for permiting me to set you right I am sincerely,

May 1. HENRIETTA G.

"Within the Law," "Cyrano de Begerac," "My Wife" [one of John Drew's plays], "Mam'zelle Nitouche," and "The Chimes of Normandy" are among the war-time lures of the Paris theaters.

Mary Anderson is doing a sixty-minute version of "Pgymalion and Galatea" in the London music-halls, and giving her salary, $2,500 a week, to charity.

The La Salle theater will begin operation under the Comstock and Elliott dynasty some time next month with a new musical comedy called "The Dew-Drop Inn," by Percival Knight and "Jack" Hazzard as to words and A. Baldwin Sloane as to music. Mr. Hazzard is one of the authors of "Turn to the Right."

Violet Vanbrugh, whose divorce from Arthur Bourchier was the subject of a London cablegram last week, was in Chicago with the Kendals on their second tour, and is recalled by antiquarians for some persuasive acting in the drawing-room genre. Bourchier, too, acted in Chicago, as the first of John Drew's successors in Augustin Daly's company, in 1893. The American estimate—based, doubtless, on the knowledge that he was a university man, and had learned his trade at Cambridge—was that he would not do. He and Miss Vanbrugh returned to the United States in 1896 to act in "The Chile Widow" and a version of "Divorçons!" called "The Queen's Proctor." They found the populace indifferent, and soon went back.

Burns Mantle's New York Theater Letter

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—In the new "Midnight Frolic" on the Amsterdam roof Miss Frances White, singing comedienne, wears a red, white, and blue bodice sprinkled with stars. In the new "Passing Show of 1917" at the Winter Garden all the beauties are called to the colors and the entire chorus is wrapped here and there in the grand old flag. In a new ending arranged for "Dance and Grow Thin" at the Century theater, Miss Gladys Slater, as Liberty, posed against the folds of a huge silk flag, stands within the draft of a saucy electric fan, and evidently takes her cue for a series of attitudes from those seldom-remembered lines of the national anthem reading:

> What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
> As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?

From which you may see we are being rather fed up on the patriotic finale. Every musical play and every cabaret either has one in action or is preparing to stage one. Flag waving is the order of the day, and nobody dare complain. I have seen many a man scowl and heard not a few ladies protest under their breaths that there is no sense in the orchestra's playing "The Star Spangled Banner" just as one is starting a spoonful of soup toward one's empty stomach, but there is none with the courage, even though the impulse may not be lacking, to sit through the playing of the national air. As a consequence the diners out in New York are just now getting more exercise with their meals than they ever have had before. By the time they rise with the hors d'œuvre to the American anthem, and with the entree to "Le Marseillaise," and then have "Rule Brittania" served with the salad, they are fairly well assured that good digestion will wait upon their appetites.

In the revues the sight of the flag draped about the middle of a swaying coryphee may give most people a swift patriotic pain, but it is just now accepted as indicating her manager's desire to do what he can to encourage recruiting, and so is forgiven for the claptrap it really represents.

There was, however, a real patriotic incident to enliven the opening of the new "Frolic." Lieut. Vernon Castle of the British aerial forces had arrived home on furlough that day and quietly tiptoed into town to say howdy to Mrs. Castle and his intimate friends before he dashed back to the training camps in Canada to which he has been temporarily assigned as instructor.

Now, Vernon has always been looked upon in New York as a nice boy but frail; a good dancer, but not one who would be selected offhand to lead a charge or attempt a difficult mission within the enemies' lines. Even when he announced his intention of joining his majesty's aviation corps, and went so far as to abandon a highly profitable tour with "Watch Your Step" in order to prepare to do his bit, there were those who said it was merely a part of his advertising campaign for the season to follow.

But it happens that Vernon is a good deal of the George Cohan type of patriot; he believes thoroughly in what he claims to believe. And so, as Will Rogers says, he is "one tango bird who has made good." After a year at the front he comes back with the croix du guerre pinned to his shirt and a record of two German machines brought to earth.

To get back to the "Frolic," Vernon was there as the guest of some gentleman with enough money to afford a table for six or eight. It was not a front table, and so very few had seen him. But during the preliminary public dancing the music proved too much of a lure for the champion one stepper and soon the Castles were on the floor mingling with the crowd. Before they could get far, however, Ethel Barrymore, sitting at a table with the Ziegfelds, Billie Burke and Florence, saw them and started to applaud. Then the other dancers caught sight of Vernon and Irene and began to edge toward the rim of the floor that the hero might have more room. The spotlight men in the gallery turned their lamps on the Castles and the applause, now become general, took the form of a continuous ovation. It was a great homecoming for the lieutenant, and one that he is not likely to forget.

The new entertainment with which Mr. Ziegfeld hopes to entertain the summer buyers and tourists is much like those that have gone before. The chorus, still modestly referred to as "the thirty most beautiful girls in the world," has been put into summer frocks, anticipating the hot weather. We have concluded that the difference between a summer and a winter costume on the Amsterdam roof lies in the elimination of two sets of hooks and eyes. This may not sound as though it amounted to much, but as only the winter costumes boast enough cloth to hold two sets of hooks and eyes you can readily figure that the change is marked.

Will Rogers, the cowboy wit, is again the principal comedian. His chatter went a bit lame the opening night, but he has since built it into its usual snappy form. As a spur to the fun he is now asking his audiences to suggest their own subjects. "Carranza!" shouts some one. "Carranza's all right," answers Will; "if they'd only shave him they might find Villa." "Theodore Roosevelt!" calls some one else. "There's the lad," agrees Rogers. "They think he couldn't raise a division. Didn't he raise the biggest division that ever happened in the Republican party?" And then he adds, "Bryan says he'll go to war if they need him; Teddy, he says he's goin' whether they need him or not." And so on until his fifteen minutes are up.

The sensational costume number illustrates a song called "They're Getting Shorter All the Time," in which the young women, starting with the gowns of long ago, with their sweeping trains, show the changes of style until there is nothing much in front and, as Kipling said, "a little less than arf o' that be'ind." This is followed by a prophecy that there may yet come a time when the simplicity of Eden will again be in fashion, and as a reminder of just what that simplicity amounted to a vision of Eve, standing modestly back of a distance screen, clothed in her flowing locks and a fig leaf, is shown briefly.

There is a frank confession in a song called "Broadway," in which the "B" stands for "bright lights," the "R" for "restaurants," the "O" for the "outcasts," the "A" for "amusements," the "D" for "dope fiends," the "W" for "wine" and, it may be, for "women," the "A" for "ambition," and the "Y" for those regretful "yesterdays" that follow any attempt to conquer the old street.

Apparently De Wolf Hopper did not make much of a success of his venture into moving pictures. At any rate he is back on Broadway and this time at the Winter Garden, which is a pity. Not because many players of standing reputation have not appeared on the stage of this theater, but because there is nothing for Hopper to do there. His humor is not the humor of the popular priced revue, and for some reason they refuse to let him sing. Imagine the best Gilbertian comedian of our stage appearing in a burlesque of "The Wanderer" as a "male vampire." And of his devoting his ten or fifteen minutes to such quips as: "Here's to the girls, God dress 'em!" "I can't dance; I've got water on the knee," insists a chorus girl. "Why don't you wear pumps?" asks De Wolf.

"The Passing Show of 1917" is the usual big affair studded with specialties, scenery and ensembles. The cast is its most imposing feature, the leaders including Irene Franklin, with new songs; Jefferson De Angelis, with one joke; "Chick" Sales, from the varieties, with his rube types; Marie Nordstrom, with her revue of dancing; Johnny Dooley, the acrobatic youth who is very comic below the chin, and numerous dancers, singers and cutups. The principal scenic feature is a view of the Yale bowl during a football game, and for the patriotic finish the chorus comes marching over the "bridge of thighs" drumming enthusiastically if not expertly, and there is a vision of Liberty alight and alive welcoming our allies in the war. Another scenic feature is one in which the girls are dressed to represent a round of mixed drinks, followed by a champagne chorus, in which the shapeliest of the ladies stand in full fleshings under shower baths of the stuff and revel in a wine bath—a moving picture wine bath, however.

In an effort to do her bit for recruiting Jane Cowl has decided to let the hero of her war romance, "Lilac Time," live. Previous to last week he has been dying a hero's death somewhere off stage between the third and fourth acts. He had loved and left the heroine when he was called upon unexpectedly to undertake a desperate mission, and there was no time for him to marry her, as had been planned. So the final tableau found her waving a baby's cap at his regiment as it passed her house in review and shouting in choked tones, "Vive la France!"

This conclusion was very sad to the matinée girls, who wanted Jane to have a father for her child and be happy. And the actress-author concluded that it also might serve as a deterrent in the campaign to induce young men to answer the call to arms. So last week she changed the final scene. The hero comes back now, a wounded but a better man. There is no baby cap. There is no baby. There is no nothing except the promise of a happy future for the lovers. And though the play is spoiled, the business, they say, is improved and the audiences are happy.

There has been a change, too, in the text of "Our Betters." This is the story of the American rotters who buy their way into London society, and you may recall that the first reviews freely deprecated the frankness of its speech—particularly of one speech in which a deceived lover called his mistress such names as never had been heard upon the stage before. These speeches have now been eliminated. The purified text has less "punch," but the play continues popularly without it, and so I presume we should register a minor triumph for the forces that make for decency in stage society.

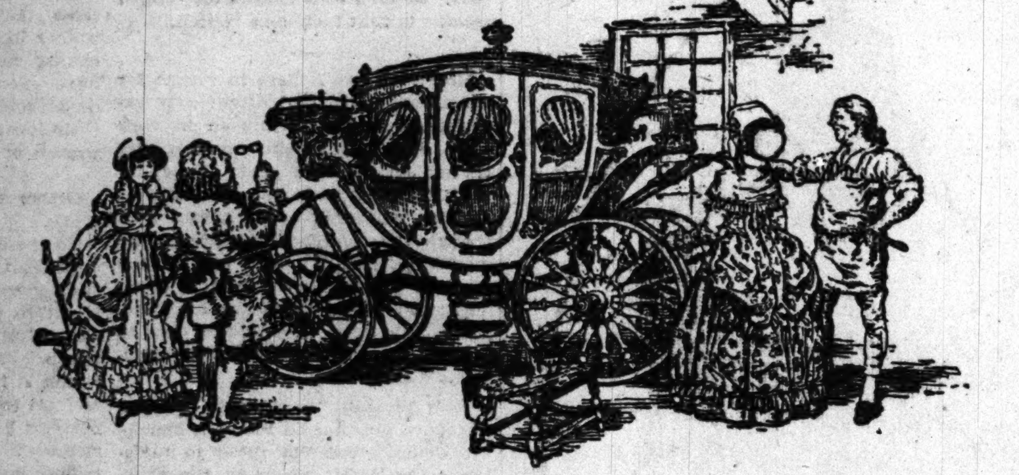
Necrology Notes of the Stage

Harry Paulton, who in "Erminie" wrote one of the most durable of light-opera librettos, died the other day in London, aged 75. He was in Chicago in 1888 as a comedian with Lillian Russell in "Dorothy," and afterward played with her and Camille d'Arville in "The Queen's Mate," which had a "book" by himself and son, Edward Paulton. The latter, in the Chicago engagement of the piece, was deputy-comedian to his father. The elder Paulton's works included "Niobe," "Mynheer Jan," "Paola," and "Winsome Winnie," all of which had Chicago performances. He was a candidate for parliament at the time of his death.

◆

Another celebrity of the London stage, Murray Carson, died in the week with Paulton and Burnand. He, too, had an American experience as an actor in Wilson Barrett's first tour of this country, in 1886-87. He made subsequent visits in his capacity as the author of "Rosemary," with Louis N. Parker, and other plays, including one of E. H. Sothern's failures, "'Change Alley."



ALMOST every age has seen some master craftsman contrive a wondrous coach that has enraptured fairest ladies. But no one of them has had the sumptuous elegance and the quiet dignity of the Ohio Electric car.

Smartest harmonies of glittering color individualize its exterior, while the interior of an Ohio is an achievement of decorative art. In it there is an abundance of delightfully soft and restful cushioning.

And the Ohio is amazingly simple in construction and operation. Every detail is blended to produce a perfect-running, easily controlled, durable car. Into it is slowly and sincerely built the ability to withstand years of hardest usage. The new model 44 sells for $2480.

An inquiry will bring you handsome literature fully descriptive of this fine but moderately priced electrically driven coach. Without the least obligation, a demonstration can be arranged. Write to—

By Mae Tinée.

In response to an invitation extended by the faculty of Columbia university, Hector Turnbull, head of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation scenario department, gave an address on motion pictures before the Cinema club of that institution. This club is an organization consisting of seventy-five students of the university institute of arts and science. The activities of the club consist only of the study of writing motion picture synopses and the construction of photoplay scenarios. Mr. Turnbull, in outlining the needs of the leading producers, said: "The man or woman beginner who sincerely wishes to become a photoplaywright should not pander to unhealthy tastes.

Cy De Vry was the guest of Col. William Selig at a private showing of "The Lad and the Lion," soon to be released. He said he thought it was some animal picture.

Many historical characters are portrayed in Robert Goldstein's feature spectacle, "The Spirit of '76," which begins its engagement tomorrow night at Orchestra hall. George Washington and Benjamin Franklin are only two of them. It is said that the scenes of the production have a background of elaborate sets and topographically correct exteriors. There will be a symphony orchestra of fifty musicians.

Because Max Linder is seriously ill, it is announced by George K. Spoor of Essanay that further releases of the Linder comedies have been indefinitely postponed.

"I make my own hats," says Marie Cahill, "and usually out of old junk." Miss Cahill advocates uniform dress for women during war times. "I think women should have three dresses," she said. "The morning dress to be of blue denim, the afternoon one in any simple material of domestic manufacture, and the evening gown of white muslin."

Word comes that Winston Churchill will enlist in the navy. Mr. Churchill was graduated from the United States Naval academy twenty-three years ago and consequently is entitled to a commission.

"Should She Obey," which opens Sunday at the La Salle, is said to have been produced under the supervision of Barratt O'Hara, president of the Society for the Preservation of the American Home. The Illinois divorce and marriage commission reports lie behind the idea.

Sixteen is Fatty Arbuckle's lucky number. His press agent says that he weighed sixteen pounds when born, was born on the 16th day of March, 1886, has been sixteen years in the theatrical business, and was married on the 16th of the month. He began negotiations with Joseph M. Schanck the 16th of last December, said negotiations being consummated on the 16th day of January, and the contract formally signed on the 16th of February. All of which sounds fishy to us.

Bryant Washburn's next Essanay production will be entitled "Filling His Own Shoes."

Dorothy Phillips' fad is cooking.

Douglas Fairbanks says that his Bible is Orison Swett Marden's "He Can Who Thinks He Can."

Jane and Katherine Lee were a small but a conspicuous part of the "Wake Up America" parade recently held in New York. They had an automobile decorated in the stars and stripes all to themselves.

Wallace MacDonald has completed his engagement with Famous Players and is now with Vitagraph working on an O. Henry story entitled "Vanity and Some Sables."

Emmy Wehlen has completed a course of special training and is prepared to go to the front as a Red Cross nurse. Miss Wehlen was born in Vienna and educated in France and London. While on a visit to her mother in Europe three years ago she visited a camp of wounded soldiers. "While I was in that dreadful camp I learned the art of making bandages and how to help the men in distress," she says.

Elsie Ferguson, who is now completing her theatrical engagement in "Shirley Kaye," will soon start activities on her first picture to be released by Artcraft. This was the picturization of Robert Hichens' book "Barbary Sheep."

Gifts galore are always flying in the direction of Mary Pickford. Here is her latest, a patriotic parrot named Columbia. It is said the only things it will say in the present world crisis are "Stand by the president," "America first," "Yankee Doodle," "Hurrah for the United States," and "Columbia wants a cracker."

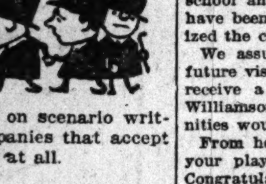
The Ince stars have been busy autographing photographs to be sold at the actors' fund fair at the Grand Central palace, New York.

Charles Ray recently received the following letter from Noble M. Coe, an alumnus of the University of Wisconsin:

> Dear Mr. Ray: On behalf of the college fraternity men who have witnessed your "Pinch Hitter," I wish to congratulate you upon your splendid characterization. Any man, whether or not he has attended college, will pronounce this the comedy hit of the screen. The whole picture is alive with humorous situations that recall actual events of student days. We have all seen just such ungainly fellows as Joel Parker come to school and make good; perhaps some of us have been Joels. At any rate, you so vitalized the character that we lived it with you.
>
> We assure you that if you should in the future visit any of our alma maters you will receive a better welcome than you did at Williamson. In fact, I think all the fraternities would be rushing you.
>
> From henceforth we will be in line to see your plays, no matter what their themes. Congratulating you upon the increased popularity which you will enjoy as soon as this picture is released, I am, very sincerely,
>
> NOBLE M. COE.

We may infer from thsi that "The Pinch Hitter" has somethnig to do with baseball.

ASK ME! ASK ME!



This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

E. A. B.: No trouble at all. Ethel Barrymore has three children. Clara Kimball Young was born and educated in Chicago. She was on the stage previous to going into motion pictures. Her husband is James Young, who is, I understand, suing her for divorce at the present time. Blanche Sweet was born in Chicago. She was educated in Chicago and Berkeley, Cal. She is not married and was also on the stage. O, yes, I do sometimes.

PATSY: It's great to have a "steady." The fact that you look like Grace Cunard is nothing especially in your favor. One person looking like Grace Cunard is enough in the moving picture business. Not meaning any slam on Miss Cunard at all. Just look like yourself and make that self as attractive as you can. Tom Foreman is not married. He is in his early twenties. Lasky, Los Angeles, Cal., I reckon. William S. Hart is 44 years old. Your pen had the pip, didn't it? Write again when it gets better.

ONE WHO LIKES TO KNOW: Mary Pickford does mention her husband—and often. The fact that she allows herself some reserves and doesn't moon about him in the public prints is only additional proof that she loves him.

AGNES M.: Most of the film companies have scenario departments of their own. Any of them, however, are glad to receive new and original ideas. If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall mail you the printed article I have on scenario writing and a list of companies that accept scenarios. No trouble at all.

W. G. B.: No.

GENE: A letter addressed to Sessue Hayakawa care of the Lasky Film company, Los Angeles, Cal., will reach him. You are entirely welcome.

Librettist's Death Recalls Operetta

Sir Francis Burnand, editor of Punch, who died recently, is doubtless forgotten in what was his chief aspect in the United States—that of librettist of "The Contrabandista." This one-act operetta, with music by Arthur Sullivan, was regarded as pure by the clergy at a time when the stage was yet anathema, and singing in it was for many years the favorite avocation of Chicago's church-choirs.

Chicago Women Tell Joffre of War Relief Work

By Mme. X.

THIS has certainly been a Joffre week. The visit of the French commission was the greatest international event in Chicago since Christopher Columbus' descendant, the amiable Duke of Veragua, came as the guest of the nation in 1893.

The part played by the Chicago women in the reception of the distinguished French visitors was perhaps not so energetic and conspicuous as that of the men, but it was backed by two years and a half of devoted labor for French war sufferers, a record of personal sacrifice of time, strength, and money, which really, when all is said, probably outdoes anything that the men's reception committee can show.

Nineteen war relief organizations were represented by the hundred women on the women's reception committee. Gen. Joffre sent word ahead to the women that what he most wanted was exact statements of the number of bandages, surgical and other hospital supplies, garments, ambulances, food contributions, money gifts, and war orphans cared for by these nineteen associations. This report the women gave him and with it an illuminated parchment with a brief address of welcome and the signatures of the 100.

Mrs. Russell Tyson was chairman of this group and a few among those who were present representing war relief organizations were Mrs. Henry S. Robbins, head of the Chicago committee of the American Fund for French Wounded; Mrs. James T. Harahan of the American ambulance committee, Mrs. Walter Brewster of the Fatherless Children of France, Mrs. W. J. Chalmers of the Charities of the Queen of Belgium, Mrs. John Carpenter of the Fund for Disabled Soldiers, Mrs. John Borden of the Mary Borden Turner hospital, Mrs. Ogden Armour of the Secours National, Mrs. Halstead Freeman of the Children of the Frontier, and Mrs. Frederic Upham of the war relief clearing house.

During their brief stay here the French commission was housed in the R. T. Cranes house on the Lake Shore drive, the Cranes moving to the Blackstone to leave them plenty of room and freedom.

* *

None Idle Now.

It may be there are ahead of the women of Chicago times so strenuous and full of trouble as to make the present days of cheerful toil and wordy apprehension seem an era of leisure and peace. But viewed from last year's standpoint the present is an amazing and hectic moment.

The women who formerly spent long hours playing bridge, whose days were divided between shopping in the mornings, luncheons with friends, afternoons at card tables, idle gossip over tea cups, with dinner-dances and late suppers to round out the program, now can be found in Red Cross classes, or learning wireless telegraphy, or how to run ambulances, or else—and this includes practically all the socially prominent women—working in some one or other of the war relief shops in Washington and Madison streets.

If you would find any special one of the leaders of fashion you have only to peer into the broad plateglass windows of 67 East Madison stret, or scrutinize the workers in the Red Cross shop across the street, or to run around the corner to the St. Luke's unit working in the Boulevard building, or dodge across East Washington street to the French warshop. You're sure to find her in one or the other of these busy, buzzing hives, probably wearing a large blue or white apron and armed with big shears or bent over packing cases.

Mrs. Ogden Armour, who divides her time between the Red Cross shop in Madison street, the workroom in Washington street, and the French warshop, is one of the busiest and most faithful of the workers. Mrs. Norman Williams is another indefatigable toiler. Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, Mrs. Arthur Small, the Mmes. Joseph and John H. Winterbotham, Mrs. Jacob Baur, and Mrs. Swift Fernald are almost always at their posts in one or other of these places, while Mrs. Frederick Countiss is as active as ever in the Navy league headquarters in the Stevens building.

* *

An Inspiration to Labor.

No one, however, has been more unremittingly faithful in her labors than Mrs. Hamilton McCormick at 60 East Washington street. Almost daily she has been there from early morn till twilight. If her fingers work more quickly, more steadily than most, it is because it is only in such work that she finds a momentary relief or surcease from her ever present anxiety over her two brothers.

Her younger brother, Vincent Plummer, has been almost since the beginning of the war with the English troops on the French front, having taken an active part in every great battle since that of the Marne. He is one of three men who are all that are left of his original company of 280. He entered as a private and is now lance corporal in charge of a machine gun squad, having refused further promotion, so as not to leave his men. He doesn't want, he writes, a military career, but only to see the war through and to return to his chicken farming in Kent.

Mrs. McCormick's eldest son, Leander, is going up to the officers' camp at Fort Sheridan next week. Her second son, Edward, who is married to an English girl and has two children, is working in an English munitions factory, and her third son, Allastair, is trying to get into an aviation camp in this country. Her other brother, Noel Plummer, is an officer on duty, for the present, in London, after going through two or three fierce campaigns in eastern France.

Wherever she goes she usually carries a recent letter from one of these brothers, letters written in trenches under fire, or from rough shelters back of the firing line, where the writer is resting, a bit of pound cake or jam from home having sweetened his tea, and quickened his pen. Vivid, simple, lucid, affectionate, plucky, these letters give the very spirit of that terrible battle line. Like all the written word that comes from the fighters in this war, you are left with no illusions as to the horrible facts and conditions of modern warfare. At the same time the courage, the cheeriness, the belief in their cause that animates the men shines out in every line. No wonder Noel and Vincent Plummer's sister can and does work long hours, day after day in war relief work.

The Hamilton McCormicks are now domiciled once more in their big house the corner of Rush and Ontario streets after an absence of a dozen years. Their rare and valuable collection of English paintings of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, which is in England, must wait the end of the war to be brought here.

How All Can Help.

"R'nos moutons!"

To the frequent question from American women, "What can I do for my country?" there is one immediate answer: practice thorough, farreaching, unremitting thrift; look more closely after your household. To curb long years of wastefulness, to introduce practical and new methods in ordering supplies, and in using them is enough to occupy the time and attention of the average woman for the present. Such drastic changes as the proposed new methods in housekeeping can't be effected without much friction with the powers that rule below stairs. You can reduce the family diet much more easily than you can that of the domestic corps.

That you can't revolutionize home methods without a certain amount of concentrated brain work on your own part is thoroughly illustrated by the incident which occurred recently in the family of a well known north side woman. She is one of the most conspicuous personalities in Chicago. Her great abilities, wide sympathies, and abounding vitality have united in the accomplishment of untold benefit to the city and her house is the scene of endless hospitality, when you always have plenty to eat.

Full of the thrift mission she announced to her cook recently that henceforth the latter should leave all ordering to her; that absolutely nothing should be telephoned for without her sanction. The cook acquiesced—probably none too cheerfully—and gave her employer a long list of things needed for three meals for a young and hearty family. The telephone bell rang, a message came requiring the house mother's immediate attention. Off she darted in her car, forgetting entirely the cook's list—and at luncheon the three children and their governess had exactly one dish of carrots for their entire repast.

As Benny, the younger, plaintively remarked, "You can't grow very big on carrots."

Saving the Lamb, Chick, and Pig.

In one or two men's lunch clubs near Wall street in New York notices are posted on the walls announcing that for the duration of the war spring lamb, spring chicken, and sucking pig will be omitted from the club menus—thus enabling lamb, chicken, and pig to come to a fuller usefulness.

If squabs were spared would pigeons provide more nourishment? We investigated this problem lately and came to the conclusion that the value of the added avoirdupois of the bird was quite counterbalanced by the increased inflexibility of the flesh when cooked. Even Kaiser Bill's prescription to chew thirty-two times—he is reported to have practiced this in his youth—had small effect on the doughty bird.

The Housewives' league gives much good counsel on this question of thrift and economy. In the matter of shopping it points out how women abuse their privileges and add to the expense of living by their utterly indefensible practices in the matter of ordering goods which they ultimately return to the shop from which they bought them. This custom entails an out and out loss of half a million dollars a year to four biy State street establishments alone simply in the departments of ready made garments. One large shop has to carry $2,000,000 worth of extra stock because so much is sent out on approval.

Important concerns in Philadelphia, New York, and Boston protect themselves in a measure by the five day limit. A bride to be in Denver a few years ago broke the camel's back by such a flagrant abuse of the return privilege that from that moment the Denver shops ended entirely the whole system of permitting the return of goods they had sold.

Of course the added expense of all the system of unlimited return of purchases is not borne by the firms who permit it. It is the public that pays.

Just Looking On.

Did you see that sham battle at the north end of the Lincoln park extension last Tuesday afternoon? And did you also wonder whence those twenty or thirty thousand prosperous looking men, who thronged the lake shore as onlookers, came thus early on a Tuesday afternoon? What offices, factories, and marts of trade were emptied of their men on Dewey day?

In line with our rapidly evolving martial spirit is the dinner dance which the Casino club is giving next Thursday evening in honor of some of the men who go into training at Fort Sheridan on May 15. The Casino will be gay with flags, there will be a military band, and all the soldiers, or soldiers in embryo, will wear uniforms. Perhaps it were safer to say that all men who have them will wear them, as there is a great dearth in the supply. There will be all grades of uniforms there, probably, from the $70 made to order one to the outfit that costs $3.60 in a department store.

Crowds See the Babies.

Never has there been a more appealing, a more popular window display in the "loop" district than that made last week by the Infant Welfare society at 85 East Washington street. Here, daily, mothers from the city's twelve welfare stations brought their wee babies for inspection by skilled doctors and nurses.

Examinations of the little squirming naked mites of humanity were made right in the large, light windows beneath the gaze of a fascinated crowd outside—a crowd in which the men far outnumbered the women. Every little while Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter would go out and address the crowd in her gentle, dignified, yet convincing way, and explain the objects of the society, the scope of its work, and its needs. And many cards promising money were signed by passersby, who, up to that moment, had never heard of the association or of its beautiful work.

Last year 9,927 babies were cared for by the society. Its nurses made 76,439 calls and instructed the mothers of these wee mortals how to care for them. The society numbers 3,700 and last year its members raised about $24,000, which means an average of $2,000 a year for each of the twelve stations—not an adequate sum to carry on the necessary work, hence this week's campaign in the crowded "loop."

Quite apart from war or philanthropy is the exhibit of Zuloaga's paintings at the Art institute. It is a most impressive collection. Studying it takes you quite away from the palpitating present into a sterile land, with dead cities, populated by a handsome, gloomy people dressed in gorgeous raiment. There is no infant welfare in Zuloaga's Spain, no Red Cross shops, no housewives' league; just love and bullfights and garlic and an old age that waits silently for death—death that has already stripped the landscape of its verdure, the mountains of their forests.

Mrs. Laurence H. Armour, who, with her husband, is spending the spring at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., is said by visitors returning from there to be setting the style, not only in dress, for her clothes are always of the smartest, but also in matters of recreation. Her sun baths are taken with discretion, as she affects a canopied wicker chair for the occasion, which is her prescription against freckles.

FUTURE EVENTS

The fireless cooker, the knitting needle, the homely wash basin, and other implements for economical living or sick room relief having made their way into high society, the events which occupy the attention are of a corresponding nature. Everybody's date book is filled almost entirely with engagements at some one of the Red Cross shops or at the Navy league center, or even at some hospital, where classes in first aid are meeting. In the School of Domestic Arts and Science, in the Tower building, there are scheduled classes in invalid and war time cookery, and at a number of women's clubhouses there are expert knitters showing raw recruits how to hold the needles and throw the yarn.

Wynemah Tsineubi, the charming little Cherokee Indian princess, will be there with her dainty Indian songs, and Doroth. Bock, interpreting the "Spirit of the Waves," will lead a group of dancers from the Art institute, including Marian Herrick, Myrtle Sheldon, Helen Metcalf, and Muriel Walker, who will represent nymphs and dryads of the dunes. Excerpts also will be given from other pageant dances, including the dance of the sand pipers, the dance of the evil manitous, dance of the mosquitoes, and the call of Artemis. The regular concert at the club will be held this afternoon.

Two days later, at the Auditorium theater, the Navy league will have charge of a concert to be given by Ysaye, the violinist, and his son, also a violinist, and will share the proceeds with the Belgian war relief fund. Mrs. Frederick D. Countiss is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

So many of the leaders at the South Shore Country club have become interested in the plans for the great Dunes pageant to be produced the afternoons and evenings of May 30 and June 3, that the club has invited a number of the pageant performers to give several of their special dances as a part of the program of entertainment on Saturday evening.

An event that will have an especial appeal because of the participants and the cause for giving it is the children's concert to be given on Tuesday evening, May 22, by twenty little tots, who will play a "Toy Symphony," in Central Music hall, after which Miss Janet Miller, 11 years old, will play a solo. Mrs. Archibald E. Freer of 1420 Lake Shore drive is in charge of the children, who are taking this means of offering their work for the universal cause.

The Cordon is to give a program in the club room on May 15 which promises to be one of the most amusing things ever produced in town. It is called "The Pursuit of Art, as Externalized by Music, Drama and the Plastic Arts." Much of the wit and talent of the club, which includes in turn much of the feminine wit and talent of the city, will in some way be represented in the little play, which has been composed by Mrs. Natalie Sieboth-Kennedy and Mrs. Eunice Tietjens, and is a take-off on the vers libre poets who now throng the land. Among those taking active parts are Miss Alice Roullier, Mrs. Elizabeth Goodrich Reckitt, Mrs. Jessie Arms Botke, Miss Clara Kretzinger, Miss Fanny Butcher, Miss Antoinette Donnelly, Miss Grace Hickox, Miss Alice Gerstenberg and Mrs. Nancy Coc-McCormack.

The Chicago chapter of the Villa de Chantal Alumnæ association will give its annual spring luncheon in Field's tearoom on Wednesday.

Arthur Byron and the other members of the "Boomerang" company will be the guests of honor at the final performance of the Hull house players this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. A tea in honor of the visitors will be given at Hull house after the performance.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Illinois Parents and Teachers to Hold Convention

THE eighteenth annual meeting of the Illinois Congress of Mothers and ParentTeacher Associations will be held in Bloomington tomorrow, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. Delegates from the 264 associations in the state will meet for a conference on child welfare, for the election of officers for the new term, and for special meetings of the state committees. All of the meetings will be open to the public.

The present officers are: Mrs. B. F. Langworthy of River Forest, president; Mrs. Harry L. Fleming, vice president; Mrs. M. B. Blouke, recording secretary; Mrs. Jocon Mueller, corresponding secretary; Mrs. M. P. Mears, treasurer; Mrs. C. W. Blodgett, auditor; Mrs. George W. Eggers, historian. Mrs. William Hefferan is city organizer for Chicago, Mrs. William Young state organizer, Mrs. Orville T. Bright chairman of general arrangements for the annual conference eat Bloomington, and Mrs. H. L. Fleming of Bloomington local chairman of the annual meeting.

Tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock there will be a board meeting. At 2:30 there will be the opening session of the congress, which will be addressed by Mrs. Harriet Taylor Treadwell, president of the Woman's Legislative congress. At 6:30 there will be a banquet in the high school gymnasium. Mrs. Langworthy will be toastmistress and the speakers will be Mrs. Treadwell, Mrs. William S. Hefferan, C. M. Sanford, and E. E. Jones, mayor of Bloomington.

On Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock there will be a round table discussion of the organizing of parent-teacher associations and how every one can help in the success of organization. Mrs. Harry L. Fleming will lead the discussion. At 10:15 the president will deliver her address and there will be reports of the nominating committee and of the delegates and the committee chairmen. From 2 until 3 p. m. reports will be read. At 3 o'clock Mrs. Francis D. Everett, secretary of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will give an address on "The Value of Organization," and later in the afternoon there will be section meetings under each of the state chairmen. In the evening at 8 o'clock there will be an address on "Community Ideals" by J. R. Richards, superintendent of playgrounds and sports of the south parks of Chicago.

Announcement of the election results will be made on Wednesday morning. Various section meetings will be held, and at 10:40 o'clock M. P. Lantz of Carbeck, Ill., will talk on "The Rural Child and His School." In the afternoon different groups will visit a rural school, one of the city schools, and the normal school. At 3:15 Mrs. J. D. Cunningham, a special teacher at the State Normal school, will talk on "Keeping Up with Billy." In the evening Miss Eula Deaton, dean of girls at Austin High school, will give an address on "Social Life in the High School" and Mrs. William S. Hefferan will speak on "The Adjustment of the High School to the Needs of Youth." There will follow a general discussion of the responsibility of the parents and teachers for the social education of the child.

The last session of the congress will take place on Thursday morning at 10:15 o'clock, when David Felmly, president of the State Normal university, will speak.

The activities of the parent-teacher associations in Chicago are not interrupted by the congress in Bloomington. Tomorrow at 3 p. m. the Parent-Teacher association of the John Fiske school will hear an illustrated lecture on "How to Attract the Song Birds Around the House," by Joseph H. Dodson, and the Parent-Teacher association of the John Marshall elementary and high schools will meet. Also the North End Mothers' club of Evanston will hold its annual meeting and election of officers at the Lincolnwood school.

On Tuesday the McPherson association will be addressed by Mrs. F. Marion Barker on "Child Hygiene," and the Mothers' club of the North Congregational church will be addressed by Perry Patterson on "What a Boy Has a Right to Expect from His Father." There will be annual meetings and elections of officers at the Calumet High School and Auburn Park School associations, the Woodlawn Mothers' Round Table will hold its annual business meeting, and Mrs. William S. Hefferan will address the Ryder School Mothers' club on "Literature for Children."

On Wednesday the association of the Parker elementary and high schools will have its annual meeting, as will the James H. Bowen association.

On Thursday at 3 p. m. the association of the elementary and high schools of the University of Chicago will be addressed by Dr. Otis J. Campbell on "Some Significant Tests and Comparisons." Also on Thursday the Morse School Mothers' club will meet to hear a talk on "Punishment and Praise," by Miss Mary Topping.

On Friday the Gage Park association will hold its annual meeting and election of officers.

The last meeting for the season of the Parent-Teacher association of the Agassiz school will be held at the assembly hall of the school Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. It will be fathers' night. Moving pictures will be shown by Dr. George Apfelbach on "Occupational Diseases," and Mrs. J. Noel will talk on "Teaching Children to Save." All parents are invited. Admission will be free and refreshments served.

The Parent-Teacher club of the Frances Willard school, Forty-ninth street and St. Lawrence avenue, will give a special mothers' program on Saturday when the photoplay "Faith," with Mary Miles Minter, will be presented, afternoon and evening. The proceeds of the entertainment are to be used for school needs and welfare work. Mrs. Frances Nowry is chairman of the welfare committee that is directing the entertainment.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

The board of directors of the Woman's City club will hold its regular monthly meeting in the clubrooms tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. At 3:30 p. m. the regular monthly business meeting of the club will be held. Prof. Perry G. "The Mattress of a Million Little Springs"

Slumberon Sanitary Hair Mattress

REAL SATISFACTION, COMFORTABLE SLEEP, and an energetic feeling in the morning—all result from sleeping on a SLUMBERON Sanitary Hair Mattress. The springy responsiveness of the SLUMBERON is really enhanced by its use. It cannot mat down like the inferior cotton or fibre mattresses.

Economy and Comfort

The SLUMBERON is the most economical mattress made. Its cost is only a little more than the inferior grades. Lasts a life time—can be easily renovated and made as clean as new when necessary.

There is more comfort in sleep on a SLUMBERON than on any other. The construction of the genuine curled hair, forms millions of tiny springs that respond to every curve and movement of the body.

You really should see SLUMBERON. It will surprise you; for it is the first hair mattress of this quality weighing 40 pounds and 4 feet 6 inches wide that has ever been sold for a price as low as $25.00. Ask your dealer to show you a SLUMBERON. If he doesn't handle them write us and we will send you the name of a SLUMBERON dealer near your home, together with our valuable booklet "Correct Sleeping."

The Play That Will Startle All Chicago

It lays bare the glaring facts of poisoned marriage and divorce, which are destroying American home life; facts revealed by the Illinois Marriage and Divorce Commission, headed by Judge Marcus A. Kavanagh, and the Illinois Senate Vice Committee.

Don't Miss This True Story From Actual Life

Critics declare it to be the American "Les Miserables." It is not a sex problem play. It is a clean, forceful story from real life. It reveals the heart-throbbing miseries of the discarded wives of America's multi-millionaires—who have killed the very souls of those whom they swore to love and protect—and from whom they have demanded faithful obedience.

Among the prominent personages who appear personally on the screen in "Should She Obey?" are Governor Emmet Boyle of Nevada; the Supreme Court, and the entire membership of the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Nevada; also Judge Marcus A. Kavanagh of Chicago and former Lieutenant Governor Barratt O'Hara.

About Music and Musicians

By Frederick Donaghey.

WITH reference to what was printed in comment on Mahler's eighth in THE TRIBUNE of April 26, Mr. Thomas Hall Henry seeks print: at least, such is the implication of a communication which, after expressing "amused amazement that so eager a cynic [as the reviewer] should have overlooked the opportunities of Mahler's slushy distortion of Göthe in the finale of the symphony," achieves piquancy in the following:

> "Of course, however, the ending is bound to be highly popular; for it can so easily be taken as implying the pretty middle-class doctrine that all moral difficulties find their solution in love as the highest of all things—a doctrine which, after several years' attentive observation and a few careful personal experiments, I take to be the utmost attainable extreme of nonsensical wickedness and folly. The real Göthe solution is, of course, that there is no solution at all, any more than there is a philosopher's stone."

◆

Although that was all from Mr. Henry, what he sent did not fade into the average of like letters of censure and chastisement, but hung, disquietingly, in the memory. It suggested cold-storage, smelled of the preservative, and forced—not appositely, perhaps—into resurrection the lines from "Twelfth-Night"—

That old and antique song we heard last night:
Methought it did relieve my passion much—
More than light airs and recollected terms
Of these most brisk and giddy-paced times.

Then Mr. Thomas Hall Henry, whoever he may be, sent a second communication—briefer, more usual, less bland and urbane: to say, indeed, that he wished to record his mistake in having supposed that W. G. N. writers were "game enough when called to admit it in print," and to add his expression of fear that, after all, "the feelings of the Germans must not be ruffled by scoffing at their music nor making light of the diversions of their Chicago bandmaster."

◆

The sense of cerements unwrapped from his earlier letter persisted until, vaguely clue'd by one of the locutions, I sought and found the longer excerpt quoted above, and with it found reason for Mr. Henry's pride therein: he, it seems, is one who can write anything he can read. George Bernard Shaw wrote it first in November of 1896 in a review of Lugné Poe's production in Paris of Ibsen's "Peer Gynt." Mr. Henry's literary enterprise involves a measure of revision: thus, he says "of course, however," where Shaw wrote "indeed"; and he cues the stuff in by substituting "Göthe" for Shaw's "Ibsenist."

◆

James Whittaker, a literate pianist and beguiling writer, is trenchward-bound—in aspiration, at least: he has withdrawn from the Chicago Examiner, whose music-critic he was for two seasons, and asked for field-artillery consideration, that he may fight the Germans. He confesses to no provocation save patriotism; for he speaks their language well, in its Berlin aspect, and is tolerably expert in transposing from that key into the majors and minors, so that he is understood of the Bismarck's waiters. Credibility is not among the attributes of the gossip that Mr. Campanini has filed a vehement protest against Mr. Whittaker's forswearing his desk on the Examiner: the entrepreneur's anguish is balmed in the knowledge that he and his pet publicist are now bracketed as Ententes. If Whittaker survive the tests, Chicago, in his going, will lose one of its two best accompanists, its blithest samovarist, and an essayist in music whose sole defect has been inability to obtain leave to print.

◆

An admirable reason for spending part of today indoors resides in the Bauer-Gabrilówitsch recital: not because they are two gifted players for the price of one, nor that they play two pianos, but that their liaison, of itself, is perfect, and an emprise of sheer if profitable art. Their recent participation in an Orchestra program put a rubric in Mr. Stock's best season.

◆

Muratore is not going to Buenos Aires, where he was to have sung in alternation with Caruso, who is due there before the 18th instant: the former explains that he is threatened with appendicitis, and prohibited by his physician. Ferrari-Fontana, who was in the Chicago Opera of last season, is to sing Wagner there. Armand Crabbé, who did not return to the Auditorium after the 1913-14 season, and Journet, a member last season and this, also will be in the Buenos Aires roster, with Barrientos as the principal woman. Puccini's new work, "La Rondine," which is reported as a success in Monte Carlo and described as in musical style a return to the manner of his successes, is to be staged in the season.

◆

Mascagni has within the week had mounted in Rome a new opera, "Lodoletta."

◆

"Siberia," by Giordano, is tentatively listed by Campanini for next season.

◆

Galli-Curci was scheduled last week to sing as near to New York City as Newark, N. J., but was unable to appear because of illness. She is to be heard next week in Yonkers, a suburb just remote enough to keep her within the bond whereby she is not to be heard in New York until Campanini takes her there next January.

◆

Loie Fuller is returning to the United States to resume professional activity, it is understood. Marguerita Sylva, also, would like to come back in her old capacity as a light-opera singer.

◆

A Paris newspaper suggested that film-makers were foolish to pay royalties on music written by members of the powerful society of French authors, composers, and publishers, and that their remedy lay in employing tunes by non-members. The Tribunal of Commerce thinks that the society should be paid fifteen thousand dollars as damages by the helpful journal.

◆

Among the reprisals threatened by Mr. Campanini, if he meet with continued opposition from Wall Street in his Broadway ambitions, is the erection of an opera-house in rivalry to the Metropolitan.

◆

Ernst Kunwald, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, is frankly of the minority of unnaturalized aliens not rushing to swear allegiance to the United States because of the state of war. "I am too old to take out papers here," he says. "And I am too old to go home and fight. I am just the conductor of an orchestra now: I did all I could to prevent war between Germany and the United States." He is of the Austrian officers' reserve-corps.

◆

Leonard Liebling in the Musical Courier:

German: "Down with Puccini!"
Englishman: "Down with Wagner!"
Italian: "Down with Bach!"
Russian: "Down with Mozart!"
Servian: "Down with Beethoven!"
Japan: "Down with Strauss!"
France: "Down with Schumann!"
Roumanian: "Down with Schubert!"
Montenegro: "Down with Haydn!"
Belgium: "Down with Weber!"
Turk: "Down with Debussy!"
Bulgarian: "Down with Tschaikowsky!"
American: "Very well: we'll take them all!"

◆

Anatole France was able to collect fifteen thousand dollars from the American film-makers who plan to put Mary Garden into pictures in her aspect as Thaïs.

Edith Mason

© L. Mishkin

She is to have the parts for lyric soprano in the operas that will make up this summer's répertoire in Ravinia Park: "Butterfly," "Manon," "Faust," "The Jewels of the Madonna," and "La Bohème" are mentioned by the management as some of them. Miss Mason has been singing in the Metropolitan Opera: her chief part in that répertoire there has been in Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier"; and she took part in the recent performance of DeKoven's "The Canterbury Pilgrims." She comes to the place occupied last season in Ravinia by her sister-singer of the Metropolitan, Mabel Garrison.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD.

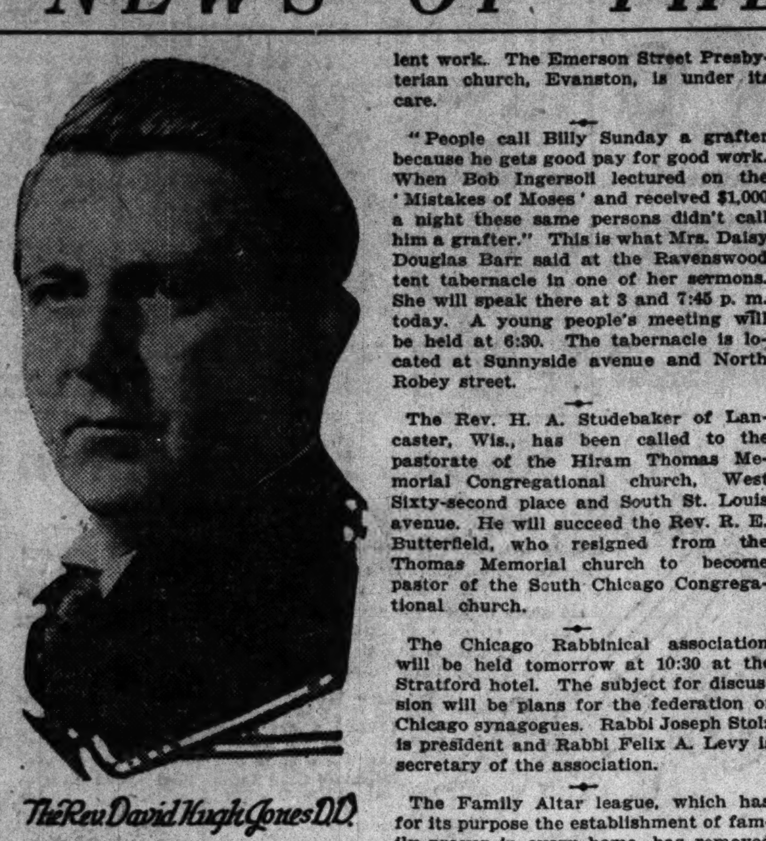
Bethany Union Church Is 45 Years Old Today

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THE Bethany Union church, One Hundred and Third and Wood streets, will celebrate today the forty-fifth anniversary of its organization. The Rev. Clyde McGee, a Congregationalist, is the pastor and has been for the last seven years. The first pastor, the Rev. D. S. Heffron, and the fourth pastor, the Rev. George C. Williams, were Baptists. The second pastor, the Rev. E. R. Worrell, the third pastor, the Rev. George E. Hunt, and the pastor preceding Mr. McGee, the Rev. George B. Laird, were Presbyterians. The pastor preceding Mr. Laird was a Methodist, the Rev. W. F. Atchison. Of the fourteen charter members four were Baptists, three Protestant Episcopalians, five Methodist Episcopalians, one each a Presbyterian and a Congregationalist. The only remaining charter member, Miss Alice S. Barnard, a former Methodist, read a sketch on last Wednesday evening of early days at Bethany Union. A dinner followed by an address by the Rev. George C. Williams will be given next Wednesday evening. The church was organized May 5, 1872. It has a beautiful church edifice costing $30,000.

The Congregationalists elected at their annual meeting the following delegates to the national council, which meets in Columbus, O., Oct. 24-31. Ministers: J. R. Nichols, Rogers Park; W. E. Barton, First church, Oak Park; H. E. Peabody, South; John Gardner, New England; W. H. Spence, Hinsdale; J. A. Jenkins, Warren Avenue. Laymen: Frank Kimball, Oak Park, Second; Judge J. A. Dupuy, Ravenswood; M. J. Carpenter, La Grange; Marquis Eaton, University; George M. Herrick, Pilgrim. Mr. Herrick was elected moderator of the Chicago Congregational association, the Rev. O. C. Grauer was elected vice moderator, and the Rev. C. A. Osborne, registrar.

The Rt. Rev. P. J. Muldoon, bishop of Rockford, will officiate today at the dedication of a new Catholic church at Prophetstown, Ill.



The Rev David Hugh Jones D.D.

The Rev. David Hugh Jones, D. D., LL. D., is pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston. He will be the speaker tonight at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall on the subject "The Call of the Crisis."

Dr. Jones is well acquainted with life and conditions in Europe. He was born in Anglesey, Wales, and after his education in the United States at Marietta college, Ohio, and Lane Theological seminary, Cincinnati, he studied in Berlin, Germany, and in Edinburgh, Scotland. He received the degree of doctor of divinity from his alma mater and the degree of doctor of laws from Carroll college. He is a member of the Delta Upsilon and Phi Beta Kappa college fraternities and of the University club, Chicago.

He has spoken several times before the Sunday Evening club. The First church, Evanston, is one of the foremost churches of the denomination in benevolent work. The Emerson Street Presbyterian church, Evanston, is under its care.

"People call Billy Sunday a grafter because he gets good pay for good work. When Bob Ingersoll lectured on the 'Mistakes of Moses' and received $1,000 a night these same persons didn't call him a grafter." This is what Mrs. Daisy Douglas Barr said at the Ravenswood tent tabernacle in one of her sermons. She will speak there at 3 and 7:45 p. m. today. A young people's meeting will be held at 6:30. The tabernacle is located at Sunnyside avenue and North Robey street.

The Rev. H. A. Studebaker of Lancaster, Wis., has been called to the pastorate of the Hiram Thomas Memorial Congregational church, West Sixty-second place and South St. Louis avenue. He will succeed the Rev. R. E. Butterfield, who resigned from the Thomas Memorial church to become pastor of the South Chicago Congregational church.

The Chicago Rabbinical association will be held tomorrow at 10:30 at the Stratford hotel. The subject for discussion will be plans for the federation of Chicago synagogues. Rabbi Joseph Stolz is president and Rabbi Felix A. Levy is secretary of the association.

The Family Altar league, which has for its purpose the establishment of family prayer in every home, has removed its headquarters to rooms 401-402 Marquette building. The league has secured an endowment of nearly $50,000 and publishes a magazine to promote its work. The Rev. William E. Biederwolf, president of the board of directors, secured 1,650 subscribers to the magazine in Lawrence, Mass., where he recently held an evangelistic meeting. He considers the subscriptions equivalent to the reading of the Bible in that number of families, as the magazine prints daily Bible readings to be read at family devotions.

A rural church and Sunday school conference, which has been in session at Elburn, Ill., since Friday evening, will hold three sessions today. The Kaneville vested boys' choir will sing at the afternoon session. The closing address this evening will be given by Prof. Allan Hoben of the University of Chicago on "The Future of the Rural Church."

Nine hundred officers from twenty-four states are expected to be present at the eastern states' congress of the Salvation army in Philadelphia beginning next Saturday and continuing to May 17. Commander Evangeline Booth will speak three times on Sunday and lead a procession through the business section of the city the next day. On Saturday a commemorative tablet will be laid at the point where the first open air meeting in the United States was held by the Salvation army. A parade will begin the congress on Saturday at 2 o'clock.

Confirmation services will be conducted by Bishop A. J. McGavick: Today, 3:30, St. Columbas'; tomorrow, 10:30, St. Malachy's; Wednesday, 10:30, St. Matthias'; Thursday, 10:30, Visitation.

The Rev. George A. Kilbey, superintendent of the Christian Industrial league of the Presbyterian church, has a son enlisted in the army and in training at Fort Leavenworth.

The baccalaureate sermon of the Chicago Training School for City, Home, and Foreign Missions, 4949 Indiana avenue, will be preached at 4 p. m. today by the Rev. W. S. Marquis, superintendent of the Presbyterian synod's committee on benevolences. The graduating exercises will be held Tuesday evening in the St. James' Methodist Episcopal church, Ellis avenue and Forty-sixth street, the Rev. J. S. Dancey of Englewood First Methodist Episcopal church delivering the address. The Presbyterian Training school unites with the Methodist school in all of the commencement exercises.

Mrs. Frederick A. Dow, former president of the Illinois state federation of women's clubs and a member of the national committee, and Mrs. Donald Rose of London, who is seeking an early opportunity to return, will speak this evening at 7:45 at the First Presbyterian church, Forty-first street and Grand boulevard, on the subject, "Patriotism and Housekeeping." This is one of a series of patriotic meetings being held in this church Sunday evenings.

Archbishop G. W. Mundelein's appointments for this week are: Today, 3:30, Holy Angel's church; Tuesday, 10:30, St. Columbanus'; Wednesday, 10:30, St. Andrew's; Thursday, 10:30, St. Gregory's; Saturday, 10:30, Holy Guardian Angel. All of the services mentioned are confirmations.

The Chicago conference of the woman's home and foreign missionary societies of Chicago of the Lutheran church will be held Thursday in Hope church, 1520 North Laurel avenue.

An appeal to women of the Catholic church to volunteer as "Big Sisters" after the manner of the "Big Brothers" of the Holy Name society is made through the columns of the New World, the Catholic weekly. It is asserted that of the 15,000 delinquent children whose cases are settled in police stations, from one-quarter to one-third are girls and need the help of women.

The Rev. John Henry Jowett, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, New York, who has accepted a call to Westminster chapel, London, England, as the successor of the Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, will be one of the speakers at the special meeting of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America which will be held in the Calvary Baptist church, Washington, D. C., Tuesday and Wednesday, to consider the relation of the churches to the war. John R. Mott, Henry Churchill King, Robert E. Speer, and Raymond Robins are other speakers prominent in the religious world who will be present.

The Chicago Baptist association will meet June 7 and 8 in the Western Avenue church, Western and Warren avenues.

"TIZ" FOR FEET

No More Sore, Tired, Tender Feet; No Puffed-up, Calloused Feet or Painful Corns--Try "Tiz"

Why go limping around with aching, puffed-up feet—feet so tired, chafed, sore and swollen you can hardly get your shoes on or off? Why don't you get a 25-cent box of "Tiz" from the drug store now and gladden your tortured feet?

"Tiz" makes your feet glow with comfort; takes down swellings and draws the soreness and misery right out of feet that chafe, smart and burn. "Tiz" instantly stops pain in corns, calluses and bunions. "Tiz" is glorious for tired, aching, sore feet. No more shoe tightness—no more foot torture.

Ask for "Tiz." Get only "Tiz."—Adv.

Simplicity Marks Feminine Clothes Seen at the Races

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—It would almost seem as if the polite set were taking on its old attitude this last week, uninfluenced by the harrowing of war. A surprise party was ed on Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss and the horse races of the country clubs have resumed. Of course the officers, as I mentioned recently, thought of abandoning their racing the minute they heard that war was declared, but Secretary Baker and other army officials advised them to go right with the sport. And as for the party the James, it was an innocent indeed.

They returned from a dinner engagement to find that thirty of their friends taken possession of that modest million dollar palace of theirs at East Sixty-ninth street. It was to the wedding anniversary of couple, and in connection with this the guests had their little joke. last one of them and the serv- the party were in medieval the costumes of the year in which and Mrs. James were married. Long coats and capes, many of them military in cut, were numerous. Khaki was a favorite color and material, and was reinforced with a great deal of the shades of brown that suggest (to women at least) the army. Mrs. Henry Fletcher Godfrey wore a sort of service coat of tan cloth, belted, and with it a small black hat trimmed with aigrettes. Mrs. S. Bryce Wing had on a long tan military cape with a small turban of dark blue straw, and Mrs. Lorillard Spencer wore a blue and green plaid cape with a white fox neckpiece and a small dark blue hat, trimmed with blue wings. Mrs. Joseph T. Davis wore a coat suit of what you might almost call putty color, so much lighter was it than the usual shade of tan. It was trimmed with dark blue satin. She wore with it a hat mushroom in shape, edged round the brim with red cherries.

Jersey cloth was the most popular of all materials represented, and tan and blue the most popular colors, the former for foundations of the frock, and the latter for garnishing.

Miss Rosalie Bloodgood had on a suit of tan jersey cloth braided the same color. She reinforced it with a small brown hat. Miss Maude Kahn and Miss Marion Tiffany were with her when I saw them, and they were both dressed in military tan. Imagine the swashbucklingly military air they presented as they advanced down the grand stand three abreast. Miss Tiffany relented a little from the rigors of military severity by putting a brown fox fur round her neck, and she wore also a big dark brown hat trimmed with pheasant tails.

* *

Mrs. Wagstaff Adds Bright Colors.

With a costume of tan cloth Mrs. Morton Schwartz wore a big hat of tan straw. Her gown was made with a plaited skirt and was trimmed in blue satin. Her hat bore a touch of this same blue. A cheerful bit of color was afforded by Mrs. Samuel J. Wagstaff's turban, rose geranium straw, trimmed with geranium blooms. She wore a long seal coat. Mrs. Samuel Neilson Hinckley had a most luxurious neckpiece of sable, trimmed with tails. It harmonized with her tan costume. Her toque was a small affair of purple straw.

Ever since my opening sentence, which rather implied that society was "off its job" of contributing to help in this war I have been a little conscience stricken. If the members of the smart set are not at work every moment of their waking hours I believe they, like the rest of the country, never for one instant forget it. Their functions are taking on a military aspect.

A huge American flag, that covered entirely one end of the ball room, was the decoration at the last junior dance at the Plaza. A large number of young men were there, clad in khaki. They descended on the ball room late, having been to drill. With them were two young members of the class of 1917 at the University of Pennsylvania, on their way to France to help the American ambulance over there. The orchestra played "The Marseillaise" when they entered, and the patronesses, women of the most exclusive fastness of the four hundred, sang.

AUTOMOBILES Conducted by SHEPPARD BUTLER MOTORCYCLES

East Sees First Mobilization of Cars and Drivers

NEW YORK, May 5.—[Special.]—Great interest has been shown throughout the country in the plans for organizing volunteer motor transport companies as a measure of preparedness, to be in position to render aid to the army in the transportation of troops and supplies. Letters and telephone messages have been pouring into the office of the volunteer motor transport committee throughout the last week, asking for further information and offering whole hearted patriotic coöperation in the work.

Two distinct lines of effort have been undertaken by the committee. The first and most immediately important is to assist the departmental quartermaster at Governor's island in recruiting and examining about 1,400 experienced motor truck men or automobile drivers in the three sections of the department of the east, who are needed at once to man forty motor truck companies that are to be organized by the quartermaster general at Washington.

The men being enlisted include truckmasters, chauffeurs, repairmen, etc. They are now being enlisted and assigned, but not called into service, being enrolled in the quartermaster enlisted reserve corps for a period of four years. They will all bear the title of sergeant and when called into service the drivers will receive pay at the rate of $36 a month and be given subsistence, clothing, etc. George H. Duck has been put in charge at the enlisting office on Governor's island of the work of examining the applicants as to their experience and qualifications for handling motor trucks.

Roderick Stevens, a member of the committee, and now president of the Motor Truck club, has been visiting Boston, where a local committee has been organized to assist the army headquarters at Boston for the northeastern department along similar lines. A similar committee and examining board is also being organized in Atlanta, Ga., by Mr. Stevens to assist the quartermaster's office at army headquarters at Charleston, S. C., for the southeastern department recently created.

These committees in the three army departments will appoint subcommittees and examining boards in the cities in each department where recruiting officers are located. The cities in the eastern department where such subcommittees will be appointed are Albany, Rochester, Syracuse, Buffalo, Newark, Scranton, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Washington, Richmond, and Charleston, W. Va.

The secondary line of work the committee has undertaken is the formation of volunteer motor companies, particularly along the Atlantic, gulf, and Pacific coasts. In order to coördinate efforts and avoid duplication and confusion, representatives will be appointed in the largest city or cities in each state, who will carry on the work in their districts, appointing captains to organize motor truck, motor car, and motorcycle companies, distributing literature and receiving reports from captains and keeping records thereof. Appointment of these representatives is now being made and will be announced later. Circulars describing the proper formation of companies, duties of the personnel, and service that the companies will be called upon to perform, together with report blanks, etc., are now being prepared and as soon as they are ready will be mailed upon request.

It is made clear by the quartermaster general's office that these are purely volunteer companies and that there is no intention of taking over the trucks and cars of citizen owners for regular use in the army. Such service as the companies will be called upon to perform will probably extend over only two or three days, except in case of some unexpected emergency. Should the use of the trucks or cars be required for a longer period, it is expected that the government will pay for their use.

Men of the companies are not required to have any military training or knowledge, but it is desired that those who are qualified and willing to enlist in the quartermaster reserve corps should apply and become enlisted, so that they can be called upon later to man truck and car companies to be formed in connection with the new federal army that is to be raised. Gradually the formation of volunteer companies will be extended to interior states.

CHICAGO'S FIRST USED AUTO SHOW

Opened yesterday at the Coliseum. Cars will be sold from the floor of the exhibit daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. until next Sunday night. An account of the novel event's inaugural will be found in another section of this paper.

Parking Rules May Be Fought in State Court

As might have been expected, Chicago's new downtown anti-parking rules didn't go into effect last Tuesday without vigorous protests on the part of some of the motorists caught violating their provisions.

Uncompromising enforcement of the ordinance by mounted policemen sent broadcast throughout the loop produced bitter language in many cases, and more than 100 fines in the Speeders' court. Among those who found thmselves haled before Judge Kearns were City Prosecutor Harry B. Miller and former Assistant State's Attorney Stephen A. Malato. And on the latter's contretemps hangs the beginning of a fight that may result in a drastic modification of the rules.

On the first day of the new regulation Mrs. Malato drove her automobile to the Ashland block to call for her husband. She left the car at the curb and went up to his office. When they came down together a policeman was awaiting with a summons.

"That," said Mr. Malato afterward, "is carrying it too far. If the ordinance is to be enforced in this fashion, I propose to contest it—in the Supreme court, if carrying it that far is necessary to beat it."

Unforeseen difficulties were encountered by scores of automobile users. One, for example, pulled up in front of a downtown office building at 3:55 one afternoon. He had left his pocketbook on his desk and asked the driver to wait while he got it so he could pay his fare. At 4 the anti-parking rule went into effect, and at 4:05, when he came out, he found a policeman writing a summons for the taxi driver.

Strenuous objection also has been registered in many quarters to the length of the afternoon anti-parking hours, which extend to 7 p. m., thereby preventing many downtown diners from driving to a hotel or restaurant and leaving their cars in front. Inasmuch as the rush of downtown traffic stops abruptly at 6 or soon after it is argued that it is quite unnecessary to prohibit parking until 7.

But on the whole the effect of the new regulations seems to have been a vast simplifying of traffic problems in the loop. Driving through is a far easier matter for motorists, and boarding street cars is infinitely safer. Everything moves more rapidly with the curbs clear except at the cab stands.

Minor modifications in the rules may be found advisable, but revoking the whole ordinance would be a public calamity.

WAR

Straws Which Show How the Current of Sentiment Lies in the Automobile World.

THE B. F. Goodrich company has placed at the government's disposal the complete resources of its national touring bureau, which has virtually every important road in the United States mapped, logged, and guideposted. The offer embraces also the use of its fleet of motor trucks and their crews, which have been installing guideposts throughout the country for several years.

Willys-Overland dealers in various localities are forming volunteer motor reserve companies, composed of Overland cars and expert drivers, for mobilization service and home protection. The plan is to include, in each company, a group of Overland cars and their owners, headed by a captain. When ten companies are formed a meeting of captains is held, fleet officers elected, and rules adopted.

Several concerns have enlisted in the fight against food shortage and high prices by turning over all their available land to their employés for cultivation. Among the firms which have done this are the Nash Motors company of Kenosha, Wis., the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company of Akron, O., and the Pennsylvania Rubber company of Jeannette, Pa.

E. I. Rosenfeld, general manager of the Smith Motor Truck corporation, announced last week that the families of all employés who enlist will be cared for during the period of the war. A certain per cent of the salary received by each man will be given each week to his dependents, the amount to be determined by individual needs.

Racing Season Opens.

Uniontown, Pa., will stage the inaugural motor races of the 1917 season next Thursday. Three contests are scheduled—a "universal trophy" for 100 laps of one and one-eighth miles each, another 100 lap event, and a fifty-four mile race for smaller cars. Among the racing drivers entered are Ralph De Palma, Barney Oldfield, Eddie Hearne, Ralph Mulford, and Ira Vail. The Ascot speedway at Los Angeles had a race on March 4, won by Earl Cooper in a Stutz, but this was scheduled technically as the last race of the previous season, so that Uniontown has a fair claim to the distinction of starting the ball rolling for this year.

Music at C. A. C.

Beginning this evening there will be orchestral music at the Chicago Automobile club every Sunday from 6 to 9 o'clock. The idea is to provide an entertaining place for members to rest and dine after an afternoon motor ride.

Q. What keeps him so late?

A. Punctures.

Q. Why blame the tires when, maybe, it's the club or the boys?

A. He's not seeking any alibi in this case—it's just rotten tire luck putting him in bad.

Q. How can you do away with this tire luck you mention?

A. Play a certainty—use Lee Puncture Proof Tires. Of course they're pneumatic—possibly they're a little more expensive than the ordinary tires but you're not bothered with the punctures of ordinary pneumatic tires—they'll go the whole journey and more and let you out of any such rotten tire luck. Prōdium Process Makes Tires Last Longer

THE discovery of the Prōduim Process is the greatest step forward in rubber manufacturing since the perfecting of vulcanization.

It has given to Republic Tires a tread of super-toughness that is wear resisting to a remarkable degree.

It wears down as evenly as a piece of tempered steel, and the rubber is so strong that a strip of it one and one-half inches square will suspend a weight of more than three tons.

More than 100,000 sets of Republic Prōdium Process Tires have been sold to tire users.

We know now that the Prōdium Process does make tires last longer and that millions of dollars will be saved to tire buyers.

As the result of an unprecedented demand from every part of the country, we are trebling our production of Republic Prodium Process Tires.

CHANGIN' A TIRE

By G. O. Mac Conachie

(In the Detroit Free Press.)

Characters, owner of car and three friends; time, twilight.

(Boole—sis—s—siss—ka—flap.) Supposed to indicate the arrival of the well known puncture.

Owner: There goes one of our legs. Well, I knew that we were limping, but I thought we could make it.

First Passenger: Legs? Whaddayah mean, legs?

Second Passenger: Why, you poor boob, he means he's gotta leak and we'll have to wait about a half hour till he changes a shoe.

Owner: O, not that long. I've got a "spare" in the kit. I won't have to patch it.

Third Passenger: (Jumps out first.) Yes, there it is, Jack, the front tire. Look, it's all flat and everything!

Second Passenger: Whaddayah think

First Passenger: (Observes owner digging in tool box and under the seat.) So that's what that funy box is for, eh? I always wondered. Huh? It's got wrenches in it and all, hasn't it?

Owner: Yep.

First Passenger: What's that for? That thingamajig you got in your hand?

Owner: This? It's a jack for lifting the front wheels.

Third Passenger: (Toots horn.) Why, the horn's all right. I don't see why the car don't go.

Second Passenger: Chop that bum comedy and let 'im fix the tire, will yuh?

First Passenger: O, I see—you unscrew those little nuts——

Second Passenger: "Yes, and there's some big nuts around here he ought to use the wrench on; they're loose.

Owner: (Barks his knuckles in loosening rim fasteners.) Can you beat it? I bet that every —— —— ——: : : . time I get a puncture. If my knuckles would only hold out I'd make a great repair man.

First Passenger: Gee, it would be swell if some of those interurbans jumped the track right here, wouldn't it?

Third Passenger: Can you imagine all this property being subdivided, and a lotta half smart guys making millions out of it?

Second Passenger: What's the idea of calling 'em half wits? Give 'em credit, I say, for figuring they'd fall for it.

First Passenger: You don't mean to tell me that this farm has all been sold?

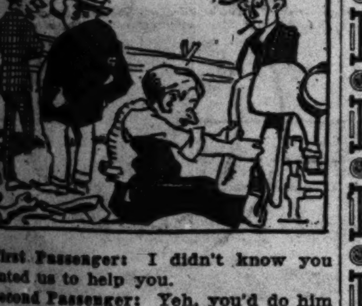
Second Passenger: No, stupid. You can't get a lease on any of it for a million [illegible] or so, now that the war is on.

Third Passenger: Do you think the war will crab the real estate game?

Second Passenger: It ain't so good for it, that's a cinch. I don't think it will blow or anything like that, though. It may slow down a little. How's the old leg now, Jack?

Owner: O, all right. I'd never got it fixed if it hadn't been for the help you fellows gave me.

Second Passenger: I couldn' open a can of sardines without blasting. I'd been a lot of help to you, I would.



First Passenger: I didn't know you wanted us to help you.

Second Passenger: Yeh, you'd do him a lotta good, you would. Cross-examinin' him on the tool box, and everything.

First Passenger: O, is that so? I can open a can of sardines, anyway. You admitted you couldn't.

Second Passenger: Whaddayuh want to do, start an argument, er sumthing? Don't kid yourself.

Owner: Well, there she is, as good as new.

First Passenger (has been pawing over the old inner tube.) Look it, Jack, there's the puncture right there.

(Br—grind—buzz—put—put—put — zum—zum—m—mm.)

Owner: How's that for a motor starting the first time after standing that long. Some class, eh?

Curtain.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

The Saxon trail blazer which is skirting the boundaries of the United States has just crossed what is known as the heaviest drifting sand along the border—that in the lower Texas counties between Corpus Christi and Brownsville. Deflated tires wrapped with burlap were used to get traction. Over axle-deep drifts two strips of canvas were laid before the car as portable roads.

The price of Rauch & Lang's electrics was advanced $200 on May 1.

Builders of the Four Wheel Drive truck report that a three ton F. W. D. called in recently to help out a road contractor who was using two seven ton rear drive trucks, hauled more material in two days than either of its big competitors, its traction on all four wheels enabling it to cover the rough roads faster.

"Talk about preparedness," said Louis Geyler one day last week. "Our colored porter just came bursting into the office yelling: 'Come quick, boss! There's a man out yeah crawlin' under a car wid a burglar's lamp.' I investigated and found a fussy purchaser examining the under side of a new Hudson with a flashlight. I'm glad to say he was satisfied and took the car."

ART

by Louise James Bargelt

Varied Exhibits Reward Visitors at Art Institute

AN abundance of exhibits is on now at the Art institute. There is the collection of pictures by Zuloaga, one of the most important collections of the year, since Zuloaga is one of the greatest of living artists. Then there is the annual exhibition of American water colors, pastels, and miniatures, including the Rotary exhibition of the American Water Color society. There are also the annual exhibition of the Art Students' league, the drawings by Chester Leich, and the paintings by De Witt Parshall.

Anent Zuloaga first, his pictures are masterly renditions of scenery and of character. His types of men and women are bold, affirmative, despotic in the arrogance of their passions and their power, while his landscapes, usually the striking background for his figure pieces, are always Spanish, supremely Gothic, romantic, picturesque.

You will like his men better than his women, I think. That is, if you are Anglo-Saxon rather than Latin. The faces of his men are compelling in their variety. In the "Philosopher" there is intellect and brooding seriousness. In the "Cardinal" there is a rare commingling of spiritual and mental power. In his "Maurice Barres" is a complete understanding of that fecund author of "Du Sang." In his "Basque Peasant" there is much of the iron will and determination necessary to wrest a living from the mountainous countryside of Spain. Even in his "Bull Fighter," where one might expect the physical to prevail, there is hint of something higher in aspirations in the sensitive, emotional face.

But his women are all frankly, insistently of the flesh fleshly. They are swayed by their desires, creatures of impulse and passion. In this they are typically Spanish, for the women of that peninsula leave mental exertion and spiritual meditations almost exclusively to the men. And when artists like Goya and Sorolla and Zuloaga come to paint them they must choose for their pictures the sensuous type. Now and then the maternal woman creeps into the canvas, but she is the exception, only occasionally seen.

Of these types there are some glorious examples. His "Nude Woman with Red Carnation" is a fine study of the human form, simple in effect, and wearing about her head a white mantilla of dexterous workmanship. Another delectable creature suggestive of the carmen depths of Spanish life is his "Anita Ramires on a Yellow Couch," a painting more decorative than most of his works. "The Women on the Balcony" is another example of his witching if sense enslaved creatures, and his "Lolita" is adorned with more color of garment and drapery than he usually permits himself.

The same force, differently directed, he has put into his picture, "La Virgen de la Pena," a solitary, rock bound cloister in Aragon, with heavy massed white clouds low hanging above it. Another romantic landscape, very Zuloagaesque, is "The Castle of Turegano," a charming old world pile perched on the highroad from Segovia to Riaza.

One of the most impressive and dominating of the canvases exhibited is the "Victim of the Fête." It meets the eye as one enters the first gallery and is not forgotten. Though Zuloaga himself was a toreador of considerable ability, he admits he painted this picture as a protest against the tragic fate of the poor Don Quijotes, forced to enter the bull ring.

Another vastly impressive canvas is that of the "Brotherhood of Christ Crucified." This is a personal observation of the artist of one of those rural Calvaries frequently seen in certain quarters of Spain during holy week.

All that Zuloaga has ever done is the result of first hand knowledge. His every work is direct from life and one feels this actuality in every canvas seen.

The Japanese color prints by Hiroshige, which have been hung in the Art institute to replace those of Hokusai, are delightful examples of the unique art of Japanese landscapic color prints. There is nothing else exactly like this branch of Japanese work in the artistic world. They form a class apart, rendering with rare delicacy the fleeting moods of nature.

Hiroshige, who was born at the end of the eighteenth century, is justly famed for his atmospheric effects. He touches with exquisite lightness the peace of early twilight and the hush of night over a snow covered village.

Those who are fond of Japanese art will be quite as interested in this artist's work as in that of Hokusai. Hiroshige was extremely prolific in his day. During his working years he turned out between 3,000 and 4,000 different designs and there are said to be some 100,000 prints extant of his work.

Nor should his bird and flower designs be missed. They are fresh and spontaneous and possess a unique idyllic charm.

The spirit and soul of them is quaintly expressed in this verse:

The mist of cherry trees in spring,
Ships sleeping on some bright lagoon,
A swallow's dusky, sweeping wing,
Steep Ishiyama's autumn moon,
The changing marvels of faint rain,
The foam that hides the torrent's stream,
The eagle o'er the snowy plain,
Sea twilights haunted as a dream.

The exhibition of paintings by De Witt Parshall is for the most part mountainous landscapes from the far west. Now and then, as in his "Twilight," he gives us a picture of rocks and waters, but this is rarely exceptional. Again and again we see the mountains and the sky and a bit of water perhaps in some deep gulley or valley between.

"Late Afternoon in Grand Cañon" is a study in rich, deep purples, and in "Late Afternoon at Point Lobos" a wealth of rich blues bathes the rocks and the water. In "Sunrise" the sun gives a brilliant touch to the mountain tops, and in "Great Abyss" the blues and the purples combine in effects that are truly beautiful.

De Witt Parshall is a New Yorker who has studied in Paris under Cormon and Harrison. The Metropolitan museum in New York has his "Catskills" and the Toledo museum his "Isis Peak."

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

The National factory has succeeded in overcoming the difficulties it encountered early in the year through a shortage of materials and is making deliveries to hundreds of buyers who ordered cars two or three months ago. The first shipments for the year went out only last month.

The Diamond T Motor Car company is completing a new factory at West Twenty-sixth street and Kilbourne avenue. Ten acres have been secured, and the first of the new buildings will cover about 125,000 square feet of this space.

An extraordinarily careful series of tests as to fuel mileage has been made by the builders of the Hal twelve, the net result being the company's conservative claim that "gasoline consumption is low for a car of such power, averaging ten to thirteen miles to gallon of gasoline." "The fuel consumption question," says Harry Newman, the Chicago distributor, "can well be compared to the tales one hears of the wonderful fish folks catch but are unable to show because they got away just before they were landed."

The new Doble steam car is to be marketed in Chicago by the Doble Steam Car company of Illinois, which has obtained a salesroom at 2250 Michigan avenue as its permanent location. No announcement has been made as to when deliveries will begin.

ASTRONOMY

MAP OF THE ZODIAC
POSITIONS OF SUN, MOON AND PLANETS AT SUNSET TODAY (MAY 6, 1917) DRAWN by S.F. MAXWELL

THE PLANETS IN MAY.

DURING May, the planets can be seen neither at dusk nor dawn. Saturn alone is the exception, but even it is close to the sun and sets a few hours after dusk. An examination of their movements will perhaps show the reason. The sun moves along the ecliptic in a direction opposite to that of its daily motion, circling the sky once a year. The planets follow the same general track, from west to east, but at different speeds. Therefore the sun, as it travels, will overtake some and be overtaken by others.

The planets farther from the sun than the earth move more slowly than the sun; those nearer, more rapidly. Last autumn Jupiter and Saturn were rising just as the sun went down. All during the winter the sun has crept eastward toward them. By early spring they were in midsky. The sun has now overtaken Jupiter, rendering it invisible in the daylight. In a few weeks it will overtake Saturn, and it also will be lost in the sun's rays.

Jupiter is in conjunction with the sun every 399 days. Saturn every 378 days, Mars every 780 days, Venus every 584 days, and Mercury every 116 days.

Mars we find emerging in the morning sky. The sun passed it on Feb. 28, 1917, and is now rapidly drawing away. Mars will rise earlier and earlier every morning until on next Dec. 1 it will be opposite the sun in the evening sky.

Mercury and Venus move faster than the sun and overtake it. Because their paths lie inside the earth's orbit they can be seen only near the sun. Venus is beyond the sun, passing from the morning into the evening sky. Mercury has been brilliant in the west during April and is now traveling between the earth and the sun.

Uranus and Neptune are not good naked eye objects. The former rises about midnight, the latter sets a little later than Saturn.

Planets can be identified by their motions and color. Usually they are brighter than any of the surrounding stars, especially when they come near the earth. Venus always appears a most brilliant white, due to the heavy clouds in its atmosphere. The deserts of Mars are ochre red and give it a gleaming, ruddy hue. Jupiter and Saturn have deep, heavy layers of clouds over them, and are respectively peach colored and orange white. Uranus, if one should be able to find it in a spyglass, would be a decided green. Mercury is a world of parched plains and burning deserts. Its color is red, but less marked than Mars, suggesting red soil interspersed with white dust, like portions of the moon.

GOD GIVE US MEN.

God give us men in times like these
To keep our flag upon the seas,
To bring it through that warring hell
Of screaming steel and splintering shell,
To victory and peace again.
God give us men,
God give us men.

God give us men in times like these,
No craven cowards on their knees,
But fearless men, erect, four-square,
With hands to do and hearts to dare;
Come on! Your country cries again:
"God give us men,
God give us men."

"God give us men in times like these,"
The Stars and Stripes shout to the breeze;
"Fearless and valiant, terrible, just,
We've never trailed in the bitter dust,
But give us men or else we must"—
Hark! 'Tis the Stars and Stripes again:
"God give us men,
God give us men."

They Laugh at this in Vaudeville

RIALTO.

Jones and Johnson:

"I see they are putting up one of those new bungalows next to your house."

"So they were, but last night it fell down."

"It fell down during last night?"

"Yes, sir, it fell down."

"Well, how did that happen?"

"It was the fault of the workingmen. They took down the scaffolding before they put on the wallpaper."

Another question I would like to ask you is this: Is your daughter to be married next week?"

"Yes, sir, she certainly am to be married."

"But isn't she a very young girl to be married?"

"Yes, she am very young. She's only 17."

"She's only 70?"

"No; not 70, but 17."

"O, she's only 17 years of age? My, but that is young to be married. Does she feel that she is fitted for married life?"

"She am being fitted now—she's gettin' twenty gowns made. Ain't that bein' well fitted?"

Nevens and Gordon at Rialto:

"Say, I called on you last night, didn't I?"

"What an odd question. Why, of course you did."

"Well, I just wanted to say that if I proposed to you I was drunk."

"Yes, and if I accepted I was crazy."

"No woman can drive me."

"A woman would look funny driving a jackass."

"After all, love is only a weakness."

"What is marriage?"

"A surrender."

"And what is divorce?"

"O, that's a rescue."

"I never could understand why it takes a man so long to propose. It's only one short sentence."

"It's a sentence for life."

GLIDE
4 PASSENGER ROADSTER

This is the one four passenger roadster that is not only smart in design and flexible in operation, but convenient and comfortable.

The divided front seats and roomy rear seat will accommodate four large sized adults comfortably. There is plenty of foot room in the tonneau and a convenient storage compartment for luggage back of the adjustable rear seat.

Here, at last, is the automobile that combines the smartness and economy of the roadster with the greater capacity of the touring car without sacrificing comfort.

Studebaker

The Studebaker SIX
As to Value

OVER 300,000 Studebakers in actual service in every part of the world have contributed experience to the perfecting of the Series 18 Studebaker SIX.

Studebaker maintains what are probably the most complete laboratories in the automobile industry for the development and the proving of materials used in Studebaker cars.

All this means QUALITY.

Studebaker is one of the largest manufacturers of automobiles in the world.

Studebaker gives you the benefits of all economies made possible by great resources.

Studebaker turns to your advantage all savings made possible by the development of steadily improved manufacturing methods and by the installation of the latest and best labor saving machinery.

This means ECONOMY.

Furthermore, Studebaker has concentrated on the development of a single basic chassis design.

The entire attention of Studebaker's highly efficient engineering department has been focussed on the perfection of this one model.

This means still higher quality and still greater economy.

These are the reasons why Studedaker is able to produce so good a car at so low a price.

If real economy is your consideration—if you want to get the most for your money—investigate Studebaker before you buy.

Stewart
Speedometer for Fords
$10

Pinched Again
for speeding

Hey, there! You're under arrest!
Didn't know you were beating the limit, eh?
Of course not—your Ford hasn't got a speedometer. But that excuse won't go in a police court. You ought to have a Stewart Speedometer on your Ford.

You can get it—alone—for $10. But we recommend it mounted in the handsome black enameled Stewart Instrument Board. Installed in a few seconds. No screws or brackets. Takes all vibration from steering wheel. $10 for the Speedometer; $1.25 for the Instrument Board alone, or the whole combination for $11.25.

A Stewart Speedometer not only tells you how far and how fast you go—but checks up on gas and oil consumption—keeps track of the mileage—helps cut expenses all around.

Don't be without one another day. Tend to it now.

Your Ford needs a reliable warning signal too. Get a Stewart—hand operated $3.50 or motor driven $6. No other so good—no other so popular.

Put a set of Stewart V-Ray Spark Plugs in your motor. They have four sparking points instead of only one or two. They are oil proof, heat proof and fracture proof.

Get a Stewart V-Ray Searchlight for your car and eliminate the dangers of night driving. Only $5.

A Stewart Autoguard will save its cost the first time you get a bump. Put one on both the front and rear of your car.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
By HIGH SPEED

Owing to the large volume of requests for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp wit hinquiries so they may be answered by mail. Only routes and answers to questions of general interest will be published.

Please publish information regarding the best route from Chicago to Detroit, [illegible] stating the number of miles, towns passed through, and the general condition of the roads. Would not mind going considerably out of the way, provided better roads would be found by so doing.
J. H. K., Chicago.

I regret to inform you that there is no really good route between Chicago and Detroit at the present time. In any case you will have to drive first to South Bend. The roads are fine to that city and run through South Chicago, northeastern edge of Hammond, East Chicago, Gasselli, and [illegible] to Schererville, where the Lincoln highway is picked up and followed through Merrillville, Valparaiso, and Laporte to South Bend, 103 miles. The shortest route from South Bend to Detroit is via Elkhart, Middlebury, Shipshewana, Howe, Brighton, Orland, Kinderhook, Coldwater, Quincy, Allen, Jonesville, Moscow, Somerset, Clinton, Ypsilanti, Wayne, and Dearborn, 189.4 miles. This route is in none too good shape just now, but probably is the best way to go.

The Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Marshall, Jackson, and Ann Arbor route from South Bend to Detroit [208.6 miles] is a disgrace to the state of Michigan. Ordinarily this route should be the most popular one, but at the present time those who travel it must figure on being hauled out of the bottomless mud with teams at many points along the [illegible] miles between Battle Creek and Detroit. Last year this route was fairly good, but the hundreds of automobiles and motor trucks driven from the Detroit factories during the winter put the surface of the road in horrible shape.

My advice to Detroit bound motorists is to make the trip as long as possible and then take the Coldwater route in preference to the Kalamazoo-Battle Creek one.

Will you please outline for me what you consider the best route from Chicago to Dixon, Ill.? We are planning to make this trip within a few days. Are the roads good all of the way? What is the distance? G. W. P., Evanston, Ill.

The only direct way of reaching Dixon is over the Lincoln highway route. All other routes would be far out of the way. The route runs through Oak Park, Maywood, edge of Elmhurst, Lombard, North Glen Ellyn, and West Chicago to Geneva [37 miles], where the Lincoln highway is picked up and followed through De Kalb, Creston, Rochelle, Ashton, and Franklin Grove to Dixon, 105.3 miles from Chicago. The roads around Ashton are bad just now. A report reached this department a few days ago that one party had to be hauled out with teams on two occasions. Better postpone your trip until about May 15.

◆

What is the distance from Rockford to Chicago, and what towns are passed through en route?
A. J. E., Rockford, Ill.

The distance is 89.2 miles. The route is via Cherry Valley, Belvidere, Garden Prairie, [illegible], Harmony, Elgin, Ontarioville, Bloomingdale, and Addison.

◆

Will you be so kind as to publish in the Sunday edition the shortest and best route from Chicago to Kalamazoo, Mich.? A. G. L., Chicago.

Go through South Chicago, northeastern edge of Hammond, East Chicago, Gasselli, and [illegible] to Schererville, and take the Lincoln highway through Merrillville, Valparaiso, and La Porte to South Bend, 103 miles; then drive through Niles, Pokagon, Dowagiac, and Paw Paw to Kalamazoo, 69.1 miles.

◆

Please print in your column of questions and answers the most direct route between South Bend and Fort Wayne, Ind.
P. STARRETT, South Bend, Ind.

◆

Will you please inform me where the compression cocks of a motor are located and also describe their uses?
Q. Z., Laporte, Ind.

Compression cocks consist of small petcocks screwed into the top of each cylinder. Each of these cocks has a small, cuplike top. The cocks are almost invaluable, as they serve several purposes. By opening the cocks while the engine is running it is possible to determine if any of the cylinders are missing fire. If the cylinders are working properly, flame and sparks will shoot through the opening. If the carburetor mixture is perfect, the flame will be of a bluish color. A poor mixture will produce a reddish flame. Petcocks also are used for priming the motor when cold. Open the cocks and, with an oil can, pour a little gasoline into each one in turn. Then close the cocks and your motor will turn over at the first kick of the starter. In these days of poor, low grade gasoline it is well to prime the motor, even on mild days, thus preventing too great a tax on the starting battery.

Is it true that gasoline will be selling for 40 cents a gallon by the 1st of July? I have been told that it will bring that figure. Can kerosene be used as fuel? What suggestions can you offer for economizing on gasoline—other, of course, than operating the car less?
CONSERVATIONIST, Chicago.

I doubt if any living being could accurately guess what the price of gasoline will be on July 1. The fuel market is in an uncertain condition just now and nobody knows what it will do. It is likely gasoline soon will be selling much higher than it is at present, but I do not think the price will go to 40 cents within the next sixty days. However, in these stirring war times one never can tell what may happen. If you have a gasoline tank in your garage you would better fill it up at the present price, for it is a cinch it will not be any cheaper.

Kerosene may be used for operating a motor car, but a special carburetor usually is required. In most cases one would have to start on gasoline and then switch to kerosene.

With a little care and trouble economy in gasoline may be effected. Turn the motor over five or six times without the ignition current switched on. This tends to draw the mixture into the cylinders and also serves to warm up the combustion chamber somewhat. Following this a single pull up usually will start the motor. See that your carburetor is properly adjusted and that the mixture is not too rich. Use the choker as little as possible, for this draws raw gasoline into the mixing chamber. Raw gasoline burns slowly, compared to the proper mixture. It also causes carbon to form too quickly. Have the carbon burned out of the cylinders, and see to it that the compression is good. A slipping clutch also leads to waste of gasoline.

If you want to save gasoline forget the "quick getaway" boasted of by the automobile salesman. Start slowly and allow the car to gradually get up speed. Avoid spinning the wheels on wet surfaces. As soon as the motor starts place a half sheet of newspaper over the lower half of the radiator. The suction from the fan will keep it there and the motor will warm up quicker. The best efficiency is obtained when the heat of the motor is about 170 degrees. Avoid letting the motor idle and shut it off whenever possible.

Follow these suggestions and you will find yourself cutting down on your cost of opera-

Mr. Business Man—

This is a personal letter to you and I'll bet you read every word of it.

Economy is right—Stop the leaks is the slogan of the day—Conserve your Resources—We all believe that the ability to determine true Economy is an important factor in success. Have you considered results and economies in your delivery?

If you are using horses it is a waste of time and territory. If you are using large trucks when your average load is one ton; you are wasting money. If you are considering the purchase of a one-ton heavy duty truck look us over, for the MAXFER will go anywhere, and do anything any one-ton truck will do, and get away with it for half the cost.

If you are thinking of a Ford extension, investigate MAXFER—any other is second best. The only reason for buying any other truck than the MAXFER is because you don't know the MAXFER.

THE SAMURAI OF EUROPE.

The student of European politics, unless a national partisanism obscured his vision, realizes that there entered into the making of the European catastrophe more than one factor. It was not a simple combination such as these partisans believed, with a clear cleavage between the opposing sides. It was not freedom and progress against tyranny and reaction, although that was often enough asserted. There was a complex which defied all simple explanations.

But there has been from the first one potent factor in this complex which no argument or denial could dispose of, and which now in this final stage of the crisis stands out as the chief if not the only obstacle to peace. The citadel of the strength of the central powers is a samurai class, a class of warriors. They and the system which sustains and is largely controlled by them are what the peoples of America, France, and England fear and what they must continue to fight. The president of the German reichstag denies the existence of this threat against peace and independence and asserts the union and freedom of all the German people with their government. But the leaders of liberalism in Germany do not sustain his claim, and our American president asserted a sincere conviction, common now to the allies, with the exception of Japan, when he declared that democracy is in this war fighting for its existence against military autocracy, the system of the samurai. It is the civilian against the soldier, the systems which place the former safely above the latter, and organize for peace, not for war.

That the German people are themselves not bellicose may be conceded. But it is the samurai caste of Prussia which is the inspiration and rock foundation of German might. Civilian peoples cannot safely live under the sword it holds over the world.

The Prussian autocrat is the nearest analogy to the Spartan in European history. He puts on a uniform while a child. He begins from the cradle his training as a warrior. His first lesson is to endure. His code is military. His mind is saturated in military ideals and ideas. He is assigned a heroic rôle and he is magnificently formed by all the conditions of his life to play it well. In his hand is given the sword and shield. He is not only the guardian of the state but the chief instrument of its greatness and its growth. He is a splendid animal, but he is Germania's knight. His strength, his ferocity, his ruthlessness, as we call it, are raised to the ideal level by its devotion to the conception of a triumphant entity whose power will dominate the world because it is a supreme thing.

It is impossible for civilians, democrats, to feel as the military caste of Prussia feel toward the war. The civilian looks on war as an aberration. He hates it. He enters it as a supreme sacrifice, a defense of something which is so precious as to justify even the insanity which to him war is. The Prussian militarist looks on war as a noble and inevitable act of state, the highest form of expression. He is born for it and finds his fulfillment in it.

That was the ideal of the Spartan citizen and the Japanese samurai. It is the ideal the democratic civilian dreads and abhors. The civilian has his primitive fighting instincts, but in the pacific processes of civil life they vent themselves in comparatively harmless ways. The tired business man goes to a ball game and yells: "Kill him, kill him; throw him out." The football player slugs his opposite on the quiet. The polo player or the pugilist works off his fighting appetite in sport, but the German officer spends what he spends on the war game in peace and accumulates the will to conquer for the great day when he will express in conquest the supremacy of the German will.

To this European samurai war is the supreme assertion of the state, the realization of the national soul. We cannot think that the German civilian shares this, and it is plain that the German statesman realizes this when he declares that Germany is fighting a war of defense against an encirclement of subtle and hypocritical foes. To liberals in England, France, and America the war is a martyrdom of the civilian to the moloch of a war religion. They believe the German civilian is dominated by an autocratic will which is itself controlled by an ideal of aggrandizement through war, and that while civilian Germany is so dominated, whatever the nature of that domination, the civilian democracies dare not make peace with her.

Europe could have peace tomorrow if the fear of the professional militarism of the Prussian system could be laid. The allies have faith in the inevitable pacifism of a democratic states. They cannot have any faith in the peace a warrior class imposes or accepts.

TO OPEN ALASKA.

Alaska is one of the nation's most valuable possessions. It has scarcely been touched. Its resources are not organized, and if they were organized they would not be accessible to our use because Alaska is detached. We can reach it only by sea.

Our participation in the war offers a way to attach the territory to ours by rail. When we are fighting by the side of the Canadians in France for the cause of democracy, a proposal to build a railway through Canada to Alaska cannot be met with suspicion. It would open for our use and for the allies' use a wealth of material.

How the Canadians would regard such a proposal we can ascertain only by asking. There is no doubt of our desires in the matter. Alaska, not consolidated with the United States, is open to attack from the orient. It is tempting booty. We cannot send troops there by land, and Japan will not permit us a navy in the Pacific large enough to protect transports in their journey.

Commercially an Alaskan railroad would advantage both Canada and the United States. It is probable also that Canadians dislike the thought of Asiatics on this continent quite as much as we do.

A treaty should be entered into with Canada permitting us to build a railroad to Alaska and to transport troops over it in peace and in war.

AMERICA IN THE WORLD CRISIS.

The American people have been distinguished in their history by three outstanding qualities, their initiative or inventiveness, their ability in organization, and their objective energy.

The American inventor has led the world so often that he has become a proverb; from the spinning jenny to the talking machine, during a century which has transformed the material aspect of life, the Yankee, the American, has been the most conspicuous figure. In the organization of vast enterprises and in the confident and resourceful energy with which he has conquered a vast continent in a few generations, he has made the world wonder.

And now that America stands at the crucial point of the greatest struggle of all human history, these great qualities are called for from us as never before. The world is looking on, the scales of fate are trembling in the balance, what will the American do? Is he worthy of his potent name, his unique fame?

We believe he most certainly is. We believe American creative genius, the gift of invention, the gift of swift and masterful organization, the gift of earth moving energy, inspired by the nation's and the world's need, will prove themselves anew.

America has passed the age of brag. It is in the full flush of mature and confident power. No people ever had a greater opportunity to emblazon its name forever on the greatest page of history, and America will do it.

The American people should wake to their great moment. This is the birthtime of vast changes in civilization. It is our privilege to play a foremost; indeed, a decisive part. Every American ought to realize this and eagerly take his place in the mighty task. Every American has such a place, from youth to old age. From the housewife in her kitchen to the president in the White House, all have their share to do, and we believe they will do it well.

We Americans have many faults and shortcomings. There are many defects in our house. But we do not hide them from ourselves. There is greatness in the American heart and brain, and it will disclose itself as never before in this epic time.

The English poet, Kipling, describing the American, says:

> He turns a keen, untroubled face
> Home to the instant need of things.

That strikes the note of our service at this time. We are called upon for a gigantic act of directed power, for action which is as swift as it is well ordered and overwhelming. We come late, but not too late, and victory is within the grasp of our own genius.

RUSSIAN CRAMPS.

The provisional government of Russia says it is a shame that a young man assassinated a major general on May day. It classifies as regrettable incidents outbreaks of bomb throwing, false arrests, and rifle firing in the streets. It severely reprobates these incidents. The government does not know who was to blame for them, but whoever they were they ought to be ashamed of themselves.

There is no doubt about that. They ought to be ashamed. But will they be?

Apparently they are not. Instead they are going about the streets of the capital bearing red flags and demanding the resignation of Milyoukov and the rest of the provisional government. They were irritated because Milyoukov said that Russia would continue the war against Germany. They say they should have been consulted before such a message was sent. They are not sure they want to continue the war against Germany. They are mainly interested not in what they can do to Germany but in what they can do for themselves.

The newly freed Russian sees about him a lot of things he wants. He also sees a lot of things he hates, among which apparently are major generals, admirals, land owners, and police officials. If he feels like it, as many a Russian probably does, he will shoot down these men without regard to their political use to new Russia.

But what the individual Russian wants is likely to be even more potent in directing his acts. Peasants want land. They can get it by taking it away from the land owner. It is probable also that the Russian soldier, also a peasant, wants land. He naturally wants to get in on the grab bag. If choice parcels of farm land are to be had for the taking, the joys of facing the German bayonet will be insignificant. We suppose the Russian soldier prefers the hoe to the bayonet, anyway, just as the Iowans do. When the folks back home are getting wealth in handfuls the firing line may prove especially unpopular.

The Russian government in order to succeed against Germany has got to check these individual aspirations to wealth and comfort. Probably it will succeed some time; perhaps in less than a century—but that will be too late for any use in the present war. Word has gone abroad that the fence around the orchard is down. Young Russia is going after the apples. The apples are green. Russia is having cramps. If Russians heed the admonitions of the elders, the assertions that they ought to be ashamed of themselves, they are unique in the history of humanity.

"ART" BALFOUR.

[From the St. Louis Post Dispatch.]

It appears that in addition to all the other degrees and initials added to his name in Who's Who, the Right Hon. Arthur James Balfour is entitled to the initials B. C. P. (bachelor of cow-punching) conferred upon him by the University of Outdoors, Texas. At one time in his long career the present British commissioner to the United States served apprenticeship to the quirt and branding iron on C. F. Doan's ranch near Vernon, Tex.

Information as to this chapter in his biography is rather vague, but it is enough. We liked him already, but now we like him still more. We have greater confidence in his skill at riding the rough seas of diplomacy since we know he has mastered the navigation of a Texas range horse. We can call him Art or Jim with a free conscience and stake a month's wages against a pair of frayed chaps that he will get through his job and never pull leather once.

"COMRADES IN ARMS"

[Editorial from the London Times.]

THE speeches of the American ambassador and of the British prime minister are instinct with the light of the new dawn which is rising on the earth—the dawn of that new brotherhood of freedom and of peace, through which Mr. Lloyd George prophesies that the great democracies and their allies will march into the full glory of a perfect day. The prophecy may be too bold, the goal for which the noblest of mankind have yearned for generations may be still remote; but these speeches show how fast and how sure the light is gathering since Mr. Wilson spoke.

The great events of the last six weeks, the Russian revolution and the entrance of the United States into what is now more than ever the world war, are too near not to oppress the imagination and the judgment of those who witness them. They overawe us by their magnitude. We feel their immensity; we know that for generations, and perhaps for ages, they may determine not merely the political fortunes but the moral future of mankind. No man living can see them in their true perspective, can measure their greatness or calculate their possibilities.

What we do know is that they are fuller of promise than any events of our time. Nothing but a conviction that the elementary rights of mankind are at stake could have brought the American people into this war. It has taken some time for them to realize the nature of the struggle; the truth, as the allies knew it from the first, seemed to them too horrible, too monstrous, to be true. But Germany persisted in forcing it upon them. Then their conscience awoke. Then they resolved with us that the domination of Prussian "militarism" must be abolished at any cost from the world. That is why, for the first time, a British prime minister yesterday was able to "salute the American nation as comrades in arms."

We rejoice at an event which to many seemed unthinkable a very few years ago, and which Mr. Page, perhaps not mistakenly, regards as "the supreme political event of all history." We rejoice, as Mr. Lloyd George said, not merely for the vast addition which America brings to the resources of the allies but first, and above all, because her appearance at our side "gives the final stamp and seal to the character of the conflict." It demonstrates, as aid from no other quarter could do, that the character which we have attributed to this struggle from the beginning is, in the judgment of a hundred millions of free citizens, its essence—that it is "a struggle against military autocracy throughout the world."

It was for that reason—not merely because of the invasion of Belgium, as Mr. Lloyd George said in a phrase perhaps liable to misinterpretation—that we took our stand beside France. It is "to succour democracy villainously assailed," said Mr. Page, that the great republic is coming to war in the old world. How should she stand aloof in such a quarrel? She is, the ambassador said, "a scheme of life, a plan of freedom, a state of mind, an ideal," and between that ideal and the ideals of "militarism" the gulf fixed is impassable.

With the immortal words of Lincoln at Gettysburg, which we have more than once quoted, in his mind, he declared it is in order "that this ideal shall not now perish from the earth," she comes into this war. She was bound to come, for the allies are fighting today for the same ideal for which the dead who sleep there "died not in vain."

The prime minister traced with powerful strokes the tyranny which Prussian "militarism" has exercised over Europe for almost fifty years. It has been the boast of Prussia since Frederick's time that she is "toujours en vedette"—ever ready to pounce upon her neighbors. She chose to make the new Germany not a state, but an army, and an army directed by a narrow military caste, whom even Germans like Prince Hohenlohe found to be intolerable.

He might have said still more than he did say about the almost unendurable humiliations which, from Bismarck's days onwards, she persistently inflicted upon unhappy France—humiliations borne with a patient dignity that earned the admiration and the sympathy of the world. But it is only since the outbreak of this war, only since she sent a hundred Americans to their death in the Lusitania, that she attempted to extend her lawless arrogance over the Atlantic.

Mr. Wilson was patient—very patient—but when it became clear to the American people that "frightfulness" of this kind is an integral part of German "militarism" the republic rose to her feet, determined not again to rest until the system which sanctions and defends such iniquities is finally extinguished. Von Hindenburg tells the Germans that America carries "no weight." His august master in the first weeks of the war bade them exterminate our "contemptible little army." They will find that the one assurance is as false and as deceptive as the other.

When Germany sues for peace she will find the great republic at the conference table, ready to uphold by her counsels and her vote the principles for which she is now to fight shoulder to shoulder with England, with France, with Italy, with Russia, and with the rest of their allies.

It would indeed have been a "tragedy for mankind," as the prime minister said, had she not won her right to be present there, for there the future of civilization and of the great moral doctrines on which alone true civilization can be based will be settled for generations unborn. Its decisions would be reft of half their weight did they not represent the best thought and the highest aspirations of the new world as of the old. When Monroe, then American minister in Paris, was quitting his post in consequence of some difference with France, he told Thibaudeau that the cloud would soon be scattered.

"I have it," he said, "too much at heart that the two 'greatest republics in the world should live on a good understanding.'" "Our destiny," he added, "is to change the face of the globe; you in the old world and we in the new." A yet grander destiny now opens before them—to change the face of civilization, hand in hand with all the great democracies of the world: with England, then the most determined foe of France, and with Russia, then sunk in the abasement of unchallenged autocracy and of universal serfdom.

OUR JOE MILLER CONTEST.

Tom West of the B. and O. claims that the oldest joke is the one about the Irishman and the three Chinamen who were arrested for drunkenness. When they appeared in the police court the judge asked the first Chinaman his name, "Ah Sin," replied the Chink. "Thirty days," said the judge. The second Chinaman was asked his name and replied: "Ah Ching." "Thirty days," said the judge. The third Chinaman was asked his name and replied: "Ah Chang." He also got thirty days. The Irishman was then asked his name. The Irishman scratched his head and replied: "Ah hell. I suppose I'll get thirty days, anyway."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

HOME TREATMENT OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

OSLER once wrote on the "advantage of a few casts and a little albumin in the urine." The point he made was that if these signs be accepted as warnings and a change of habits instituted life would be prolonged and the disease might be cured.

In a report upon the physical examination of the supposedly well employés of a large establishment it was found that about 30 per cent had Bright's disease, and of these one-half could be cured simply by changing their habits, according to the reporter.

It will be objected by some that Bright's disease is a serious disease and that some cases are necessarily fatal. The answer to the objection is that albumin and casts in the urine are the most important symptom of Bright's disease. In a certain sense they are enough to base a diagnosis on, but that the Bright's disease diagnosed on the basis of these symptoms alone is a very large group, embracing cases that are mild and that tend to recovery, other cases that tend to almost indefinite continuance, and still others that are rapidly progressive.

To tell which subgroup a particular case belongs in requires study of many symptoms other than albumin and casts. It is necessary to know this in order to keep from forming erroneous opinions. Because a given case did well with a certain medicine—patent medicine or regular medicine—it does not follow that another case will be thus cured. Or because one case was rapidly fatal it does not follow that there is no outlook for a given individual who discovers albumin and casts.

Of all diseases Bright's disease is most influenced by habits—of eating and of life generally. This holds true of every form of the disease. If a man has a necessarily fatal form of the disease, if he will live according to the rules, he can add a few months or a few years to his life. If he has a chronic but slowly progressive downward form he can almost live out the expectancy of a man of his years by playing the game fair. If he has a mild form of the disease he can live the law, and he will find that his symptoms will entirely disappear.

The opinion is generally held that when a man with Bright's disease develops the eye disorder dependent upon his disease—albuminuric retinitis—he will not live two years. In a certain series of cases of this type 72 per cent died within one year and 90 per cent within two years. On the other hand, other cases have been known to live more than ten years after the eye symptoms began to develop. Here, too, the question of how long the patient is going to live is largely determined by his conduct.

◆

The relation of conduct to Bright's disease is not limited to the curative side. Many men earn their Bright's disease by improper habits. Some get it from poisoning by lead or alcohol or other poisons, some from infections with ordinary forms of contagion, with rheumatism, or with venereal disease. Some get it from overeating, some from such infractions of the laws of well being as "staying on the streets until late at night engaged in occupations or in associations which are responsible for their disorders." However, what we are now considering is what a man can do by care of himself, his diet, and his habits generally, to prolong his life or to cure himself when he learns that he has Bright's disease.

The Journal of the American Medical Association says in a series of articles on Bright's disease now running:

All positive causes for the chronic nephritis must be investigated, the probable causes, if possible, removed, and anything in the patient's life or situation that would aggravate the condition should be changed. Physical strain, an injurious position of the body, accidental or maintained at work, a faulty bed, abdominal ptosis — everything which tends to interfere with the kidney circulatian—should be corrected. Chronic localized infections should be sought and removed, such as infections of a gall bladder, of a gum, of a tonsil, of a sinus connected with the upper air passages. All removable causes and irritants having been abolished, the treatment of chronic nephritis (Bright's disease) becomes: (1)Control of the diet and (2) of the clothing, (3) care of the skin, (4) hydrotherapeutic measures, (5) exercise, (6) care of the bowels, (7) necessary medication.

The diet of a person with chronic nephritis should be simple in quality and limited in quantity. He should especially refrain from eating heavy meals. While "neither a feast nor a famine" is advisable the former is the more harmful.

The diet must be so regulated that it does not produce indigestion, loss of appetite, overnutrition, or undernutrition. Generally speaking, milk, vegetables, fruits, and bread should form the basis of it. A certain amount of protein is necessary, but the amount should not exceed three ounces a day. Some prefer meat protein, others can get all the protein they need from peas, beans, nuts, oatmeal, and bread. The protein of red meat is no more harmful than that of white meat, that of beef no more harmful than that of fish or fowl.

In thinking of meats it is well to remember that in meats there are purin bodies from which uric acid is formed, and it is well to avoid these as much as possible in selecting and preparing meats. On account of these substances it is better for a nephritic not to eat liver, kidney, sweetbreads, plucks, roe, and, possibly, brains. Most of the chemicals of this group are absent, or nearly so, from boiled beef, soup meat, and canned beef. On the other hand, they are especially plentiful in meat extracts, meat soups, and beef teas. Roast beef juice, the juice of a fine steak, and the tasty extracts generally contain them in plentiful quantity. The quantity of these ingredients harmful to nephritis is about the same in fish, chicken, turkey, lean pork, muton, and beef.

One advantage in taking meat protein in the form of milk is that that fluid does not contain these substances. Neither do the vegetables which we usually eat as a source of protein. The objection to milk as a steady diet is that to get the amount of protein required it is necessary to take almost two quarts of milk during the day. To keep this up indefinitely is to invite indigestion and loss of appetite.

The Journal advises one milk day a week. The diet on this day consists of one full glass of milk (about six ounces) every four hours from early morning until bedtime and no other food or drink of any sort or kind—not even a drink of water. On the other six days the diet is to consist of bread, vegetables, fruit, and a small amount of meat.

The Journal article says: "Game meat should be avoided; fish and shell fish should not be eaten, unless strictly fresh. While cheese is one of the best protein nutriments for a meatless diet in certain instances it causes indigestion and should be avoided. All spices and highly seasoned sauces and dressings, canned foods, and asparagus should be prohibited. Potatoes, turnips, parsnips, carrots, peas, beans, string beans, spinach, cabbage, cauliflower, watercress, and celery may be eaten.

"In a meatless diet the protein nutriment is obtained from eggs, bread, milk, oatmeal, peas, beans, and perhaps cheese. Nuts thoroughly comminuted and swallowed as milky pulp may be freely eaten if not difficult to digest. The amount of cereal, bread, and potatoes which will be of profit to the system depends on the weight of the patient. When an obese person suffers from chronic nephritis the most careful arrangement of diet and exercise is necessary to reduce the weight, to sustain the circulation, and to cause the kidneys the least possible irritation. If the patient is not obese it is desirable that a moderate amount of sugar be allowed. Fruits should usually be included in the diet unless contra indicated by the activity of the bowels and by the causing of gas or hyperacidity. Vinegar and pickles are usually injurious.

The objection to game meat is that it is usually rather juicy and that it is oftentimes overripe when eaten. The objection to fish and shellfish that is not strictly fresh applies to all foods that are a little "high" in flavor.

In the selection of vegetables and fruits it is advisable to avoid those which form benzoic acid. A list of these will be given presently. The advice that nuts be thoroughly chewed is based upon the difficulty of digesting them when they have not been well broken up. If the protein is obtained largely from milk it is advisable to give spinach and other green vegetables as a source of iron.

Since the nephritic must get an unusual proportion of his calories from starches he is in some danger of putting on too much flesh. To diet himself in such a way as to avoid obesity, have plenty of calories in his diet, and not put on flesh presents some difficulties.

Alcohol has some direct harmful effect on the kidneys. It disturbs the digestion, but at the same time an old man accustomed to his nip may not be able to readjust himself to a regimen that contains no alcohol.

Von Noorden gives the following foods as throwing a strain on the kidneys and, therefore, to be eaten sparingly by nephritics: Meat (urea and uric acid) meat broths and meat extracts, meat juices, and large amounts of eggs (purin bodies, especially creatinine); blood, meats containing much blood, summer sausages, blood and liver sausages (hemoglobin of the blood which the kidneys excrete as coloring matter); cranberries, fruits with pits, prunes, plums, and gages (hippuric acid, which is closely related chemically to benzoate of soda).

Bright, who described the disease which bears his name, wrote of the advantage which came from rest in the horizontal position. A nephritic should have plenty of sleep in a good bed in a warm, comfortable, well ventilated room. He should obey the injunction to have one rest day in seven, and he should make of this a day of rest in fact.

He should have a moderate amount of physical exercise, enough to maintain some muscle tone and some suppleness of his joints, but he should be very careful not to overwork or overdo in every way. Fatigue of any sort throws an added strain on his kidneys. Muscle exertion carried to the point of soreness of muscles very materially increases the amount of a chemical which the kidney excretes and which is not easily eliminated. Hard muscle work increases the strain thrown on the kidneys. If the urine is scanty or the heart is weak the patient had better remain quietly in bed until the equilibrium is established. Even the muscle effort required to maintain the upright position may throw on diseased kidneys at the breaking point more strain than they can carry. For a person with a severe nephritis nothing is more helpful than to acquire the habit of going to bed for slight colds below par days and other slight provocations.

Climate is very helpful in the treatment of Bright's disease. The best climate is one in which the air is temperate and even in temperature and fairly humid. The gulf coast and the Pacific coasts are the most suitable portions of the United States. The southern part of Mississippi, Alabama, and Georgia and the west coast of Florida are about the best regions. The eastern coast of Florida, parts of Louisiana and of Texas are almost as satisfactory. Many prefer southern California. The valleys, such as that of the San Joachim and the smaller valleys which lead off therefrom are excellent. The northern part of the Pacific slope is not bad. The southwest east of the mountain ranges is not quite so good. If one comes some distance east the temperature range is too great. Over most of the area the humidity is too low.

The clothing should suit the climate and the individual. The skin must be kept comfortably warm at all times, day and night. This is desirable in part because the perspiration is complemental to the urine. Some part of the kidney work can be done by the sweat glands. In part it is because a proper amount of the blood must be kept in the skin blood vessels. It is highly undesirable to have an undue proportion of the blood in the internal organs, and especially in the kidneys.

CONDUCTOR ERRED.

Chicago, April 27.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I boarded an Armitage avenue car at Albany avenue and rode east to Western avenue, where I got on car No. 5304, going north. Conductor No. 9206 refused to transfer us, saying we could not go north on Western avenue. He was very insulting in his remarks, and threatened to call an officer because I refused to pay another fare. I wanted to get to Lawrence and Lincoln avenues and the conductor said I should have transferred north on California, then east on Lawrence.

FROM THE FARMER'S SIDE.

Seward, Neb., May 1.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—While THE TRIBUNE is beating its tomtoms over the masterly manner in which it discovered some cars of eggs recently and began an investigation that has started the price of eggs tumbling, let the man who produces the eggs have a word to say. For its services in producing a panic in the egg trade the cold storage men could well afford to present THE TRIBUNE with a million dollars, if they have not already done so. This is the time of year when eggs go into cold storage, later to come out at a somewhat enhanced price.

THE TRIBUNE has doubtless caused the price of eggs to drop 10 cents a dozen to the producer, bringing their price to him at about 20 cents. If THE TRIBUNE cares to experience the exhilaration of getting rich quick let him feed $60 a ton feed to hens and sell their eggs at 20 cents a dozen. But this howl of THE TRIBUNE was exactly what the egg trust needed just when the storage season is beginning. Next winter, when these egg kings bring out their eggs for your readers to eat, price $1 a dozen, THE TRIBUNE, notwithstanding the fact that hens do not lay in the winter, will throw out headlines on the rapacity of the farmer in charging such cutthroat prices for eggs.

The city papers are full of intimations that the prices farmers shall receive for the crop they are striving like slaves to produce are to be fixed by the government. If the sapient editors of those papers will study the market reports of live stock just now they will find the markets flooded with immature and half fatted stuff. This is the farmer's answer to this intimation. With this calamity impending he dare not feed this stock through on high priced grain, only to see the packers gobble it up next winter at ruinous prices, while they make profits amounting to four times their capitalization, as they did last year.

The consequence of this agitation will come near to being a famine in meats next year, with no benefit to the consumer. The farmer who owns a farm, with stock worth, say, $20,000, gets about $350 a year wages for managing this enterprise, and yet the metropolitan press fills its readers with the belief that he is making larger returns on his investment than Armour, who made 400 per cent last year. But the metropolitan press is altogether wise and the farmer altogether foolish. Allah be praised.

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

MAY

SPRING.

THE green film of the woods waits a warm wave for its outbreaking. The Prince Charming will find the Sleeping Beauty and, breaking through the briars and dried thorns, the morass, the strangle hold of winter, will touch the buds and they will be leaves. A green world will come where a dead world was.

Trilliums are lily white above the brown earth, but processes hesitate for a dramatic effect which shall be as the raising of a curtain, the theatric moment when the expectant audience finds that the delay is about to have its justification and effect its supreme moment.

The ovenbird sings in the woods at sunrise and the world is in song, a vibrant, pulsing world, displaying itself in beauty, in strength and joy.

Life is at the east window again, expectant, hopeful, and entranced, willing to abide and accept, to hope and enjoy. By ways of growing colors the recreative method goes from the white and pink of the hepatica, from the cool white of the bloodroot and the lily white of the trillium to the red bud of the wild rose.

Life as it advances deepens its colors. The view from the east window is virginal. That from the west is full of experience, and experience is not white.

Mary Mac Lane Pops Up Again, Ego Oozing Out

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store were:

WAR.

"The Plattsburg Manual", (Century), by Lieuts. O. O. Ellis and E. B. Carey, U. S. A.

FICTION.

"Mr. Britling Sees It Through" (Macmillan), by H. G. Wells.

"Wildfire" (Harpers), by Zane Grey.

"In the Wilderness" (Stokes), by Robert Hichens.

"Changing Winds" (Macmillan), by St. John Ervine.

POETRY.

Mary MacLane

MARY MAC LANE again! After fifteen years of silence she looks into her heart, thirty-odd years sophisticated, and writes down where all may read all that she sees there. "I, Mary MacLane" (Stokes) she calls the chronicle, and over every page there broods a vociferous "I-ness." It is an open clinic of a soul and a body and a mind with an introspective Self wielding the skilled knife, and the world is called in to see the soul squirm, the body writhe, and the mind wriggle. There are no anesthetics administered.

How she has changed, how she has grown since those days fifteen years ago, when she invocated the devil I can't tell. I have only the vaguest memories of "The Story of Mary MacLane." I was too young to read it either with understanding or interest. I remember only that some of the older girls in the school went around constantly urging the kind devil to deliver them from something or somebody, that they had a pompous little secret club and called themselves the M. M. L.'s, and that if it hadn't been for Mary MacLane and her confessions I should never have learned how to sew a button on with a safety pin, which was the only secret of the M. M. L.'s that was divulged. I didn't realize that it was all in a book. It seemed like some part of the social system of the universe, like the G. A. R. which made Decoration day the most gorgeous memory of the year by marching in beautiful blue soldier clothes, or like the Masons, of whom I knew two awe inspiring things, that if you wanted to belong—and you never could if you were a girl—you had to ride a goat, a bucking broncho of a goat, and you had to go to every funeral of every great man and wear a fancy hat with a long white feather in it.

Mine not to reason why. G. A. R., or the Masons, or the M. M. L.'s. Mine simply to accept them as one does the fact of molasses and sulphur in the spring.

Reading "I, Mary Mac Lane," I am glad of that memory. It rather cleared up Mary for me, and saved me from reading the 19 year Marie Bashkirtsheffing of the young Mary Mac Lane. If a group of girls in a grammar school could find in her outpourings of soul something that banded them together surely she couldn't have been the strange, wild, unrivaled Self that she thought she was. There must have been something in her of the foundational young girlhood.

That's just the point about her new book. Over and over she declares that there is no one in the world like Mary Mac Lane, that no woman ever thought her thoughts, that she is the essence of herself alone. There is nothing startlingly abnormal about her except the extent of her knowledge of herself. And yet there will probably be the same M. M. L.'s spring up, hundreds of little groups, hundreds of individual M. M. L.'s who will read "I, Mary MacLane," take her word for the fact that she is abnormal, "different," "fascinating," and say to themselves, "I, too. . . ." And then they will begin to introspect. Any woman who will sit long hours, as she does, analyzing herself, will come to amazing conclusions, will start in her mind thoughts whose existence she wouldn't have suspected.

Mary MacLane isn't "queer." She's the essential woman analyzed to the nth power. As for the literary quality of the book—you see, she insists first of all that she is a personality, and after that a writer, and so one must talk about her personality first—there are some exquisite bits of poetry in it, prose poetry outimaging the imagists because the images she draws do not need a pictorial glossary. She unquestionably has a gift of gab with her pen. She's subtle, keen, humorous, and a chooser of picturesque words which make a day in her chronicle worth, dictionally, a cycle in most prose of today. She has some exquisite phantasies of thought, some satirical leaps of imagination.

There is a story of the Finn woman who cleans for her, who drinks pure alcohol to attain her ecstasies, and Mary Mac Lane says that she and the Finn woman are alike, for she grows drunken on John Keats' poetry and attains the same ecstasy. "I like to think there's the same ambrosial food in the demon rum for Josephina as in the Grecian Urn for me."

But even when she is writing most beautifully there intrudes the assertion that she is different, and when she talks about being unlike any one else in the world it sounds exactly like every other confession of every other woman who has ever written for the popular magazines. There is gold in "I, Mary MacLane," but you have to dig through barren earth to find it.

The song of May these latter days is the song of the moving van, of the bucket of paint, of the sacred scrub brush, and the threnody of old family friendly curtains doomed to spend the rest of their days as dust cloths. It is the pæan of glistening new enamel, the melodic color harmonies of a new rug for the living room, and a new shade for the family library lamp, the epic of the triumph of the new and beautiful over the old and ugly. There isn't one of us who doesn't sing the song in some of its forms. The public libary has a list posted this week of books which will help us to sing it more successfully, books on interior decoration, on lamps, on draperies, on color schemes for small apartments, on the choosing of rugs, on every subject related to house refurbishing.

Sinclair Lewis, the mixer of that literary cocktail of youth and adventure, "The Trail of the Hawk," is sitting back in his easy chair and watching the sales of his new book, "The Job," jump up like the price of potatoes. "The Job" can almost be called the work of a Chicago author, for Mr. Lewis was here last spring for six weeks, and he had a real job every morning in a real estate office. He did it to get the dialect of the real estate business. Sinclair Lewis was born in Sauk Center, Minn., and came to Chicago to visit when he was a small boy. And he says that he will never be able to get a proper perspective on Chicago; it will always be the Great City of his childhood to him, despite his years at Yale and his being now a naturalized New Yorker. His six weeks in Chicago in the spring was part of a fifteen months' odyssey. A year ago last January he gave up his job as editorial head of a publishing firm and started his new job of writing "The Job" and of seeing this land of the free from Dan to Beersheba. For fifteen months he was a joyous adventurer, and he returned to New York just in time to see the last copy of "The Job" come off the presses.

A reader wants to know whether Clemence Dane, author of "Regiment of Women" (Macmillan), ever taught school. Nope. She never did. She intended to be a painter; studied at the Slade and Dresden. "I meant to make it my profession," she said once to an English interviewer, and added with a frankness unusual in the profession, "but it didn't pay." When she was 20, which was eight years ago, she went on the stage, where she played villainesses. She began "Regiment of Women" when she was 25, and it was her first attempt at noveling, although it doesn't sound like a first novel. She's English, you know.

"The Gods of the Mountain" and "A Night at an Inn," by Lord Dunsany, are two of the three greatest one act plays in English, according to Clayton Hamilton. The third one is "Riders to the Sea," by J. M. Synge, and Mr. Hamilton says that he "will not quarrel with the choice of any critic for the verdict of uttermost supremacy." The delightful Portmanteau players have introduced Lord Dunsany to all of the wistful minded folk who wander in strange fields of the imagination in search of spring flowers. "Five Plays," by Lord Dunsany, including "The Gods of the Mountain," may be had in the Modern Drama Series (Little Brown), and his "Fifty-one Tales," reminiscent in their style if not entirely in their fancy of the incomparable "Fables" of Robert Louis Stevenson, is also available. Edward Hale Bierstadt, in answer to the questions which naturally get themselves asked of Lord Dunsany (and which are quite unanswerable, for the dramatist is a shy man), has written "Dunsany the Dramatist" (Little Brown).

Louise S. Hasbrouck, author of "Israel Putman" (Appleton), is doing something very interesting in the literary business, writes a correspondent from New York. "It is a sort of all around the mulberry bush effect. She has taken Fabre's 'The Life of the Spider,' and from it she has arranged a story for children, the first in the series to be called 'Stories from the Insects,' which Dodd-Mead is going to publish. Miss Hasbrouck told me that Dodd-Mead accepted the stories at once, but decided to submit them to the translator of Fabre's work for his opinion before publication. The translator was so enthusiastic about them he intends to translate Miss Hasbrouck's stories into French for the benefit of the younger generation over there. Miss Hasbrouck will also have stories from Fabre's 'The Life of the Fly,' 'The Life of the Caterpillar,' and 'The Homing Wasps.'"

The All-Nation Car
Combining Ideals from Everywhere
Gathered by John W. Bate

The Mitchell has long commanded a very high place abroad. All the roads of the world have proved Mitchell endurance.

In 1913, John W. Bate spent a year among European makers, to study their ideals and their standards. And he has driven cars practically all over America to study conditions here.

Cars Too Light

Mr. Bate believes that the average car is too light. The Light Six trend went too far.

So he has worked three years on Mitchells to double the margins of safety. The old standard was 50 per cent over-strength—the new is 100 per cent.

Over 440 parts are built of toughened steel. All safety parts are vastly oversize. All parts which get a major strain are built of Chrome-Vanadium. Gears are tested for 50,000 pounds per tooth. The cantilever springs are so built that not one has broken in two years.

The result, we believe, is a lifetime car. Several Mitchells have already run over 200,000 miles apiece. But such standards mean much added cost in these days of high steel.

How We Pay It

Men wonder how we pay for all the Mitchell extras. In addition to 100 per cent over-strength, there are 31 extra features. And this year we add 24 per cent to the cost of luxury and beauty.

Yet one Mitchell Six—Mitchell Junior—sells for $1150 at factory. The other far undersells any car you can class with it.

A $4,000,000 Saving

The reason lies in a $4,000,000 factory saving, due to Bate efficiency methods.

John W. Bate is a famous efficiency expert. He has spent years and millions on this Mitchell plant. Every building, every machine has been adapted to build this one type economically.

His methods will save us on this year's output about $4,000,000. That is what pays for these extras. The 24 per cent added luxury is paid for by savings in our new body plant.

All Cars In One

In the latest Mitchells Mr. Bate combines the best from all cars in one. His endurance standards, we believe, are the highest yet adopted. His luxury standards touch the very limit.

Our body designers studied 257 cars in creating these Mitchell bodies. You will find here nearly all attractions in a single model. You will find 31 features which nearly all cars omit.

One Size for $1150

The 7-passenger Mitchell—a most impressive car—sells for $1460 at factory. Yet it excels, in many ways, cars which cost much more.

See these extra values. Judge for yourself what they mean to you. If you do that, you will want a Bate-built car.

Touring Today? Try This Simple Run to La Porte

By Sheppard Butler.

SUCH motorists hereabouts as may be depending on the pundits of the newspapers for advice as to touring activity have been getting conflicting counsel of late. One writer on automobile topics warns that keeping to the boulevards is the only safe course in spring. No twenty mile drive outside the city limits, he maintains, is to be made these early season days without getting into a mudhole.

Another urges the week end driver to fill up the tank and go as far as the spirit moves him in any direction. The roads, he says, are dry, hard, and safe.

Neither, I suspect, is precisely right. There are still many roads to the south, west, and north of Chicago which the tourist will do well to avoid until the latter part of May. Being pulled out of the mud is not a stimulating experience, nor does paying a farmer for the loan of his team of horses fit in with the program of economy urged by our overlords.

◆

But there are good roads aplenty for a wide variety of one day tours right now. The writer made one such trip two weeks ago, and though the day was punctuated with an occasional shower, there was no hint of touring discomfort.

Of course, the route lay into Indiana. That is the one safe haven for the motorist in spring. It was a simple, easily followed trail, picking up the Lincoln way at Schererville, Ind., and following its markings to Laporte, reached about noon, where a 'highly important item awaits the tourist—to wit, an excellent hotel dinner.

The distance there and back, about 150 miles, is just enough to be made comfortably in a day. Your dyed in the wool touring fan, who gets up with the sun, will have time for frequent stops and a return well before sundown. Starting in more leisurely fashion, as we did, at about 9 in the morning, means more or less continuous driving or making the outskirts of Chicago after dark, but neither is a hardship.

◆

Every foot of the road is good, the first twenty miles and occasional later stretches being over pavement, and the rest macadam or stone. At no point is the surface worn enough to make fast driving unsafe, though on a few short stretches a moderate speed will be found conducive to comfort.

It is by no means a scenic route, such as may be found on many drives out of Chicago, but there's plenty to see. Glimpsing the placid acres of the Indiana farmers, in itself, is a tonic for folks who have seen nothing but skyscrapers and "L" trains all winter.

Valparaiso, its exotic name meaning "vale of Paradise," is interesting as having one of the largest and least known college populations in the world. More than a third of its inhabitants are students at Valparaiso university, which has a roster of about 5,000. Many little lakes lie near the town, among them Flint, Long, and Sager's lakes. And through the city runs the old Sac trail, said to have been followed by La Salle.

Beyond, just east of Westville, is Door Village, on the site of a fort built during the Black Hawk war, when word was sent from Fort Dearborn that the Indians were about to attack the settlement. A monument marks the site.

Laporte, too, suggests lore of the first Americans, its main street being built on an old Indian trail between Detroit and points in Illinois. Round about lie Clear, Stone, Lily, and other lakes, dotted with summer resorts and connected by beautiful drives, and nearby is the Belle Gunness farm, still a mecca for the murder fans.

Should you return after dark, as we did, you will encounter one of the most grimly magnificent sights to be seen around Chicago. Rolling over a broad roadway built through the middle of Lake George, you the confronted, across the water, by the gaunt, dim shapes and flame-lit clouds of smoke that mark the mills and refineries at Whiting and South Chicago. They're sordid in the daytime, but at night they look like one of Dore's illustrations for Dante's Inferno.

THERE AND BACK

Pick Up the Lincoln Highway at Schererville, Ind., and Follow It to La Porte—It's an Ideal One Day Motor Jaunt, and This Is All the Guide You Need.

Mileage.
0.0	Jackson and Michigan boulevards. Go south on Michigan, east on Garfield boulevard, through Washington park, the Midway, and Jackson park, leaving the latter on South Shore drive, along boundary of South Shore Country club. Follow main travel route into
23.9	Four corners. Turn left.
25.9	HESSVILLE. Turn right.

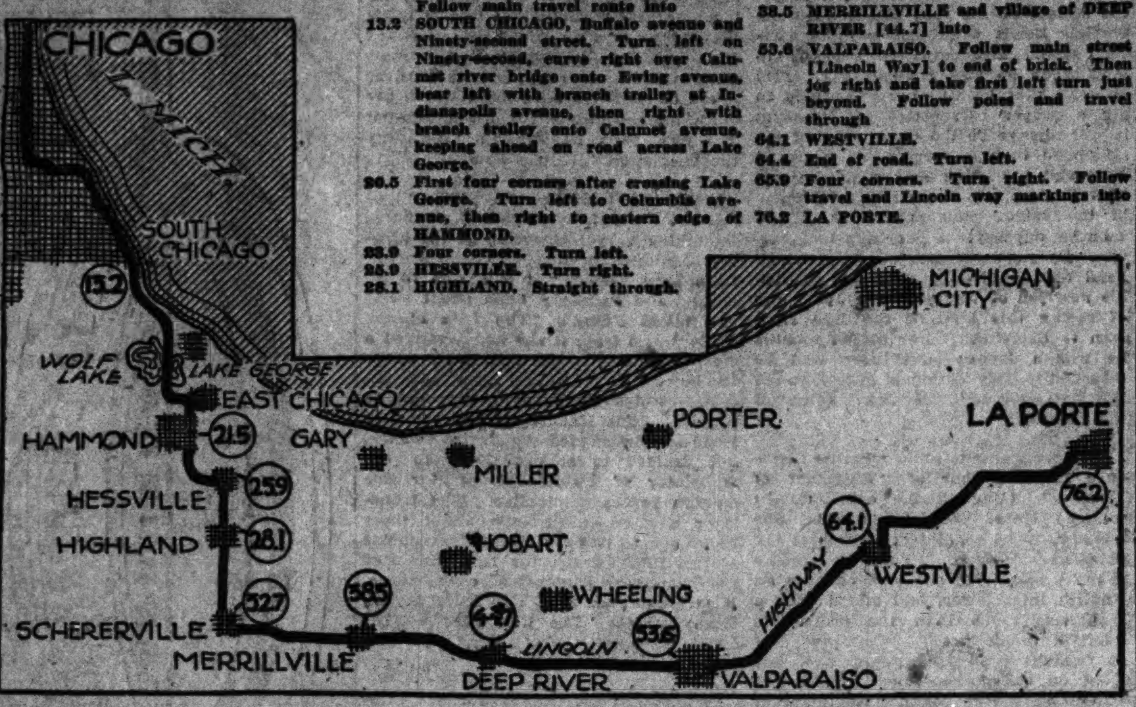
38.5	MERRILLVILLE and village of DEEP RIVER [44.7] into
53.6	VALPARAISO. Follow main street [Lincoln Way] to end of brick. Then jog right and take first left turn just beyond. Follow poles and travel through
64.1	WESTVILLE.
64.4	End of road. Turn left.
65.9	Four corners. Turn right. Follow travel and Lincoln way markings into
76.2	LA PORTE.



Test New Highway.

An automobile sociability tour through Kansas, Oklahoma, and Missouri will start from Colorado Springs on Tuesday under the auspices of the Colorado Springs chamber of commerce and the Manitou Commercial club. One object of the trip is to demonstrate the practicability of the newly organized Albert Pike highway as a direct touring route between southeastern points and the Pike's peak region. Eleven days will be spent on the trip by between thirty and forty business and professional men, who propose a loop tour through Dodge City, Kas.; Oklahoma City, Joplin, Kansas City, Wichita, and Salina, Kas.

Exhaust Echoes

Says Elmer Apperson: "The surest way to handicap our fighting forces would be to permit a disorganization of our commercial system through depression. So far as our company is concerned, we are going ahead just as we have done every year in the past. The man out on the front in the trench or on the sea cannot win unless he knows that he is being backed up by the men at home, in the field, and in the factory."

The Schillo Motor Sales company, distributors of the Hupmobile and Mercer, moved last week from 1452 Michigan avenue to new quarters at 2252 Michigan avenue. The latter is a temporary location, pending the completion of permanent headquarters in the twenty-three hundred block.

At the Reo factory in Lansing, Mich., the matter of most importance just now is the filling of a government order for Reo trucks. "They told me down there," reports Herman J. Staebler, Chicago branch manager, "that these trucks must be turned out immediately whether any one else gets service or not."

◆

"And now," says Otto C. Owen, "it's the Dort. We've evaded it until now, but it had to come. Hereafter Dorts will cost $30 more than before. It's a comfortably small increase, though, and I don't think it will keep buyers away."

◆

"We are particularly interested in the forthcoming motorized circus," says B. G. Koether, general sales manager of the Hyatt Roller Bearing company, "because of the performance record which it is bound to establish for our roller bearings. No other part of a truck can possibly be subjected to harder service. Hyatt bearings are a part of every truck in the circus fleet."

E. W. Fend of the Chicago Willard storage battery branch has been promoted to the post of assistant manager of agencies at the main office in Cleveland.

B. A. Small, a traveling salesman, uses a Scripps-Booth instead of the railroad to travel between San Francisco and San Diego, Cal. After covering more than 22,000 miles he reports that he is still on his original set of tires and has averaged twenty-seven and two-third miles to the gallon of gasoline. Which, it may be submitted, is some average.

This Proves It to Me

Many hard-headed business men were skeptical when told that the Truckmobile would more than double their trading area. But the actual results have PROVED it to them. They know now that they can reach more than twice as many customers by using the Truckmobile than they could by the old horse and wagon system, and at less than half the cost. One Truckmobile will do the work of three single horse-and-wagon teams or two double teams. It will do this work quicker, better and cheaper, because it is 100% efficient at all times. Your deliveries are always on time if you use the

TRUCKMOBILE $350 and a Ford Chassis Old or New

The Truckmobile is a one and one-half ton truck attachment brought to its highest degree of efficiency. It is scientifically designed and built by real engineers on correct engineering principles. Compare the Truckmobile point by point with any other truck attachment on the market. Note its big points of superiority of construction and you will be convinced that the Truckmobile solves your delivery problem. The Truckmobile is perfectly balanced, and because it is, it will give you more mileage per gallon of gasoline and more tire mileage than any other truck attachment.

See It at the Coliseum This Week

Examine the Truckmobile at the Great Central Market Used Automobile Show at the Coliseum this week, in spaces 77 and 78. You will find that it is the widest, longest, strongest truck attachment made. Its extra width eliminates sidesway which is so harmful to bearings. Its length, 133 inches, adds to the loading capacity, and it makes the Truckmobile the easiest riding and easiest steering of all truck attachments. If you are undecided which car to buy for your family—

If you are not a mechanical expert and are unable to discern the great difference in materials and construction—

And, if your pride demands a car of beauty, style and comfort as well as utility—

Then you can safely place your confidence in the company that has earned its leadership by satisfying people exactly like you.

There is safety for the single buyer in Overland's sum-totaled production of 200,000 cars this year; in the millions Overland saves through economies possible only with our great volume.

There is safety for you in the size and integrity of The Willys-Overland Company, with its more than $68,000,000 assets, its highly specialized factories, its efficient methods that make possible better cars for less money.

You can wisely let the fact that Willys-Overland dealer-contracts call for 200,000 cars this year influence you to choose an Overland. The weight of these numbers is convincing.

And there are more than 4,000 dealers and factory branches at your service.

What greater endorsement can you find of the public's preference for and pride in Overland cars than our growth from 465 cars in 1908 to 142,807 cars in 1916?

Come in and let us show you the most comprehensive line of motor cars ever built by any one producer.

Consider especially the remarkable value offered in the Overland Big Four at $895. The building of over 300,000 similar Overlands has contributed directly to the development and perfecting of this model—consider the element of safety there is for you in all this.

The LITTLE THINGS THAT HELP

When Baby Goes a-Motoring.

A Chicago manufacturer has devised a motor crib to provide comfortable outings for the baby with minimum of bother on the part of grownups. It is attached to the rear of the front seat in touring cars, with a spring connection to the back seat or floor of the car. Thus suspended, it sways easily, according to its maker, receives no bumps, and leaves plenty of room for those who sit behind. An adjustable hood affords protection from sun, wind, or rain. When baby stays home the device may be folded compactly out of the way or used to carry lunches and other packages.

For Rust in Radiators.

Rust and other forms of corrosion on the walls of water jackets and in the radiator forms an insulation which keeps heat in the engine and prevents the cooled surface of the radiator from coming in contact with the water, leading to further overheating. This causes more oil consumption, reduced mileage, and worn bearings. A manufacturer down east claims to have produced a successful compound for preventing the formation of rust in radiators. It is sold in the form of small soluble tablets to be dropped into the radiator after it has been carefully drained and filled with clean water. The action, it is declared, is the same in all temperatures and is not affected by anti-freeze solutions in winter.

A Touring Convenience.

A rubber water bucket that can be folded up and chucked away into a small space is one of the newest accessories marketed by a big tire manufacturing concern. It measures 9x1½ inches when folded, holds two and one-half gallons, and is equipped with handles at top and bottom, a spout for easy pouring, and a screen for straining. Pierce-Arrow cars are to carry it hereafter as regular equipment.

Trunks for Any Car.

A Milwaukee firm is now specializing in the making of trunks of odd shapes to fit convenient places on any make of automobile. They are designed to be dust proof and water proof—a highly important matter in touring—and are conveniently built to be strapped on in all sorts of unexpected spots.

Motorcycles Are Gaining.

Registration figures show that 270,500 motorcycles are now in use in the United States. Sixty thousand, it is said, will be added to the number this year—the largest yearly production the motorcycle manufacturers have known.

REO

The World's Greatest Truck—We Verily Believe

THE SPHERE OF USEFULNESS of this ¾-ton Reo "Hurry-Up Wagon" is practically limitless.

ITS ADAPTABILITY to a multitude of conditions is wonderful.

SEEMS AS IF there's no line of business, in city or country, but has need for this 1500-pound Reo.

FOR EXAMPLE, a certain business house was figuring, recently, on a truck equipment.

WHICH KIND OF TRUCK was the question—what capacity—what speed.

SEEMED AS IF a heavy truck—say a ton and a half or so—for some of the work. But then again there were those times when the loads wouldn't be sufficient to justify pounding the heavy one over the road.

TWO TRUCKS were not needed—and yet—well it was the same problem so many are confronted with these days.

FINALLY WE SUGGESTED that on the whole this ¾-ton Reo would be ideal for the work.

ON OCCASION it could be loaded to a ton, if necessary.

REO TRUCKS are made "50 per cent oversize" in all vital parts to protect the owner against just those cases.

EQUIPPED WITH PNEUMATIC TIRES this Reo Speed Wagon can cover ground twice as rapidly as a big solid-tired truck.

SO, CARRYING half the load at a trip, it can still handle just as many tons in a day's work.

AND THAT PROVED to be the ideal equipment in that case.

AND SO IT GOES. Seems as if every day develops some new use, some unexpected demand for this ¾-ton Reo.

IF YOUR PROBLEM is difficult to solve, may we suggest that you consult with us.

YOU MAY DO SO in confidence that we will advise correctly whether or not a Reo will be the best truck for you.

YOU KNOW THE REO WAY, and so you know we would not, for the sake of selling a truck or a fleet of them, place a Reo where it would give less than superlative service.

WE'LL BE GLAD to talk it over with you anyway. Our experience is broad and may help.

GOODRICH

BLACK SAFETY TREADS

Their Merit Proved and Certified by Goodrich Test Cars - - -

TESTED Tires, tried and true as assayed gold, are Goodrich Black Safety Treads. The name Goodrich on them, is a seal of Certified Merit, tested and found twenty-four karat pure in the great outdoor laboratory of Goodrich Test Car Fleets.

No theoretical innovation of a chemist, no chance idea of a factory foreman, these matchless fabric tires. Millions of miles of rough riding produced them. A Veteran of the Road is every Goodrich Tire though not a scratch mars its brand new tread.

For Goodrich never markets an experiment, whether a hot water bottle, a rubber belt, or a tire. Each must prove itself worthy to bear the Goodrich name in an ordeal of wear-and-tear tests.

The Goodrich Tire Test

And How test a tire except by grinding out its Merit or Want of Merit on the road? Goodrich so asks itself, and answers with its Test Car Fleets.

Whenever Goodrich rubber making knowledge and experience originates new tires, the Test Car Fleets take them, and under light cars and heavy cars, springy cars and dead weight cars, batter their Merit against the teeth of the road. Two sets of drivers, sixteen hours a day, week after week, maul them over the sand, rock and gravel of America's worst routes.

Test Cars Tour U. S.

The worst roads, the trying climate of one section of our country are Not Enough test for Goodrich Tires. Test Car Fleets in six different regions grind out the Truth about them.

The Pacific Fleet, hammering the granite highways of the Sunset coast;
The Mountain Fleet, battling the rocky trails of Yellowstone and Glacier Parks;
The Prairie Fleet, scouring the roads around Kansas City;
The Lake Fleet, ploughing sand stretches of Minnesota;
The Dixie Fleet, plying 'neath the sun of the South;
The Atlantic Fleet, crunching the hills and valleys of New York and New England—
All belabor Goodrich Tires in the National Test of Tire Tests.

Only tires which measure up to months of the Test Car Test through millions of miles, Goodrich experts judge fit to bear the Goodrich name, and be sold to you. That is why Goodrich Black Safety Treads of the Unit Mold, the fabric tires of Unbroken Cure, hold no risk for you.

The Test car has taken all risk out of the construction. Goodrich Fair Treatment takes all risk out of the purchase.

MOTORDOM'S MAN of the HOUR

EVERY industry has its "big men." The automobile industry has developed many of them, and within the circle of those who build motor cars they have an esoteric fame that amounts almost to worship.

To the outsider their names often mean little—so little as to bring stares of blank amazement to the faces of the faithful in the automobile world when they meet the query: "Brown? Yeh, I've heard the name. Who is he? Sells something, doesn't he?"

But now and then a man emerges and by sheer force of personality impresses himself on the imaginations of folk who read the papers and talk things over on the "L" going home. A builder of automobiles has come into the public eye like that in recent months. A plain man, versed in the homely ways of bolts and steel bars, and looking like a quiet, kindly, prosperous farmer, he has developed suddenly into a national figure, a seer of sound wisdom, a leader of thought in a time of peril.

Howard E. Coffin

© by Underwood & Underwood

Howard E. Coffin was just an automobile man when the administration made him a member of the naval consulting board. Though widely known in his own profession, his name to the general public meant merely something that one saw new and then in motor car advertisements. Others, far more famous, were appointed to that board. But somehow little by little Coffin has become the dominant figure.

With untiring energy he has plunged into the work of national preparedness in a fashion that technically trained business men seldom achieve. Lawyers, soldiers, diplomats, are usually the men who see the vision; here's a mechanical engineer to whom the government, plunged into the greatest war in history, is turning frankly for advice as to matters of national policy.

What they think of him down east is indicated in this recent editorial comment of the New York Evening Sun:

"These words of Mr. Howard Coffin should be printed in letters of fire and put up against the sky, to be read by every citizen daily so long as the war lasts:

"'We need prosperity in war time even more than in peace.

"'Business depressions are always bad, but doubly so when we have a fight on our hands.

"'The declaration of war can have no real evil effect on business.

"'We need more business, not less.

"'There is real danger in hysteria.

"'Indiscriminate economy will be ruinous.'

"There is the challenge of absolute sanity to every one in the country from the president to the humblest toiler. The object of every one should be not merely to wage a successful war against Germany, but to wage it in such a manner that no harm shall come to our own country. The true method of accomplishing this is to carry on the operations of the war with the minimum of disturbance to our domestic affairs."

Coffin is only 43. From his native town in Ohio he went to the University of Michigan, where he took a course in the engineering department and afterward spent five years in the postal service. Then he became interested in the "horseless carriages" of the early '90s and produced one of the first steam propelled automobiles.

Since then he has worked continuously as a designed and inventor of motor cars. From 1902 to 1905 he was chief engineer of the Olds Motor works. Then came like positions with the E. R. Thomas Detroit company and the Chalmers Detroit company. He is now vice president of the Hudson Motor Car company.

In the days of the old Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers, which paid tribute to the owner of the Selden patents, he did significant work in inducing manufacturers to stop working at cross purposes and placing the American automobile on a meritorious, world wide basis. For some time he was president of the Society of Automobile Engineers.

He has been known in the past as "the best known man in the industry next to Henry Ford." Now he's acquiring a wider reputation.

VOICE of the MOTORIST

Someone's Always Slighted.

Cincinnati, O., April 24.—[Automobile Editor of The Tribune.]—The automobile department of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE, I take it, purposes to inform the public on automobile matters, and I presume you will not take it amiss if I call your attention to your map on "National Roads for National Defense," appearing in your issue of last Sunday.

The map purports to show the Dixie highway, but does not. It shows only the western route of the projected highway, a route which, according to the best information, is not yet ready for through travel. It does not show the eastern route of the highway, an integral unit of it. This route is not yet ready for through travel, either. But both routes will ultimately be, and both routes are a part of the Dixie highway.

Your map is therefore unfair to the people of Ohio, Kentucky, and Tennessee, who have appropriated, and in many instances expended, large sums of money for the completion of the eastern route. I might add that but for a five mile stretch a few miles southeast of Berea, Ky., the eastern route is now generally travelable, and by fall will be entirely travelable, if present plans do not miscarry.

As further information, a massmeeting of Kentucky good roads people will be held at Berea and Richmond, Ky., May 18, participated in by nearly 1,000, at which these road building plans will receive a great impetus for completion.

It may interest you to know that the directors of the Dixie Highway association, recognizing the importance of the eastern route and its nearing completion, have selected Cincinnati for their annual meeting, May 20-21.

Your map likewise fails to show the National Old Trails road. I am not greatly interested in defense of this road, which, I am informed, is as nearly complete as is the Lincoln highway, but I wish to call your attention to the highly improved character of the National road across Ohio, which is being rebuilt largely with state and national aid. This road is not shown on your map, though it is an integral part of a great transcontinental highway system.

R. E. LOGSDON,
Secretary Hamilton County Dixie Highway Council.

EDITOR'S NOTE—The map referred to was prepared not by "The Tribune" but by President Henry B. Joy of the Lincoln Highway association, who designed it merely to indicate in a general way how his proposed boundary road would tap existing main routes of travel. Many marked trails were omitted, including Illinois' own share of the Dixie highway. A map which included every marked trail in the United States would be a blur of lines interlacing so thickly as to be illegible.

Rowe, Young & Cooley, who sell Westcotts, are expecting the arrival of a new model during the week. Various refinements have been made in body designs and chassis. The new "six" will carry no grease cups whatever.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

The Lozier Motor company of Illinois, a branch of the factory establishment at Detroit, opened a new salesroom last week at 2807 Michigan avenue. The branch superintends the distribution of Loziers in a large section of the middle west.

Two fifty horsepower Moline-Knight motors have just completed their first two years as motive power for operating the town electric lighting plant at Kalona, Ia. It is estimated that during this time they would have propelled a fully loaded touring car 250,000 miles at more than thirty miles an hour—and the Kalona authorities report that the engines, because of their sleeve valve construction, are more powerful and run more smoothly now than when they were first installed.

The Dearborn Truck company announces a new series of truck units, designed for use in combination with any standard pleasure car. Its product formerly was adapted for connection only with the Ford chassis. The old unit remains at $350, while the new is priced at $450.

The Service Motor Truck company moved last week into new quarters at 2617 Wabash avenue.

The newly organized Hudson racing team is ready, the five "super-six specials" having been pronounced complete and the personnel of the drivers and mechanicians' organization filled to the last man. Ralph Mulford and Ira Vail will be the principals among the drivers and the team will carry Billy Chandler, Jack Gable, and Ralph Kriplen—the latter until recently a driver of Commodore Pugh's "Disturber IV,"—as extra men. Arthur J. Hill, Dario Resta's former business adviser, is manager. A specially designed railway coach has been built to carry cars and team to the scenes of their hoped for conquests.

MARION-HANDLEY
THE SIX PRE-EMINENT

Now Is the Time to Carefully Weigh and Judge Values

The Marion-Handley is a splendid value. It is backed by an organization of skillful and experienced men—and a sane, sensible, progressive policy.

Men who have had in mind $2000 cars have decided in favor of the Marion-Handley at $1650. This is because, unquestionably, no $2000 car offers more essential features than the Marion-Handley Six.

It is powerful—a power that is wonderfully smooth, dependable and quiet—60 H. P. Continental Motor.

It is beautiful. It has marvelously attractive lines; it is perfectly balanced and proportioned; handsomely and carefully finished; harmonious and artistic down to the last detail.

The specially designed frame has unusual strength. Its scientific construction gives light weight and extreme rigidity at the same time. You know that a strong frame not only makes a sturdy, long lived car, but that it adds immeasurably to its safety.

You serve your own interests when you insist on seeing and judging every feature of what we firmly believe to be the best purchase in the Six field.

But we shall not try to tell the whole story here.

See this splendid automobile. Let us explain its merits—demonstrate its mechanical perfection and wonderful riding qualities. No time is better than right now to see and know the Six Pre-eminent.

Six-60 7-Passenger Touring or 4-Passenger Roadster, 125-inch wheelbase, 4½-inch tires, 60 h. p. Continental motor, 3½x5¼, Westinghouse electrical equipment, Stromberg Carburetor, Brown-Lipe Differential, Stewart-Warner Vacuum Feed system. Wheels, extra heavy second growth hickory, 12½-inch spokes. Front wheels equipped with 100 per cent thrust Gurney annular bearings. Rear wheels run on roller bearings. Other specifications also of highest grade standard parts. $1650

Three Great Triumphs

VESTA STORAGE BATTERY

Vitality

There are reasons for Vesta's vitality—three great specific reasons and one big general reason.

Vesta Indestructible Isolator, Vesta Impregnated Wooden Mats and Vesta Titanium are the three specific reasons for Vesta's Vitality.

Vesta Indestructible Isolator locks the plates apart and prevents short circuits—Vesta Impregnated Wooden Mats absolutely prevent "treeing" and its costly consequences—Vesta Titanium hardens the lead plates, giving them longer life, and precipitates all minerals and impurities in solution, thus giving marvelous efficiency.

The big general reason for Vesta's Vitality lies in these three specific reasons combined with the all-'round excellence of Vesta construction.

...very ...dom ...essary ...make an adjustment on a Vesta Battery; however, when it is necessary adjustment is made on a basis of 18 months' service.

Good Roads Work Shows Great Gain

REPORTS come in steadily of important progress in highway improvement in nearly every state. The Minnesota state highway commission, for example, says that sixty-one of eighty-six counties in that state have already drawn all of the state aid allotted in 1916. From 50 to 90 per cent of the cost of road making in Minnesota is paid by the state and from 10 to 50 per cent by the counties.

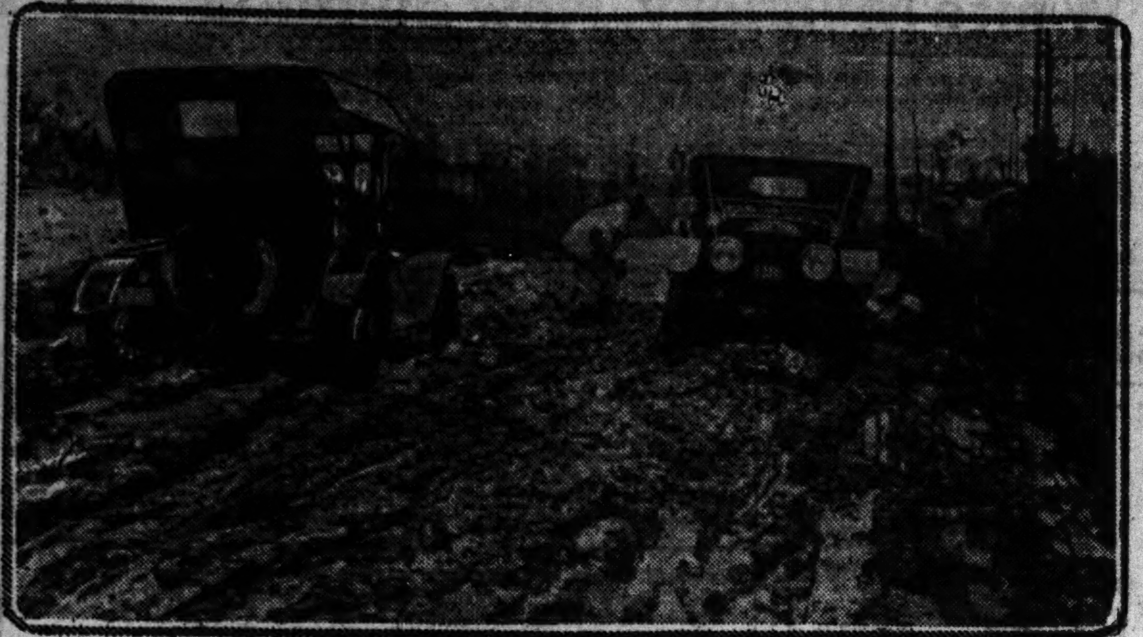
In New York state, where millions have been expended on road improvement, it is said that it is now possible for one to travel in an automobile three straight months without leaving improved roads.

Michigan reports that at least 1,000 miles of state rewarded roads are to be built by counties under the county road system during 1917. Much of this expenditure will be on trunk line roads of state and interstate importance. With the new road mileage constructed by townships, it is reasonable to believe that a total of between 1,200 and 1,400 miles of improved roads will be reached this year.

The good roads movement has taken a spurt in Kentucky, where Hardin county has demonstrated, to every one's satisfaction, the enormous profit in good road investments. Officials of that county claim a $500,000 return on a $50,000 investment in the forty-four miles of Dixie highway which passes through the county.

TOURING JOYS IN GEORGIA

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. M——— of Chicago Disregarded Warnings and Tackled the Dixie Highway to Florida Last Month. This Is What Happened 35 Miles South of Macon.



Warns of Trials on Tour South

Jacksonville, Fla., May 1.—[Automobile Editor of The Tribune.]—Having about completed our motor trip south from Chicago, we can now tell you something of the roads. We have our opinion of the Georgia section of the Dixie highway in wet weather.

I am sending a picture taken when we were dug out about thirty-five miles south of Macon—and there were miles of such road. Across southern Georgia and northern Florida is heavy sand, which is a driver's dread, and racks your car (and your soul and body) terribly.

Florida east coast roads are good—many of them very good. The worst stretch between Jacksonville and Miami is the twenty miles north of Ormond. The road to the west coast by way of Fort Pierce and Okeechobee is very bad sand.

Titusville to Winter Park is bad—a new road and extremely rough. Kissimmee to Tampa is almost impassable, through heavy sand around Haines City. But central Florida has fine hard clay and brick roads. The best way across is from Daytona over brick roads to Ocala and then down by Dunnellon, Inverness, and Plant City. Here your troubles end, for there is a brick road into Tampa and from there a fine road around the bay to Bellair and St. Petersburg.

The Real Greatness of the Maxwell Is in Its Perfected Mechanism

Mechanical perfection has made the Maxwell the endurance champion of the world—the most economical car to run—a source of complete satisfaction to 200,000 Maxwell owners.

Let's consider the Maxwell first as a piece of machinery,

Fancy upholstery, enamel, a highly polished instrument board are excellent things, —but they don't make a great motor car.

Motor-car merit depends, first, last and always, on mechanical construction, —on the parts that are hidden from your view

The Maxwell has grace of form and line—travels easily—is roomy and comfortable,

—a novice knows that—it's obvious

But, let us pick the car to pieces and see what you actually get for your money.

The Sturdy, Masterful Chassis

In the first place, there is one—and only one—Maxwell chassis,

—and that chassis not an experiment,

—not the whim of some designer who craves a reputation for being different or original.

Nobody is permitted to tinker with that one Maxwell model,

—no smart ideas are allowed to swerve it from its course of development, refinement, perfection along the known, proved, time-tried principles of automobile construction,

The Maxwell Engine is the Embodiment of Efficiency and Power

The Maxwell engine is a concrete manifestation of efficiency and power brought up to an almost unbelievable point of perfection.

It has much of the velvety smoothness characteristic of the motors in high-priced cars, —plus power, economy, reliability and simplicity.

This marvelous motor is daily taking Maxwells over tens of thousands of miles of the hardest sort of going at an average cost of only $6 to $8 a month.

One of these Maxwell engines—just like the one your Maxwell will have—went for 44 days and nights without stopping, carrying a Maxwell over all kinds of roads, in all kinds of weather, at a rate of 25 miles an hour, on 22 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Some Other Mechanical Factors That Make the Maxwell Great

—they are designed, forged, heat-treated and built complete in our own factories.

The Maxwell clutch—running in oil, simple, smooth, wear-proof—has an efficiency greater than that of any other car, no matter how high-priced.

Besides—each part of the Maxwell chassis is made of only the finest metal that can be procured, —and then only after the material has been subjected to the most rigid tests known to science

Buy the Car That Stands the Test

Don't buy a car on looks, but find out just what is inside it—if the vital parts of the car are mechanically right.

The more you study the Maxwell the more certain you will be, as we are, that the Maxwell is the world's greatest motor car value.

Come to our sales rooms and let us prove to you that the Maxwell is mechanically right.

Small Monthly Payments Arranged if You Prefer

Pick up Your Dearborn Truck at the Used Car Show

at Coliseum, May 5th to 13th, inclusive

You have been thinking of getting a truck. Now is the time. Don't hesitate any longer. Attend the Used Car Show at the Coliseum. Pick out the chassis that is suited to your purposes—and then get a

$350 and up — One or Two-Ton DEARBORN Truck Unit — $350 and up

Immediately your hauling and delivery cost is reduced and its efficiency increased many times. It doesn't cost much to buy a truck this way, and there is a big saving in upkeep costs if you operate a Dearborn.

Besides that you get a stronger, better truck that is built along real truck lines and will carry a full 50% overload safely.

Attached to a Ford or other pleasure car chassis the Dearborn makes a sturdy, high quality one or two-ton truck.

The Dearborn Units are on exhibition on Main Floor Coliseum during the entire Used Car Show, May 5th to 13th inclusive. Look them over and you will see the Dearborn "quality points of superiority" that have made these units the most desirable on the market today.

Save Half Your Hauling Costs

No matter what your business is—no matter how difficult the work—a Dearborn built truck will cut your hauling or delivery costs in two. Every Dearborn you add to your truck fleet will do three times the work of a team and wagon and do it decidedly cheaper.

The Dearborn Units are as practical for the small business man as they have proved for big truck fleet owners. They are built strong by a strong company, and are sturdier, better and more dependable than any other Truck Unit on the market.

Other Dearborn quality specifications are Bock Heavy Duty Roller Bearings, Baldwin Roller Chains, Baldwin Steel Sprockets, Jack-Shaft and Back Rod Hangers HOT riveted to frame—not merely bolted.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS.

MAY FURNITURE SALE at the WABASH

AT A SAVING OF 40% TO 60% ON THE DOLLAR.

We have just received several carloads of high grade furniture from Grand Rapids and Chicago factories at the old prices, which are 25% to 40% below the regular market prices of today.

Being fortunate to receive this tremendous stock of furniture at the old prices, and just in time for our great May furniture Clearing Sale, which we expect will be the greatest sale ever held by any furniture store in Chicago, offering such enormous saving at the present time, when all other stores are raising their prices.

Do not overlook these tremendous Bargains listed below. As there is only a limited amount of each article we would advise you to come early and make your selection while our stock is complete. Below we quote a few of our special Bargains:

LINEN SALESMEN.

We have several openings for linen salesmen, both in the city and on the road. If you have ability and are looking for a position with opportunity we want you. In answering state experience and salary expected. Address C C 526, Tribune.

MAN—HERE IS THE BIGGEST OPPORTUNITY FOR THE SALESMAN WHO WANTS TO WORK SEVEN HOURS A DAY.

We want state representatives for the following states: Utah, California, Colorado, Washington, Oregon, New Hampshire, Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Florida, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Alabama.

Our proposition is selling bluing direct to laundries. We assign one man to a state and give exclusive to the man who works.

This proposition is good for upward $5,000 a year. We have no competition in America. Through a wise preparedness policy and thirty-five years' experience, abroad and in the United States, we achieved the perfection.

Our representative takes the order only after the sample has been submitted and tested, leaving also sample with the laundry, so that on receipt of goods comparison can be made.

The dye situation is sickening, and the fact that we can deliver the goods assures our representatives success right from the start.

This is strictly commission, but the best commission of any staple article in the country.

Apply in writing only. State age, past experience, if married, and at least two references.

SALESMAN — HIGH CLASS SPECIALTY salesman, good appearance, broad experience, forceful closer. A real salary for a real man, with an opportunity to earn a bonus, introducing a comparatively new building material specialty with extraordinarily large sales possibilities. Sufficient business developed to demonstrate thoroughly sales possibilities of our specialty and a ground floor opportunity is offered to the biggest man we can find who has the record and references to prove his ability. Reply with complete particulars, giving past experience in detail, territory traveled, specialty lines handled, amount of cost to sell, age, etc. Your application will be confidential and we will not communicate with your references until after interview. Preference will be given to men now employed. Address C A 153, Tribune.

SALESMEN—THE PAST WEEK HAS shown a large increase in inquiries for property along West 63d-st., with the result that more sales were made last week than in the 30 days previous. As the spring season has finally opened up, it is wise for salesmen of experience in real estate to connect with the property which has the strongest selling points. It pays to sell the best. You can sell our property to your mother and feel that you have benefited her rather than to have merely collected a commission. Suppose you come in and see me Monday or Tuesday, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Let us talk things over. Ask for GEORGE SHAY, Salesmanager, at Room 921, 105 W. Monroe-st.

HIGH GRADE POSITIONS FOR HIGH GRADE MEN.

YOU WILL NEVER BELIEVE the number of excellent positions we have open with the very best concerns in the country, in every line and department of business, until you have come in and talked it over with us.
Remember, we have stood the test for the past fourteen years; we are doing business with over 15,000 of America's highest grade concerns, who tell us their wants; we have over 70 people in our employ, whose business it is to match up the "right man for the right place." We have nine distinct departments in our business, each supervised by a man who is well trained and absolutely knows his business. Your case will not be handled by an amateur. We know how and where to place you. You can't afford to stay away from us, because we have exactly what you want. If you don't see what you are looking for ask for it. We fill many positions which are never advertised, and we may be looking for just YOU, with your peculiar experience.

FOR SALE—IN TIMES OF WAR PREPARE FOR PEACE.
America will endure till the end of time. North Side vacant will endure until then—and constantly multiply in value.

We, therefore, appeal not to your patriotism but to your prudence. If you have cash invest it now. MAKE A PROFIT FROM THOSE WHO HESITATE—from those who see nothing but darkness and destruction.

For your consideration we offer several choice parcels of vacant—near Howard "L" terminal—where values must enormously grow—at prices more than 25 per cent below value and 100 per cent lower than when the last gun is fired.

This vacant is suitable for residences, apartments, garages, stores, and—for THE INVESTOR WHO LIKES TO SEE HIS MONEY GROW.

FOR SALE—
A Good, Comfortable, Modern Home in Highland Park.

You will like this home when you see it, because it is located in a beautiful wooded spot; about one acre with many flower gardens, shrubs, and blooming plants and right alongside of a deep ravine, where wild flowers, ferns, and tall willows and oaks are plentiful. This is a real suburban home; a California style house with 10 large rooms beaming with sunlight—in addition there are 3 baths, a sun porch and a large sleeping porch—2 large log fireplaces and a billiard room.

A private driveway leads up to the house with large stone columns on either side of the entrance.

The lake is near by—Sheridan-rd. 100 feet away, and the Moraine Hotel around the corner a half block.

I will make terms or offer trial rental to interested buyer. Address B K 272, Tribune.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

There's Money in Michigan!

A FARMER IN MICHIGAN last year made $4,000 on 29 acres of land. He grew 2,400 bushels of potatoes on 14 acres and 240 bushels of beans on the other 15 acres. The potatoes brought him $3,600 and the beans $1,440, making a total of $5,040. The expense of growing, harvesting, etc., amounted to about $1,000, leaving a profit of about $4,000.

POTATOES AND BEANS ARE much higher now than they were last year, and those who are best qualified to know say that prices of all farm products will continue to be high for years, whether the war stops or not. Get the benefit of these high prices.

FIRST YOU MUST have land, and my plan makes land easy to get. I have more than 50,000 acres in Michigan's Fruit and Clover Belt, which I am selling at $15 to $25 an acre—$25 to $100 down, and $7 to $10 monthly for 40 acres, or lower terms for smaller tracts. Moreover, I employ expert farmers to help you start and show you the best farming methods for our district.

MICHIGAN HAS MANY other profitable crops. Last year 81,600 tons of sugar were made from the 604,000 tons of beets grown in Michigan on 99,300 acres, with an average of 6 tons to the acre. At $6.06 a ton, the farmers got $3,660,240. Sugar beets, moreover, improve the soil and are a fine crop to use in rotation. Also wheat, rye, oats, corn, clover, barley, and fruit, besides stock, dairying, and poultry are profitable.

A TRIP TO SEE the lands would be worth your while. NEXT EXCURSION May 8th. PRIVATE CARS. Round trip from Chicago, including meals, berth, and auto trip over the land, $12.95. Don't miss this excursion. ACT NOW!

WRITE FOR MY FREE 72 page booklet, which gives full information. Or drop in and talk it over and see stereopticon views and samples of 1916 crops. Office remains open Monday evenings and Saturday afternoons.

Texas.

FOR SALE—NEW FARM OPPORTUNITY IN ONE OF THE GREATEST STATES IN THE UNION. A new line of the Santa Fe is tapping a rich and fertile prairie section of Northwest Texas, near the Oklahoma line, where already many farmers have MADE GOOD in a big way with wheat, hogs, and live stock. Here, if you ACT NOW, you can get first choice—get in on the ground floor of a great opportunity. You can get in AHEAD of the railway—ahead of the people whom the railway will bring—ahead of those who act more slowly than you do. This is the chance of a lifetime for a man of moderate means. A certain number of thrifty, farseeing farmers can acquire good land at an astonishingly low figure and on long, easy terms. If you have confidence that a great railroad, like the Santa Fe, would only recommend what it considers a good thing, and because it wants to see new territory developed and wants newcomers to PROSPER and PRODUCE—then write me TODAY for particulars about this district. Mild climate, social advantages, schools, churches, telephones, good roads. Everything there but enough men with their families. Will you be one of the fortunate first comers to reap the advantages of a section that has been minutely inspected by a Santa Fe agricultural agent and pronounced RIGHT? Write me NOW and let me send you a copy of the special illustrated circular we are getting out. C. L. SEAGRAVES, 1105 Railway Exchange, Chicago.

FOR SALE—TEXAS DAIRY FARM IN South Texas, superior to S. California climate; improved; 800 a.; artesian wells, houses, etc.; near creamery; $28,000; clear. To trade for vacant or improved city. Address C B 504, Tribune.

Utah.

FOR SALE—I AM IN POSITION TO OBTAIN for you 1,034 acres of some of the best land in Utah; splendid for wheat, oats, barley, or alfalfa; there are all the implements necessary; 25 horse power tractor, 8 disk plow; also horses, cows, a good 4 room house, granaries, tool sheds; all ready to start to work on; about 250 acres under cultivation; it will take about $1,500 to make the deal, rest can remain on mortgage as long as you wish; the crop already sowed is worth more than what it requires to make the deal; from 10 to 25 feet to water anywhere on the property. Address J 259, Tribune.

LEGAL NOTICES.

OFFICE OF
THE CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND AND PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.
Chicago, Illinois, April 12, 1917.

A special meeting of the stockholders of The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company, duly called by a majority of all the directors, will be held at the office of the Company, at Room 1007 in La Salle Street Station, in the City of Chicago, County of Cook, and State of Illinois, on Thursday, the twenty-first day of June, 1917, at 10 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of considering, voting, and deciding whether the stockholders of the Company will consent to and will authorize:

First. The amendment of Article V, Clause 1, of the Articles of Consolidation of June 2, 1880, as amended from time to time, so as to read substantially as follows [with such changes, alterations, and additions as such special meeting may authorize], viz.:

"1. The Capital Stock of The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company, the consolidated corporation hereby created, shall be limited to the sum of One Hundred and Forty Million Dollars, until the amount thereof is increased by an amendment to these Articles of Consolidation adopted in the manner hereinafter provided. The said Capital Stock shall be divided into shares, each of which shall have a par value of One Hundred Dollars, and shall be issued and disposed of for the payment or discharge of the obligations of the Company and for corporate purposes at such times and on such terms and conditions as the Board of Directors or the Executive Committee may lawfully determine.

Of said Capital Stock Seventy-five Millions Dollars par value, being the present authorized share capital of the Company, shall be, and shall hereafter be known and designated as Common Stock, and the remaining Sixty-five Millions Dollars per value shall be Preferred Stock entitled to preferences and priorities over said Common Stock and respectively entitled to the other rights and preferences following, viz.:

[1] Thirty Millions Dollars par value of said Preferred Stock shall be seven [7] per cent. preferred stock entitled to dividends up to but not exceeding seven [7] per cent. in any fiscal year before any dividend shall be paid upon the Common Stock, and entitled further from and after May 1, 1917, to cumulation of dividends unpaid up to but not exceeding the rate of five [5] per cent. per annum, such accumulated dividends to be paid in full before the payment of any dividends upon the Common Stock; entitled equally with the six [6] per cent. preferred stock, hereinafter described, to be preferred in the distribution of assets upon insolvency or dissolution of the Company over the Common Stock in the payment of the entire par value of preferred stock of both classes, plus any unpaid dividends at said rate of five [5] per cent. per annum then accumulated thereon, before any payment or distribution shall be made on the Common Stock; entitled to be preferred as to dividends over the six [6] per cent preferred stock, hereinafter described, to the extent of one [1] per cent. in any fiscal year, which shall be first declared and paid or set aside for payment before any dividends shall be declared upon the said six [6] per cent. preferred stock but, after the declaration and payment or setting aside of such one [1] per cent. in any fiscal year, entitled to share equally with the said six [6] per cent. preferred stock as to further dividends declared and/paid on both said classes of preferred stock; and redeemable in whole, but not in part, either independently of or contemporaneously with the six [6] per cent. preferred stock, hereinafter described, on any dividend payment date at One hundred and five dollars [$105] per share plus the amount of all unpaid cumulative five [5] per cent. dividends accrued thereon, upon notice of redemption given as hereinafter provided.

[2] Thirty-five Millions Dollars par value of said Preferred Stock shall be six [6] per cent. preferred stock, entitled to dividends up to but not exceeding six [6] per cent. in any fiscal year before any dividend shall be paid upon the Common Stock and entitled further to cumulative dividends as follows, viz.: (a) as to Twenty Millions Dollars par value thereof, from and after July 15, 1916, and (b) as to all or any part of the balance of Fifteen Million Dollars par value thereof, from and after such date or dates as the Board of Directors may at any time or from time to time, prior to the issuance thereof, determine, to cumulation of dividends unpaid up to but not exceeding the rate of five [5] per cent. per annum, such accumulated dividends to be paid in full before the payment of any dividends upon the Common Stock; entitled equally with the seven [7] per cent. preferred stock, hereinabove described, to be preferred in the distribution of assets upon insolvency or dissolution of the Company over the Common Stock in the payment of the entire par value of the preferred stocks of both classes, plus any unpaid dividends at said rate of five [5] per cent. per annum then accumulated thereon, before any payment or distribution shall be made on the Common Stock; subject to the preference as to dividends of the seven [7] per cent. preferred stock, to the extent of one [1] per cent. in any fiscal year which shall be first declared and paid or set aside for payment upon the seven [7] per cent. preferred stock before any dividends shall be declared upon this six [6] per cent. preferred stock, but after the declaration and payment or setting aside of such one [1] per cent. in any fiscal year, entitled to share equally with the seven [7] per cent. preferred stock as to further dividends declared and paid on both said classes of preferred stock; and redeemable in whole, but not in part, either independently of or contemporaneously with the seven [7] per cent. preferred stock, on any dividend payment date at one hundred and two dollars [$102] per share plus the amount of all unpaid cumulative five [5] per cent. dividends accrued thereon, upon notice of redemption given as hereinafter provided.

Notice of Redemption of either or both of the classes of preferred stock, upon the terms hereinbefore set forth, shall be forwarded by United States mail to each holder of record of the preferred stock to be redeemed at the last known address appearing on the stock books of the company and shall be published in two newspapers of general circulation, one in the Borough of Manhattan, City and State of New York, and one in the City of Chicago, Illinois, once a week for three successive weeks, said notice to be mailed as aforesaid and the first publication thereof to be made in each of the newspapers as aforesaid not more than forty days nor less than thirty days prior to the dividend date upon which redemption of the preferred stock is to be made.

The amount of the Capital Stock may be increased from time to time by an amendment to these Articles of Consolidation adopted at any annual meeting of the stockholders of the Company, or at any special meeting called for that purpose, by the vote of the holders of two-thirds of the shares of capital stock of all classes then outstanding, and such further amounts whereby the capital stock may be so increased may consist of seven [7] per cent preferred stock, or six [6] per cent preferred stock or Common Stock, or of any two or all of said classes of stock, provided, however, that the vote of a majority in interest of each class of stock outstanding, each class voting separately, as well as the said vote of the holders of two-thirds of the shares of capital stock of all classes then outstanding, shall be necessary for the adoption of any such amendment, whereby the amount of either or both of the aforesaid preferred stocks is to be increased."

Second. The amendment of Article VI, Clauses 2 and 3, of the Articles of Consolidation of June 2, 1880, so as to read substantially as follows [with such changes, alterations, and additions as such special meeting may authorize], viz.:

"2. In all elections for Directors every stockholder shall have the right to vote, in person or by proxy, for the number of shares of stock owned by him, for as many persons as there are directors to be elected, or to cumulate said shares and give one candidate as many votes as the number of directors, multiplied by the number of his shares of stock, shall equal, or to distribute them, on the same principle, among as many candidates as he shall think fit; and such directors shall not be elected in any other manner."

"3. At each annual election, commencing with that to be held on the second Thursday of October, 1917, the stockholders shall elect by ballot the entire Board of thirteen Directors for a term of one year and until their successors are elected. If for any reason an election is not had at any annual meeting or an adjournment thereof, a special meeting for such election may be called in the manner provided by the by-laws at which all the Directors of the Company shall be elected."

Third. The increase of the Capital Stock from its present authorized amount of $75,000,000 to the aggregate authorized amount of $140,000,000, the increased amount of $65,000,000 to consist of the $30,000,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock and $35,000,000 of 6 per cent preferred stock described in the above amendment to Article V, Clause 1, of the Articles of Consolidation.

By order of the Board of Directors.
JAMES E. GORMAN,
Vice-President.
GEORGE H. CROSBY,
Secretary.

Opium Depot Raided; Chinamen Fight Police

Detectives and government agents raided an opium supply station at 2139 Archer avenue early yesterday after a battle in which two Chinese, Moy Wong and Moy Hing, were arrested. The Chinese ran upstairs when the raid began and one of them seized a revolver from a truck with the idea of fighting off the raiders. The revolver was knocked from his hand. The Chinese fought sturdily and were badly beaten before they were overcome and taken before Federal Commissioner Mason. In a covered closet was found a large quantity of opium cans and pipes and a pair of scales.

PLANNED CHANGE IN PRIMARY DATE GAINS SUPPORT

Springfield Sentiment Is Crystallizing for the April Voting.

Springfield, Ill., May 5.—[Special.]—Legislative sentiment appears to be crystallizing in favor of changing the primary election date from September to April. This would mean that the United States senator next year will be nominated on the second Tuesday in April in direct primary, while the state treasurer and the superintendent of public instruction would be nominated in old time state conventions.

The bill to provide this is in the hands of Senator Buck, chairman of the senate elections committee. In many of its essentials it differs from a bill introduced in the house some time ago by Representative Perkins. The senate bill, it is understood, will have the active support of Gov. Lowden, and is also satisfactory to the Democratic state organization.

By the bill's terms the only state officers to be nominated in direct primary will be the governor, lieutenant governor, and United States senator. All other state officers are to be nominated in state conventions, whose delegates shall be chosen by county conventions, the latter composed of precinct committeemen, elected at the April primary. Congressmen, members of the legislature, and county officers are nominated by direct primary. All cities of less than 15,000 are eliminated from the law unless such a city comes under it by a referendum vote.

Pressure for Chicago Law.

Coincident with the movement to revise the direct primary law will come pressure to pass the Chicago nonpartisan election bill, now on the house calendar. This bill, backed by Ald. Merriam, provides for a primary at which any person may be a candidate without party designation. If the high man has a majority of all votes cast he is then and there elected. If not, the two high candidates go to a second election. This applies to mayor, aldermen, city clerk, and city treasurer.

Another bill provides for fifty wards in Chicago, with one alderman to a ward, with a four year term.

Consideration of the election changes will be the next important feature of the legislative calendar, after the private banks bill is disposed of and the civil service bill is out of the way.

To Renew Private Bank Fight.

The fight in the senate for a state-wide private banks bill will be renewed Tuesday morning and carried into the [illegible] later in the week.

There is every prospect that the senate will pass the state-wide bill and turn down the pending Canaday amendment that would eliminate from the new system all banks organized for twenty years or more.

The state civil service bill will be up in the house if Representative [illegible], in charge of the measure, is able to return to Springfield.

Legislative leaders have abandoned any hope of an early adjournment of the session. The omnibus appropriation bill is far from completion in committee and there are measures expected from the new state council of defense that will require much consideration.

ATTY. O'CONNOR DIES OF WOUND

Fort Dodge, Ia., May 5.—Within twenty-four hours of a reconciliation with his wife, Maurice O'Connor shot himself Friday and died early today.

O'Connor was a former law partner of United States Senator W. S. Kenyon and was a brilliant lawyer until he had a nervous breakdown two years ago. He brought a divorce action against Mrs. O'Connor alleging she called him insane and he also charged attorneys were in a conspiracy against him.

Judge B. I. Salinger of the Iowa supreme court held a hearing in O'Connor's case last fall and held him sane but placed him under bond.

Bismarck Hotel Guest Asks $50,000 Damages

George F. Murphy, an actor, filed suit yesterday for $50,000 damages against the Hotel Bismarck.

"Mr. Murphy was staying at the Bismarck two weeks ago and one night a house detective, whose name we don't know, entered the room Mr. Murphy occupied and without any provocation whatever attacked my client and severely beat him," Attorney L. A. [illegible] said.

J. E. McEldowney Files Petition in Bankruptcy
